Olympian Intoxication

Yes, Olympians do get intoxicated—and did. Miss Dorothy Poynton Hill, Olympic platform diving champion who has just returned from Berlin claims that she saw many Olympic officials intoxicated on the streets of Berlin. Mrs. Hill, who is likely to turn professional, expressed the opinion that the case of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, who was dropped from the American team "could have been handled a little more tactfully."

The far-flung chain system of the St. Louis Cardinals, which often has been regarded as a monopoly in baseball, seems to have proved a definite failure as far as the pennant hopes of the present Red Birds are concerned.

With a far-reaching chain of baseball farms, the stricken Cardinals seem helpless to do anything about their present plight and their expected failure in the National League can be compared only to the flop of our own diamond-studded Red Sox.

Branch Rickey, a baseball genius, who established this chain of baseball developing bases, sits back in his swivel chair in the Cards' front office, in deep thought. He is unable to explain the failure of the Cards, who usually hit their high speed through the pennant stretch, yet there seems little that he or anybody else can do about it.

And while the Cardinals, who were installed prime pennant favorites at the start of the season, and who seemed destined to run true to dope until a few weeks ago, aren't exactly beaten yet, it will require nothing but a miracle comeback for the club to fight its way back there now, in the face of the brilliant winning streak of the Giants, as well as the desperate comeback of the Chicago Cubs.

Hubbell Beat Dizzy Dean, 2-1

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—New York Giants wound up their most successful Western invasion in years at St. Louis with a 2-1 victory over Cardinals in a pitching thriller that saw Carl Hubbell best "Dizzy" Dean both from the mound and at bat.

Aided by the stickwork of Gus Mancuso and Dick Bartell, who had a big hand in both New York runs, the lean portlander stopped the "Gas House Gang" with four hits to boost the Giants' National League lead to four full games as they returned to the Polo Grounds.

LOU AMBERS BEAT CANZONERI

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Tony Canzoneri, battle-scarred little idol of Metropolitan fight fans, lost the world lightweight championship tonight to his one-time sparring partner, Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., in a 15-round match witnessed by near capacity crowd of 18,026 fans in this sports palace.

Ambers, scaling 134 1-4 gained a decisive victory over the titleholder who weighed 135.

Reversing the outcome of their title fight a year ago, the light-hitting but aggressive "Herkimer Hurricane" carried the fight to Canzoneri from the outset, turned back two spirited rallies by the titleholder, and won by a wide margin on points in a match that produced no knockdowns and few fireworks.

HE FORSAKES TENNIS FOR SKATING PLAN

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—Bill O'Brien, note promoter of professional tennis, is thinking of taking up figure skating as a winter attraction, and no doubt intends to bring his as yet unformed troupe to the Forum, judging from a letter which general manager Thomas Gorman has received from him.

Mr. O'Brien is making intimate and detailed enquiries about where the star skaters are to be found.

Champlain Provencher, hon. secretary, and officials of the Canadian Amateur Skating Association, and particularly the figure skating section thereof, do not seem very pleased with his activities, but will not make any official statement regarding the situation.

Joe "Out of His Head" When He Hit Schmeling

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Joe Louis "was out of his head at the time" he struck Max Schmeling a low blow in their fight last June, John Roxborough, co-manager of the Negro heavyweight, said yesterday.

"Jack Blackburn, Joe's trainer," Roxborough said, "is the only one who ever talks to him in his corner. Jack said that Joe didn't hear a thing he told him during the Schmeling fight."

"The charge that Joe was instructed to foul is absurd. Why, I went into Schmeling's dressing room after the fight and apologized for the blow. Joe later apologized to Max."

"Schmeling told me it didn't hurt him a bit and that he realized Joe didn't know what he was doing or how he was hitting. He told me he knew that Joe was out of his head and couldn't control his blows."

F'TON GOLFERS LOST 10 TO 7 TO HOULTON, ME.

New Record in Small Black Bass

(Special To The Daily Mail)
FRENCH RIVER, Ont., Sept. 3.—L. T. Melendy, and Harry Hull, keen sportsmen from Lakewood, Ohio, have established a new record in small-mouth black bass, with one seven pound beauty, one of six pounds, one of 5 1/2, one of 5 1/2, and two of four pounds.

Holidaying at the French River bungalow camp, these two sportsmen, under the guidance of Jack Schell, captured the fighting beauties in the North Channel of the French river. A seven-pounder, a fish of exceptional size and fighting fury, is being mounted, and will grace Mr. Melendy's study in Lakewood.

AT FOREST HILLS

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 3.—The tennis giants marched into the second round of the United States men's and women's tennis singles championships today without a single protest from the little fellows.

Everything went exactly as was expected; Fred Perry, the English favorite, clowned through a 6-0, 6-0, 6-2 victory over Alfred Jarvis of Tenafly, N. J.; Helen Jacobs was mercilessly consistent in winning two love sets in 18 minutes from Esther Edwards of Bridgeport, Conn.; Don Budge, the American hope from Oakland, Calif., disposed of George Seewang of Jackson Heights, L. I., 6-0, 6-1, 6-0; and Kay Stammers, the little English miss, was as pretty and efficient as ever in beating Grace Surber of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

George Leclerc of Ottawa, the only one of Canada's three bidders for the men championship called upon to unsheathe his racket in the opening firing, went down before the stylish play of Gardner Mulloy of Miami.

