BARNEY ROSS RETAINS HIS WELTER TITLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Chicago's Barney Ross retained his world's welterweight title here tonight by defeating Izzy Jannazzo, New York Italian, in a 15-round struggle in Madison Square Garden.

Weights were 143 1/4 for Ross and 145 1/4 for Jannazzo.

Making his first title start since regaining the crown from Jimmy McLarin of Vancouver, a year ago last May, Ross combined a flying start and a strong finish to outlast Jannazzo before a disappointed turnout of only 8,484 customers who paid $22,840.83 to see the contest.

The Associated Press score card credited Ross with 10 of the 15 heats. Jannazzo was given four and one was called even. Jannazzo was penalized two rounds for low punches.

The decision, greeted by mingled cheers and hoots, was unanimous on the part of Referee Johnny McAvoy and Judges Charlie Lynch and Marty Monroe.

There were only two knockdowns with Jannazzo the victim each time. In the second round Ross connected with a right to the jaw that sent Jannazzo on the deck for a count of one. Again in the fifth, while backing away from a Ross rush, Jannazzo caught another short right on the button and went down for a count of two.

BROADCASTING BALL GAMES IN FOR K. O. SAID

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—That old baseball bugaboo—radio broadcasting—may take a called strike or two when American League club owners meet here in special session Thursday.

The meeting was called for the purpose of greeting the new owners of the St. Louis Browns, Donald L. Barnes and associates, and for an "informal discussion of radio broadcasting," but William Harridge, league president, indicated today that a definite policy for future airing of American League game accounts may be adopted.

Stating that clubs have handled the radio question in "slipshod manner" in the past and that an effort probably will be made to place radio broadcasting of games on a "uniform basis," Harridge said there was a possibility that clubs in the future may deal with radio stations on a strict contract basis.

The contract, Harridge hinted, may stipulate that broadcasters cannot "second guess" managers, game officials or official scorers, or even infer that umpires erred on decisions. The contracts, it was said, would be turned over to the league president, who could act as he saw fit if violations were charged.

The bottle-tossing episode which enlivened a White Sox game here last summer was believed to have inspired consideration of a contract which would curb announcers. Umpire Bill Summers was injured the day after one announcer had described another official, Basil Johnston, as incompetent.

Broadcasting now is allowed in all American League parks except Washington and New York. Chicago alone makes no charge for the rights to all games from Comiskey Park. Other clubs have their own agreements with stations.

The effect of major league broadcasting on minor league attendance also was to be discussed. On complaint of the minors last summer, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis ordered no additional stations be permitted to enter any of the parks. The minor's big complaint was against stations in minor league towns broadcasting telegraph accounts of major league games.

"The American League wants to protect the minors," Harridge said, "but how we are going to accomplish that we don't know as yet."

FREDERICTON ICE PRACTICES FULLY UNDERWAY

Seventeen players turned out for hockey practice at the Arctic Rink last night.

A fast hard sheet of ice greeted the puck-chasers and for early season form most of the boys were hitting a fast pace. 'Bud' Steen, veteran of many Fredericton hockey wars, was out and appeared to be in as good shape as any. He worked on the defence and forward line.

Cliff Young, last year's goalie with the York All-Stars, who was between the uprights on one end of the rink, was the only goalie out.

Kilburn, Mawhinney, Laskey and Hall, all of whom have graduated from junior ranks, had no trouble keeping up with the rest of them. They showed excellent form for a first workout and look like good material with which to fill the gaps left open by the loss of McIntyre and Cameron.

On defence Goodine and Sirr teamed up in front of Young with Chalmers, Kilburn, Laskey and Palmer alternating on the other end. The seasoned forward line of Mills, Lifford and McLennan worked together against lines using Keenan, Haining, Steen, Flawelling, McLaggan, Hall and Mawhinney, and seemed to be taking up where they left off in their last game with the Saint John Beavers last winter.

HIGH PRICES FOR YOUTHS AT OLD GLORY SALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—Prices for young trotters and pacers from the Walnut Hall Farm soared to the highest mark since 1929 today as the famous Donerail, Ky., horse nursery sent its final consignment of yearlings under the hammer at the 42nd Old Glory auction.

Walnut Hall, owned by Dr. Ogden M. Edwards of Pittsburgh, offered 25 colts and fillies during the final session of the sale and they brought $21,000 for an average of $840. During the three days, 77 yearlings from the Blue Grass Farm sold for $77,215, averaging $1,003. Twenty-two of them were knocked down for more than $1,000.

The sale officials reported the greatest auction of standard bred horses in recent years.

Top price of the day was paid by Jerome Vandeweghe of Belgium, $4,600 for Leo Oettinger's Miss Peter Belle, a four-year-old filly.

Ben White of Lexington, trainer and driver of two Hambletonian winners, wrote out the largest check of the day for a yearling. Bidding for J. J. Mooney of Fremont, Ohio, the veteran horseman paid $4,300 for Ava, a bay filly by Peter Volo out of Nedda Guy.

BUDDY MYER WILL TRY FOR REAL COMEBACK

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—The ups and downs in baseball are many. Often they are not gradual developments, but rapid-changing pictures that sharply alter the prestige and value of a ball player. There is, for instance, Buddy Myer's fall from a position of high esteem a year ago to one in which his future as a big leaguer is filled with doubt.

In the winter of 1935 the Washington second baseman was preparing to start another spring training trip and to condition himself for a fitting defense of his American League batting championship. He was a $100,000 ball player—Clark Griffith had plastered an amazing price tag of $500,000 on his head—and he was the key man in the Senators' brigade.

Today Myer is one of several American League athletes who contemplate making successful comebacks to win regular berths with their respective clubs. He played in less than one-third of the Senators' games last season. His batting average dropped to a new low. He was hit by injuries and illness and he was forced to place himself on the involuntary retired list.

It may be that Myer's physical condition is such that he will draw one of those new-fangled dollar-a-year contracts. If he proves his fitness on the diamond, he will sign at a nominal salary. If he does not, he will have no alternative but to retire from active service. Were he younger than his thirty-three years his chances of regaining his once high estate would be bright. But he is a veteran of twelve big league campaigns, so one must reserve judgment on his comeback possibilities until the spring exhibition games are in progress.

Greenberg in Training

Hank Greenberg of the Tigers is another junior loop batting leader of 1935 who has agreed not to sign a real contract until he has gone through the paces as spring training. Big Hank is recovering from a broken left wrist which curtailed his home-run ambitions early in the last campaign.

The chances are Hank will be back at his regular first base post when the next season starts. In fact, he said he was ready to play last September, but he was dissuaded when it was clear that the Tigers were definitely out of the pennant race. However, the first baseman did work out in batting and infield practice until the campaign closed.

At present Greenberg is conditioning himself at a New York gymnasium, playing squash and handball and squeezing a rubber ball to strengthen the muscles of his left forearm. He registered no complaint when the Detroit club expressed its ideas of a contract, for he feels certain he will show up well at the training base and during the regular season.

A few other American Leaguers who must prove they are sound of limb are Dixie Walker, the White Sox outfielder, who broke his collarbone last season; Vernon Wilshire, former Athletic rookie sensation, who will be signed to a White Sox contract if his left arm is in shape again; Gen. Crowder, veteran Tiger right-hander, who quit the team in mid-summer because of arthritis and other ailments; Myril Hoag, the Yankee outfielder, who suffered a fractured skull in a collision with Joe DiMaggio; Frankie Pytlak, whose jaw was broken by a pitched ball, and Harry Kelley, Connie Mack's veteran rookie pitcher, whose appendix was removed near the end of the season.
