MORE ACCOMMODATION AT BATHING BEACHES PLANNED BY COUNCIL

City Council at Special Meeting Decide to Make
West End Beach More Sanitary for Summer—
Amusement Company Refused Permission to Be on Queen's Square.

Decision was made at last night's special meeting of the city council to refuse permission for an amusement company to use Queen's Square playgrounds this summer, since the grounds are city property and is to be used exclusively as a children's playground. The council also decided in favor of more sanitary conditions at the West End bathing beach, and the erection of bathing houses there. This last matter was left with the Roads and Streets committee with power to act. There was some discussion on both matters.

Respecting the using of Queen's Square by an amusement concern, Ald. Warren Maxwell was opposed. "If we don't allow our young men to play baseball there and collect fees, why allow an outside concern to do it?" he protested. He added that it was no revenue producer, either. The council was generally in agreement with Ald. Maxwell and a motion was passed forbidding it, although leeway was left for the interested company to arrange with any private persons for the use of their property.

Bathing Beach Discussed

Ald. David McCaughey was strongly for improvements of sanitary conditions at the West End bathing beach, although he anticipated that the cost would amount to somewhere near $500. He urged, however, that something be done to have the place fixed up with bathing houses. Ald. Ivan McKnight mentioned that the bathing facilities at the lower end of the city also needed attention. The freshest took away the float, he said, and it would be wise to arrange for better facilities at the lower end of the city.

Mayor Kitchen, who presided at the meeting, reported that that end of the city was "not a fit place to bathe," he had heard, and Ald. Maxwell said that if that was the case the children should not be permitted to bathe there in the summer. He referred to the danger of typhoid, since the city's sewers are drained at that end of the city. Ald. Hagerman urged that the whole matter be looked into at once, and that steps be taken to have the west end bathing beach made sanitary and also that toilets be built.

Music Committee

Aldermen Ivan McKnight, Crewdson and Doohan were named a committee from the chair as a music committee to inquire into the matter of summer band concerts and the matter of selection of bands for the concerts to be held during the summer.

'MIKE' HAS DESTROYED ORATORY

CLEVELAND, June 14—There are those who thought Senator Fred Steiwer of Oregon delivered the keynote speech of the Republican convention with all the oratorical grace and fire of a ventriloquist's dummy, and you may count me as one of them. I have to add however, in justice to the Oregon statesman, that the mere delivery of a cold, impersonal document, as formal as a chattel mortgage, has been greatly exaggerated. It isn't fair to expect a statesman to do a Hamlet with such material, and if they wanted some one to chew the scenery they should have hired an actor. Steiwer performed under a severe handicap. They gave him no good lines to speak and then cramped him with mechanical limitations.

I don't think we can look forward to any real forensics in this campaign because the speaker nowadays is compelled to stand perfectly still, maintaining an exact distance from the microphone, in order to catch the radio audience. He cannot fling his arms or swing by his tail in the manner of the old-fashioned 4th of July spellbinder.

This mechanical oratory is no good at this, and then the gadgets go haywire, as they did in Senator Steiwer's big moment. The speaker is reduced to a ridiculous whisper.

I doubt that William Jennings Bryan himself could have made himself heard throughout the Cleveland hall without the amplifying system.

This year the speaker stands in the middle of the hall, out at the end of a long flying bridge, and there is as much distance behind as in front of him. Moreover, the area behind him is a theatre with a high, arched roof, which seems to trap sound and smother it.

Twelve years ago when the Republicans were nominating Coolidge they possessed among their number the loudest orator in the United States, the late Senator Frank Willis, of Ohio. At that time the end wall of the arena was just back of the present speaker's stand and it served as a sounding board.

Senator Willis gave a magnificent display of noise in casting Ohio's vote for Mr. Coolidge, but even he might sound faint if he could test himself against the vastness and the acoustics of the hall as it is today. Incidentally, although Senator Willis could outbawl and hog called in the country in his day, it is not recorded that he ever said anything, so more power can be exaggerated.

The microphone technique has completely changed the art of oratory.

Perhaps it has destroyed it. In order to deliver a speech with grace and vigor a speaker must be allowed to get hot and put his body into it. He must sway with the feeling of his stuff. He must reach for the sky when he is calling on God to help him to turn the rascals out and save the country. He must be allowed to bend forward and reach out confidently to his audience in certain moments and he requires a wide range of tone, from the mighty bellow and the screams of defiance to the low poetic murmur when dealing with the rocks and rills of his boyhood.

All this is denied him by the engineers in charge of the electrical gadgets. They tell him the precise spot on which to plant his feet, warning him not to move, because if he draws away too far he loses his audience, and if he comes too close his voice grows mushy and indistinct. That gives him no more cruising radius than the stretch of his own neck and rules out one of the most important factors in any good public address, the physical sway of the speaker. But the gadgets demand something else. They ask a man to keep his voice close to a certain pitch for mechanical reasons, and this makes for neck sounds and monotony.

