N. B. HATCHING SEASON WAS SUCCESSFUL ONE

Season Practically Over With Reports Favorable

The hatching season in New Brunswick is practically over and from reports received from various parts of the province, the demand for hatching eggs and day-old chicks has been much greater than in former years. Those who have taken up poultry raising seriously for the first time, should acquaint themselves with the most approved methods of feeding and rearing chicks. Chickens that have been properly developed through out the summer months will make the most profitable producers.

The 28th week of the New Brunswick Egg Laying Contest conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station here, was concluded on Thursday, May 14th, with a production of 1,302 eggs and 1,386.0 points. This is an average production for the week of 77.5 percent. The Barred Rocks owned by the Experimental Station, Fredericton, led in production for the week with 66 eggs and 73.8 points. The Barred Rocks owned by the Experimental Station, Fredericton, were also in second position for the week with 65 eggs and 68.8 points. The Barred Rocks owned by Karl W. Smith, Prince William, were in third position for the week with 62 eggs and 68.2 points.

The pen of Barred Rocks owned by Lloyd Wood, Harvey, is the leading pen to date with 1,250 eggs and 1,377.8 points.

The Barred Rocks owned by Arthur Graham, Hoyt Station, are in second position to date with 1,337 eggs and 1,360.0 points.

The Barred Rocks owned by Karl W. Smith, Prince William, are in third position to date with 1,270 eggs and 1,334.1 points.

Barred Rock Hen No. 1 owned by Arthur Graham, Hoyt Station, is the leading hen to date with 168 eggs and 200.3 points. Barred Rock Hen No. 5 owned by Lloyd Wood, Harvey, is in second position to date with 161 eggs and 181.3 points. Barred Rock Hen No. 7, owned by Miss Helen Hanson, Durham Bridge, is in third position to date with 153 eggs and 175.5 points.

Close to and beneath the liver lies the gall-bladder, a thin-walled sac which holds the bile secreted by the liver. The act of eating causes the gall-bladder to contract; this discharges the bile into the intestines where it plays an important part in digestion.

Diseases of the gall-bladder is the most common cause of what are thought to be stomach disorders in adult life. The gall-bladder is a part of the digestive tract, and diseases anywhere along this tract may be responsible for infections of the gall-bladder.

Infection of the gall-bladder is often the last evidence of the pneumonia, influenza or typhoid fever from which the patient has recovered. The gall-bladder appears to be particularly vulnerable to the bacteria responsible for a wide variety of infectious diseases.

A woman who is "fair, fat and forty" is the most likely person to suffer from gall-bladder disease. The disease is found most frequently among pregnant women, nursing mothers and women who are overweight, although it is not restricted to these categories of individuals.

The first symptom noted may be a sense of fullness and distension of the abdomen, with a desire to belch gas. Headache and constipation are fairly common, and the patient is not infrequently irritable and nervous.

Stones form in the gall-bladder and, once formed, they tend to increase in size; if they become too large to escape from the gall-bladder through the duct that leads into the intestines, trouble may follow.

Many persons with gall-stones are unaware of their presence as they cause no discomfort. Symptoms result from irritation and inflammation caused by the stones. When there is severe pain with nausea and vomiting, this usually means that one of the larger stones is caught in the outlet duct and is unable to escape.

The most common cause of jaundice is gall-bladder disease; it is due to a blocking of the outlet duct, following which the bile is absorbed. Treatment, in some cases, may be largely through diet and hygienic

HOARE MAY TAKE ADMIRALTY POST IN BALDWIN GOV'T

Budget Leak Inquiry Strengthens Reports of Shake-up—Interest is Keen—Baldwin Hopes U.S., Germany, Japan Will Join New League.

LONDON, England, May 17—Premier Stanley Baldwin's Cabinet, involved simultaneously in a Budget 'leakage' inquiry and a League of Nations controversy, was reported in some British political quarters yesterday to be in for important changes.

The Press indicated that Viscount Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty was about to retire, possibly to be replaced by Sir Samuel Hoare, and also hinted cautiously: "other changes are believed to be imminent". Rumors of an impending Cabinet shake-up circulated further as the judicial tribunal, investigating reports that an escape of Budget secrets caused a rush for insurance against increased income and tea taxes, adjourned its inquiry to study bank books and investment records of the Colonial Secretary, Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, until Monday.

