OUT COMES THE PICNIC KIT AGAIN— THE OUTDOOR LUNCH SEASON IS HERE

June 1 marks the opening of the picnic season. Perhaps you have cheated and taken a sandwich lunch out-of-doors on one of the few warm days of this so-called spring. By next Saturday, however, we hope to recognize the season.

If you are planning a day in the open, first of all bring out the picnic kit, which may need to be checked to see if the full quota of knives, forks, spoons and cups survived the hard usage of last summer. Salt and pepper shakers must be filled. The sugar box replenished. The supply of paper plates and napkins should be renewed and the coffee pot and the frying pan or broiler will be the better for a good scouring. A box of kitchen matches and a bundle of newspapers should not be forgotten for the use of the fire builder. If, by the way, you lack a specialist on this art in the family, it is a very good idea to choose a guest who is noted for his ability to coax a fire to burn even when wood is wet and green. Otherwise bricks of concentrated charcoal, sawdust logs or charcoal itself will furnish first aid to the amateur fire builder.

Now about the food for the picnic. Even when the meal is to be cooked on the spot, a few things may be prepared ahead. Tomatoes and cucumbers may be pared and sliced and put in a glass jar ready for the addition of sliced onions and French dressing. Fruit for dessert may be washed, or a cake, cookies, doughnuts or even a pie may be made ready. Perhaps you would like to boil some potatoes for frying over the fire or for creaming beforehand, ready for reheating at lunch time. If you are an expert at fire making and tending successfully among the coals. Too often, however, potatoes come out of the picnic fire burned on one side and raw on the other.

For your main hot dish you may choose for broiling frankfurters, bacon, sliced ham, steak, chops or chicken. Meat cakes with rings of onion, dipped in butter, on the side also can be done over the coals. Instead of taking the responsibility of the cooking yourself, you may furnish each person with squares of meat, slices of onion and tomatoes, which, impaled on green sticks, are broiled together over the fire.

Perhaps you have some specialty of your own which you particularly like on picnics. The man of the family in one instance of which I know likes nothing better than to prepare with his own hands a hearty New England clam chowder for picnic fare. Another has an interesting combination of meat, tomatoes, onion, garlic and spaghetti, seasoned with a variety of herbs and sprinkled with sliced stuffed olives as a final touch. Scrambled eggs with deviled ham or with minced bacon and kippered herring with cream are other quick and easy suggestions for main dishes at an outdoor meal.

There may be rolls of toast made at the last minute over the coals, or there may be corn bread which has been left in its baking pan so that it may be reheated before it is buttered. At one famous picnic in Maine at which I was a guest, biscuits were actually mixed and baked in a tin oven which was part of the kit. This was a performance by an expert. Most of us are content to be merely amateurs.

BRIDE'S FAMILY PROVIDE RECEPTION AND TROUSSEAU

The reception follows the ceremony immediately at a home wedding. When the ceremony is in church, the reception begins at least a half hour afterwards.

Wedding receptions should be held in the home of the bride or in the home of some relative of the bride. Under no conditions should the groom or his family pay for the wedding reception, nor should the groom pay for the bride's wedding clothes or trousseau.

The menu for the reception may be simple, elaborate or in-between. Here again, the amount of money that can be spent, settles the question. It may be prepared by a caterer or by the family of the bride.

Wedding refreshments are served either on the buffet or at table. The buffet service is the one generally favored. In this case, only one table is used. It should be set beautifully with the wedding cake in the centre. There should, of course, be flowers on the table. Handsome candlesticks are also very decorative. Piles of plates and napkins and rows of spoons and forks and knives, should be arranged at convenient places. Nuts, little cakes, etc., should be on the table. Coffee, tea, chocolate and punch, if served, are placed on small side tables.

The bride and groom are the last to be served. They must wait until they have received the good wishes of all the guests before they leave the reception line.

GERMANS RUSH TO BUY NON-PERISHABLE GOODS

BERLIN, Germany, June 2—An extraordinary rush of Berlin inhabitants to buy shoes, textiles and other non-perishable articles which can easily be hoarded, has been reported to the Berlin Chamber of Commerce by local business establishments.

