SUFFERED HEART ATTACK
Miss Kate Covert who suffered a bad heart attack last week is reported to be slightly improved today. Friends will be glad to learn.

HERE FROM DETROIT
Mrs. George Soucie, and son, Donald, arrived yesterday at noon from Detroit. Mrs. Soucie is employed by the Board of Education in Detroit and is spending her vacation with her mother, Mrs. George Hurley, 134 Regent street. Her many friends are giving her a cordial welcome.

REMANDED FOR WEEK
James Burgess, of this city, charged with theft, was remanded for a week this morning before the police magistrate. Ben Hanson, charged with supplying liquor to an Indian was allowed to go on condition that he leave the city immediately.

A COLD JUNE
The past few days of June have turned out to be the coldest for some year judging from records of the latter days of June. Yesterday and this morning the temperature was recorded as 38 degrees, only six degrees above the freezing point. The weather is more like fall and the citizens felt the cold so much last evening that they jumped into heavier garments pronto.

MID-WEEK MARKET
The mid-week market was held at Phoenix Square this morning instead of tomorrow, tomorrow being a public holiday. The market was small. Beets sold for 15 cents per bunch and strawberries sold for 10 cents per box. Prevailing prices were much the same as the week-end market held last Saturday.

MEET HERE THIS WEEK
The Saint John Presbyterial of the Presbyterian church in Canada is meeting in the capital this week on Thursday and Friday. At least fifty delegates are expected to attend the meetings. Rev. Mr. Fulford of St. Stephen will be one of the speakers. The meetings are scheduled to take place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

LATE MRS. JAMES STRANG

Speaker at High School
Matriculation and High School Leaving Exams Overlapping

The programme carried out at the high school last evening, as 104 pupils were given their graduating certificates, was a splendid one. The programme consisted of school choruses, an address by the chairman, a Latin declamation by Miss Ruby Grieve, presentation of prizes, a piano solo by George Little, presentation of certificates, the address to the graduating class by Rev. Dr. G. E. Ross, and the valedictory by Walter M. Smith.

In presenting the certificates Principal O. V. B. Miller stated that he believed that to some extent the academic curriculum of nine subjects was overcrowded. He hoped that an elective system may be adopted some time.

Rev. Dr. Ross's Address
Rev. George E. Ross, D.D., in his address to the Graduating Class, questioned the value of separate matriculation examinations and high school leaving examinations. Why should not a graduation certificate include matriculation into the university, he asked.

He congratulated the students on graduating from Fredericton High School and on being Maritimers. He offered good advice to the graduates; to continue their education, to travel and to work hard. "Your future years will depend largely on your outlook," he said. "Travel widens range of view, and thought and deepens sympathy, he said. "Education is to make a life not to make a living," he stated, but in seeking a job an education is a great advantage, he pointed out.

Chairman's Address
Dr. G. C. VanWart, chairman, in his address, congratulated the graduates on having such a fine high school. He said that 1947 students were enrolled in schools in the city during the past year, that there were 19 teachers in the High School and 62 teachers in the city. He said that 260 students were enrolled in the night school with 10 instructors.

There were no change in the board of school trustees during the past

CHIROPRACTIC for Health

Chiropractic does not "treat" effects. Its objective is to "adjust" causes. There must be a CAUSE for every EFFECT, and the Chiropractic premise is that interference to the proper transmission of nerve force creates a bodily condition of disease.

Chiropractic's impressive record of achievement in behalf of sick and suffering humanity should insure unprejudiced consideration and trial.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING IS JURY'S VERDICT

No Further Investigation Necessary in G. E. Merrithew's Death

Coroner Concurred
Coroner Dr. MacKay Says No Indication of Foul Play

At the adjourned inquest into the death of G. Eldon Merrithew, of this city, whose body was found in the St. John river on June 20, and which inquest was resumed at the county court house last night, with Dr. Charles MacKay as coroner, the coroner's jury decided that the late Mr. Merrithew came to his death by accidental drowning and recommended that no further investigation was necessary in the case.

The inquest had been adjourned from last Monday, when nine witnesses were heard, and the coroner had adjourned it for one week in order that an unidentified woman, reported seen with G. Eldon Merrithew on the Sunday he had disappeared, would come forward and give testimony. Three witnesses had sworn that they had seen the woman with Mr. Merrithew, paddling on the Nashwaakiss river on Sunday, June 4.

