ELEVATOR BOY SCORNS DOUBTFUL SOCIETIES

OTTAWA, May 18—There are no Aptohes or Splyegtohes in Ottawa's Parliamentary circles, and they are not needed. Take that from Charlie Bridge.

Charlie, veteran elevator operator of the House of Commons, was taken aback when confronted with a Washington despatch saying societies by those names were receiving official notice in the U. S. capital.

Aptohes, the "Association for the Prevention of Taking Off Hats in Elevators," and Splyegtohes, the "Society for the Protection of Ladies Whose Eyes Have Been Blacked by Gentlemen Taking Off Hats in Elevators," would find no adherents here thought Charlie.

In the first place, he said, members of parliament "always take their hats off when a lady is on the elevator." They have been doing it for twelve years that he knows of. "I'm the only one that keeps his hat on, and that's part of my official duty."

He elaborated: "They have their hats on when they get on the elevator but, just as soon as it stops for a secretary or another lady, off come the hats, quick as a wink. I don't think our members would like those societies, they are all such good-mannered men. They always say 'Thank you' to me when they get off." Furthermore, Charlie said he has never heard of a lady on a Parliamentary elevator being smacked in the eye by a carelessly doffed hat.

When in possession of his senses and when in good condition, a boxer might be able to evade the Louis attack for quite some time, but according to the law of averages the "Brown Bomber" will hit anybody eventually, and when he does it is not reasonable to suppose that his opponent will be in good condition or in full control of his senses. Then will come the payoff.

Renaud, have recently arrived from Halifax to reside in the Capital. The tea table was most artistically arranged with mixed snapdragons, and tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. C. G. Power and Mrs. O. S. Crockett, assisted by Mrs. F. M. Benson, Mrs. Russell O'Dell, Miss Dorothy Crerar, Mrs. C. R. Scott and Mrs. A. H. Hull.

St. Paul's Y.P.S.

The St. Paul's Young People's Society held their last meeting of the season last evening in the Fraser Memorial Hall. There was a very large attendance and the entire programme was enjoyed. The president Rhoda Young was in charge of the meeting assisted by Emerson Skene. A very lovely duet was sung by Ruby Miller and Donald Horncastle. The president then delivered a very fitting farewell address during which she stated that St. Paul's had come well above the average this season. Mr. Telford then gave a very lovely address to the society. Two delightful solos were given by Miss Netta MacMillan. A singsong consisting of some of the old familiar songs and rounds was conducted by Mr. Telford. A contest entitled "The Art Gallery" was played. Mr. and Mrs. Abrant then conducted several folk dances and games after which refreshments were served. The recreational period was then continued. The singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought this most enjoyable function to a close.

DRIVERS SAID LESS CAREFUL IF INSURED

PHILADELPHIA, May 18—J. H. Bickell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles for the Province of Ontario, said today the financial responsibility plan is removing irresponsible drivers from its highways.

He recommended adoption elsewhere of the plan in an address at the convention of the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators. Bickell said the plan was adopted in Ontario after a study disclosed its advantages over the system of compulsory legislation.

Rickell said that under the insurance plan the knowledge that he is insured tends to make the driver more careless. He said that claims in Massachusetts have increased since the law became operative.

"GOOD NIGHT, MOTHER"

A reader asked if we would write words of praise of a radio singer who at the end of every broadcast says:

"Good night, mother!"
"He wouldn't be doing it for audience effect?" we inquired, we being suspicious old meanies.
"Oh, no!" expostulated our friend, "why do you say that? Can't you picture his old mother somewhere far off, waiting for that one night a week to hear her son's voice say 'good night'?"
So we said, "Aren't there any telephones he could use?"

However, there are always old spoilsports like us taking the joy out of life. If we are wrong, you'll tell us.

ROME, May 18—Italian authorities announced today they had released Dr. Anton Pavellch, the alleged leader of the Creation terrorist organization, the Ustashi. Dr. Pavellch was arrested in Turin October 18, 1934, a few days after the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia in Marseilles.