This boom, which grows out of uncertainty regarding the future course of mark, following the controversy between Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, and the Nazi party, has seriously reduced stocks.

SUPPLIES IN POST OFFICE ARE SAVED

Fire of Unknown Origin
Newcastle Creek

NEWCASTLE CREEK, Queens Co. June 2—A fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Lee Barton here Saturday afternoon. The fire, which started in the second storey of the building, was first noticed about 1.30 o'clock, but it had made such headway that the building could not be saved. Mr. Barton is postmaster of this community and the post office was located on the ground floor.

Fire-fighters and equipment were rushed from the plant of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission and a constant stream of water was poured on buildings nearby to keep the flames from spreading. All the furniture and post office supplies were saved. At the time the fire was first noticed, Mrs. Barton and her two children were in the kitchen on the ground floor but they got out safely. It was believed that the building was partly covered by insurance.

MACADAMIZED ROADS AND THEIR INVENTOR

"The civilized world has become familiar with 'macadamized' roads, but it is doubtful if many of the millions who use them know the origin of the term," observes the Toronto Mail & Empire. The British Institution of Municipal and County Engineers are taking active steps to commemorate the centenary of the death of that pioneer of roadmaking, John Loudon MacAdam, which occurred at Moffat on November 26, 1836.

MacAdam was born in 1756, his father being a local landowner and banker in Ayr. At the age of fourteen he joined an uncle in business in New York, and did not return to Scotland until 1783. Thereafter for fifteen years he served as Deputy Lieutenant for the County of Ayr, and devoted much attention to the improvement of the local roads. Subsequently he removed to Falmouth, where he was concerned in the victualling of the navy, though he also made a hobby of studying road conditions in that part of England. In 1816 he was appointed surveyor of the Bristol Turnpike Trust, and a year later demonstrated his system of road construction in London. This system was based upon the principle that, with proper drainage, broken stone of suitable size can be laid on the natural subsoil, thus eliminating the expensive stone-paved foundation that had previously been considered necessary.

FLOOD OF JAP JACKS FEARED

LONDON, England, June 2—A deputation of flag-makers from Leeds urged the Government last night to increase the tariff on Union Jacks imported from Japan. They said they feared the country would be flooded with British flags "made in Japan" at the Coronation next year unless the Government took action.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK

• FRUIT GROWING •

APPLE GROWER: "Hello, Peter, how's the grape business?"

GRAPE GROWER: "Pretty fair, Jonathan. How are apples?"

APPLE GROWER: "Likewise. My young trees are growing like weeds and the old ones are in fine condition and bearing well again. And my financial side is good, too. I've paid off my loan for seedlings at the Bank of Montreal and the Bank has agreed to help me market my crop."

GRAPE GROWER: "So you're another customer of that bank. I'm not surprised, though, the way it takes care of us. I don't have to worry about credit. The Bank knows I always keep my agreements with them. You will remember, Jonathan, that I enlarged my vineyard last year, and the Bank financed my new posts and wire."

Some of the Bank's services used by Fruit Growers: Business chequing accounts; savings accounts; trade and credit information, domestic and foreign; closest rates on American and all classes of foreign exchange; special wire facilities to speed transactions; safekeeping of securities; safety deposit boxes; money orders; letters of credit; travellers cheques; banking by mail.

Why Have Dangerous Chimney Fires?

You very rarely, if ever, hear of a chimney setting fire to a building if constructed with Ryan's Cherry Red Brick, made expressly for chimneys. If you will examine the brick of a building that has been destroyed by fire, if the brick fly to pieces when hit with a hammer or if they require a cold chisel to break, then you can realize the cause of the loss of your building, which is the result of using ordinary brick in your chimney, and when you rebuild don't build to burn—don't tempt the flames—don't let the contractor put one over on you by using ordinary brick in your chimney just because they probably look better and he does not know one brick from another. Build for the future—demand Ryan's Cherry Red Chimney Brick, made expressly for chimneys.