Commenting on the non-appearance of the woman as a witness last night Dr. MacKay said that he had every reason to believe that death was due to drowning and that there was no foul play. He did not know, he said, whether her testimony would be of any benefit.

No further evidence was taken last night and the jury brought in its verdict after thirty minutes deliberation.

Dr. MacKay reviewed the evidence for the jury at the outset and said there was no reason to suppose that the woman in question was with Mr. Merrithew at the time of his death. The jury would have to decide the (Continued on Page Five) year, he stated. He commended Mrs. W. G. Clark for her forty years of conscientious service as a member of the board.

CITY RELIEF WORKERS JUST ABLE TO EXIST

Wages Paid Workers Doesn't Enable Them To Clear Debts

Relief Matters Aired
Cost of Living is Higher Here It is Learned

The wages paid to those on relief in the city of Fredericton are so low that as soon as relief work stops the laborer is plunged back onto relief and debt, and is only just able to exist. Such was the tenor of the remarks made at a meeting this morning of the Municipal home committee of the city council, headed by Ald. F. S. Mundle, Major E. C. Armstrong, city relief officer, and J. A. Thompson, poor commissioner. Such a situation applies to all the work which the relief laborers have been engaged in.

While the cost of living has gone up noticeably those on relief are forced to live at the low wage level with the result that their condition is gradually getting worse instead of better.

The meeting this morning was called because of the fact that today ends the government's contribution to direct relief in the province. It is not known yet whether the city council here will carry on direct relief to a later date than today.

At the meeting Major Armstrong stated that at the present time there are a number of families on relief who may be forced to go to the Municipal Home, because of the fact that (Continued on Page Five)

Quay (and Boulevard)

One doesn't wish to disturb the grand old British tradition of precedent but it does seem that something could be done to relieve the monotony of calling, all or nearly all, thoroughfares, ways, streets, boulevards, avenues and passages simply "streets." The custom was good enough for our ancestors, you might say, and it's good enough for us. Yes, yes. Agreed. Don't misunderstand. But a picturesque touch might be added. Take Campbell Street for instance. Perhaps ships lay up there to take or discharge cargoes or once did. Perhaps not. It doesn't matter. Call it Campbell Quay. Or just The Quay.

The streets southwest of Brunswick and parallel to it could be settled for as a job lot as avenues. Waterloo Row is well enough as it is. Boulevard would do for Brunswick. How much more mouth-filling and satisfying Brunswick Boulevard is than Brunswick Street. What if there were never any fortifications along there or if it isn't very wide? Who'll quibble?

Two Ways From the Jack
Coming to King and Queen the terms way and place suggest themselves. King's Way and Queen's Place. Not so. Can't be done. Why? Because there's a woman in the case. Here's the way to remember the different designations in one easy lesson: The queen had her way and put the king in his place. Hence, Queen's Way and King's Place. Fair enough.

The cross streets will have to remain as such for the time being and the hills go on in the same old way until somebody makes mounts out of them. There should be a parkway or two and whoever wants to cap break a bottle of champagne on a convenient telephone pole and launch one.

Grand Falls
The squares remain. Some cities have a custom of naming them after departed civic officials or well-known statesmen. Queen Square is thrown to the mercy of the populace. As for Phoenix Square, site of trade and barter, where water is falling endlessly and is lost to the people forever, can anyone think of a more fitting name than Baxter Plaza?

Do Girls Read Advertisements?

Many a descendant of Jeremiah, the prophet of lamentation, with a sad shake of his head and a worried expression, have advised us that it is a waste of money to advertise with the expectation that such ads are read by girls 16, 17 or 18 years of age.

Of course it is well for us all to remember that "doubt is the vestibule which all must pass before they enter the temple of wisdom." When we are in doubt and puzzle out the truth by our own exertions, we have gained something that will stay by us and will serve us in the future.

Being anxious to ascertain if girls ever read advertisements we advertised in the columns of this paper an offer of six teaspoons, "Edwardian" pattern, made by Wm. Rogers and Son, to be given away FREE to 30 young ladies 16, 17 or 18 years old. All we asked them to do was to print their name on a piece of paper and take it to our store. We know NOW that girls do read advertisements. Because hundreds of girls have taken advantage of this free silverware offer, made in connection with the celebration of our Thirtieth Anniversary as Home Furnishers. The 30 lucky winners will be notified so they can call for their teaspoons.