SPORT JOTTINGS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Prosperity note: Purdue's advance football ticket sales have been running 300 per cent ahead of last season, Jimmy Bradlock is getting well fast in the south . . . Joe McCarthy looks like a cat who has swallowed a whole canary farm these days. There may be legal reactions to Max Schmeling's printed statements that Joe Louis hit him low in their June fight . . .

In Chicago, Julian Black, one of the Bomber's managers, has been talking to his lawyers . . . Experts estimate the absence of Helen Willis Moody from the United States tennis tournament will cost the gate $50,000 . . . Which is a lot of dough in our book.

Big town goings on: Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, dashing hatless up Lexington avenue to buy copies of evening papers containing the early scores . . . When he saw 'em, he frowned and went on . . . Lew Tandler at 49th and Broadway telling a handful of customers the Joe Louis-Altott bout in Philly September 22 will outdraw the Louis-Sharkey go—which grossed about $150,000. George Perry, Yankee social secretary, telling the reporters he'll wed a former follies beauty if the Yankees win the pennant . . . Haw! . . . Not much chance for either one to lose there.

This department is one year old today . . . and thanks to all the boys who've helped to keep it going . . . Too bad the McPherson Oilers and the Hollywood Universals will bust up . . . They're the joint combination which won the Olympic basketball championship, you remember . . . In recognition of this the boys have received so many attractive offers they have decided to cash in . . . The professional urge seems to be catching . . . Dorothy Poynton Hill has followed Jesse Owens' lead and is going out for what it takes . . . Reports say Alice Arden, the high jumper and one of the best lookers on the American Olympic team, and Betty Robinson, of the winning 400-metre relay team, also have their ears cocked for offers . . .

Add prosperity notes: During the Giant series in Chicago, householders near Wrigley Field sold chert roof, porch and window seats at fifty cents a throw—and did a landside business . . . The Dodgers to a man believe the Cardinals are tired and "definitely" through and that a five cent world series can't miss them . . . Max Baer continues to bowl over the Palookas in his one night stands . . . Joe Cronin will be back at the helm of the Red Sox next season regardless of who says no—Except Tom Yawkey, who isn't about to . . . If the Sox have disappointed, it isn't Cronin's fault, and Yawkey knows it.

OF HOWIE MORENZ AND A COMEBACK

O'Meara Says Old Glamour Guy is Bubbling Over With Enthusiasm.

(By "Baz" O'Meara)

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—The old glamour guy was bubbling over with enthusiasm. He reminded of a soldier who had just been given an unexpected leave to Paris or London. A broad smile broke over the usually grim countenance.

Friends strolled up to shake his hands. "Glad to see you back" they chorused. The old glamorous boy still looked a trifle sheepish, grinned some more.

"You have to be contented to play your best. It is half the battle I guess" he explained.

"That and good condition," said the man with him looking with appreciating eye at the well packed figure.

"Anyway it is off to the mountains to find out if old number seven has the old stuff" said the old figure moving briskly betward.

It was at the race track and Howie Morenz, the erstwhile old glamour guy was walking around with springtime in his heart. He had come back home. To try and recapture some of the zip of his vanished youth.

In the old bleu blanc rouge colors, the apparel of his great days. Before he became a Black Hawk, a Ranger, a nomad on the hockey highways with a probable windup in a minor league role.

Few get such a chance because usually when you start wandering around athletically from pillar to post, you wind up in the alleyway, unless you beat the rap by retirement.

For Howie is it a big chance. That is strictly up to him. He knows that for three years there has been little of the zip of his old stick breaker, only flashes of his old whizz.

So he will go to the mountains. To do road work, row, take exercise the hard way; under the guidance of an old past master at physical renovation.

He could not let the occasion pass without tossing a bouquet to Lester Patrick. He was philosophic about Chicago. He hoped Canadiens would get Marty Burke, his old room mate, but is afraid they will not be able to land him.

"If you cannot play when you are contented then I guess you are all washed up. But I think there is a lot of life in the old dog yet" he predicted. Which at least is a fine frame of mind to start out with.

THE RIFT IN AMERICAN LABOR

Los Angeles Times: The rise of Lewis and the decline of Green indicate a deep-seated dissatisfaction with craft-unionism as a vehicle for "organizing" American industry.

With everything in his favor, including the solid backing of the National administration and the enactment of every law he asked for to further his programme, Green has made almost no progress in increasing A. F. of L. net membership in the past three years.

The federation numbered about 6 per cent of the country's wage-earners before the New Deal started; it still numbers about 6 per cent. Unionism generally seems to be veering to the opinion that it is time for a change in methods if not in leadership, that a little may be made while the Washington sun is still shining.

BATHURST MINK RANCHERS PREDICT BRIGHT FUTURE

SUMMERSIDE, P. E. I., Sept. 4.—Summerside fox-ranchers today were encouraged to try a hand at mink farming by three Bathurst, N. B. mink farmers—P. S. Andrew, Gilbert Landry and Hubert Payne—who predicted a bright future for the industry.

The New Brunswick men have been raising mink as a hobby for the past ten years and they keep 250 of the little furbearing animals.

Their domesticated mink have been bred scientifically from native northern New Brunswick mink stock.

The Bathurst ranchers claimed there was increasing demand for mink pelts on the fur markets and the animals were raised with comparatively little trouble. Most important, they said, was proper sanitation in the farms.

More than 5,000 mink had been raised in the vicinity of Bathurst last year, they stated.—Moncton Times.