That is the explanation of the horrible quality of all radio lectures from the daily household chat to the sad flop of Senator Steiwer of Oregon. The speaker of today does not address his immediate audience, but talks into a can for the benefit of that element bewitchingly described as the vast, unseen multitude. Few men have been able to conquer the limitations of the can. Huey Long did and some people think Mr. Roosevelt has style and conviction on the air, but I say he sounds like a schoolboy reciting 'Paul Revere' without gestures. He reminds me of the man who says cigarettes are good for sore throat, and the more he wheedles the worse I like it.

But after all, Senator Steiwer got his piece spoken, and I don't think it should make any difference to intelligent voters whether he did it like a man taking inventory in a drug store or in the spread-eagle fusion of a tailboard professor selling certain salve and wart remover.

But there I go, assuming that here are enough intelligent voters to amount to something, and I mustn't be naive.

Success is only worth having if it is to crown a worthy effort, which has helped, and not injured, humanity.—Elinor Glyn.

Sir Frederick Banting at Jasper Lodge

(Special to The Daily Mail)

JASPER PARK LODGE Alta. June 15—With clear sky, a hot sun and its usual magnificent scenic setting, Jasper Park Lodge opened for the season yesterday under perfect conditions. The first guest of 1936 was Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto, world known figure in medical research, who is enjoying a week rest before proceeding to the Canadian Medical Association at the Coast. Guests are already here from various parts of Canada and the United States in addition to a party from London, England. General activity around the Lodge will commence early with the annual meeting of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada getting under way today with more than one hundred delegates present. It promises to be a most important gathering as financial matters of the utmost import will be discussed by representatives from all Canadian Provinces.

Manager John O'Brien who today commenced his thirteenth season as manager of the Lodge, is of the opinion that this will be the best year for a long time. "We have had more early reservations than for a great many years in addition to which we have a number of important conventions scheduled," he declared. "The place has never looked better and the golf course is in great shape."

The musical programme for the year will be in charge of G. R. Markowsky, who for many years has had charge of the concert orchestra at the Chateau Laurier. In addition to several outstanding concert soloists such as Helen Langdon, cellist and Alfred Edgcombe, pianist, the orchestra includes most outstanding dance music artists.

Coincident with the opening of Jasper Park Lodge, is the opening of the Chalets at Medicine and Maligne Lakes, under the management of Major Fred Brewster, early reports are that fishing conditions are excellent with a number of fine catches already have been brought back.

STEIWER'S PHRASE INSPIRES DELEGATE TO WRITE SONG HIT FOR CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, June 15—Lying in bed the other night, Joe Dunne of Portland, Ore., got an inspiration—and now the song he wrote is the hit of the Republican national convention. Rushing into the municipal auditorium he barged into a group of fellow delegates.

"I've got it, fellows," he shouted, holding aloft a crumpled piece of paper.

"Got what Joe?" they asked. "Got the convention tune," he came back.

"I thought the convention had one," said one of his listeners—"Oh, Susannah!"

"That's Gov. Landon's song," said Dunne as he mopped his face in high excitement. "This one's something else."

Reminding his listeners of Key-note Steiwer's phrase—"three long years"—uttered in his denunciation of the three-year record of the New Deal, Dunne mounted a chair.

"Sing this to the tune of 'Three Blind Mice,'" he said. "Now here are the words."

In a booming voice he read:

"Three long years!

"Three long years!

"Full of grief and tears,

"Full of grief and tears!

"Frankie gave us to understand

If we would lend a helping hand

He'd lead us to the promised land—said.

"Three long years!

"Full of grief and tears,

"Full of grief and tears!

"For when we got to the promised land

We found it nothing but shifting sand

"And he left us stripped like Sally Rand

"For three long years!"

It did not take Dunne long to teach his listeners the words. Satisfied, he confided that he wrote the song in bed.

"It just sort of came to me," he said.

SOMEBODY (IN BRITISH COLUMBIA) BUILDS HOUSE

OTTAWA, June 16—Somebody is building a house in British Columbia under the Dominion Housing Act.

A return tabled today in the House of Commons said one loan of $2,700 had been approved to date in the Coast Province.

The house is in an urban centre. The information was given to C. Grant MacNeil (C.C.F., Vancouver-North.)

WHO RULES?

WHITEBY, Ont., June 16—"Who rules Canada?" asked Judge J. A. McGibbon of an Oshawa foreign-born man who appeared in County Court seeking naturalization here today.

"Hepburn," came the immediate response.

"He only thinks he does," replied the Judge.

It is only those who do not know how to work that do not love it. To those who do, it is better than play—it is religion.

—J. H. Patterson.