The one-time locomotive greaser now a veteran Minister, agreed to submit his financial records to the Commission.

The doorkeeper of the Colonial Office told the Commission of Inquiry that Sir Alfred Butt, wealthy member of Parliament, theatre and race horse owner, and one of those who insured against the tax increase, called to see Thomas, "after the Easter recess".

The witness, William M. Robinson said there was "very definitely not" any discussion between the two men because Thomas was "frightfully busy, and could not see him then".

The doorkeeper, who is on duty on alternate days, said the visit "didn't last more than about a minute or a minute and a half at most".

Sir Maurice Hankey, Secretary to the Cabinet, testified earlier in the inquiry that Chancellor of the Exchequer Right Hon. Neville Chamberlain, informed the Cabinet April 9 of the proposals for the new Budget which was presented to the Commons after the Easter holiday.

Thomas told the inquiry yesterday that his friend Butt "invariably comes either into my room or into the office. To be quite frank, he invariably comes and tells me when he thinks he is going to win a horse race".

Later the question of insurance against the two pence boost in the tea tax was considered by the inquiry.

Evidence was given that Kenneth Butt, son of Sir Alfred, approached an insurance broker on April 21 one hour before the budget speech was delivered by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in Commons and placed £75 (about $375) in insurance at a rate of 25 guineas per 100 against a rise in the tea tax. (A guinea is worth approximately $5 slightly more than a pound).

It was brought out in evidence also that a similar risk to cover £450 was taken out in another quarter.

DETECTIVE AND LAWYER INDICTED FOR EXTORTION

NEW YORK, May 16—Two men were indicted today on charges of extorting money from Alfred E. Smith, jr., son of the former Governor of New York State.

The indictments were returned by a grand jury that heard testimony from Smith and four other witnesses, including Catherine Marie Pavlick, a blue-eyed blonde from Queens Borough, New York.

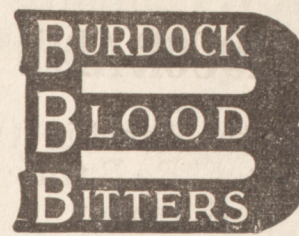

One of the defendants, Max D. Krone, 33, a private detective, was arrested immediately. The others, A. Henry Ross, Brooklyn, notified the district-attorney's office through an intermediary that he would surrender.

Krone and Ross were charged jointly in one indictment with "the extorliving; in other cases, however, surgical care is required. The decision must be made, in each case, by the doctor who knows the condition of the patient concerned.

Most of us will go through life unaware of the presence of our gall-bladders. We have means at our disposal to keep the gall-bladder functioning in a healthy manner; these are: a balanced diet that does not contain an excess of fats, regular meals, guarding against overweight, regular moderate exercise, and good convalescent care following any infectious condition.

Those Splitting Headaches A Symptom of Disease

The cause of headache is the accumulation of poisonous matter in the blood which spreads with it, every moment, to all parts of the body.

This poisoning of the system must be cleared up before you can get rid of the headache, which is a symptom of an unhealthy condition of the body.

Remove the poisonous matter from the blood with Burdock Blood Bitters, then, "No more headaches".

A LITTLE ANIMAL THAT FEARS NO ONE

The headlights suddenly showed us a small black animal moving along in front of us up the trail.

The driver, a British Columbia cattleman to whose ranch we were going jammed on his brakes. "That's a skunk," he said. "Don't want to run into that."

The animal was about the size of a cat, only more thickset, and had a big bushy tail with a white underside. There was a white patch on the crown of his head also, breaking into two streaks that ran back one on each side to the tail. The skunk was not difficult to observe for it strolled along in a leisurely fashion, seeming to take no notice of us.

"Why not drive close and scare it out of the way?" I suggested. But my companion only laughed. "Nothing will scare a skunk, he said, a skunk never learns fear, no other animal dares attack it. Its anal glands manufacture a yellow juice with a terrible bad smell, and if any lynx or wolf got too hungry the skunk would turn its anal pouches right into the face of its attacker. A wolf's life wouldn't be worth living for a couple of weeks if it got any of this juice on its coat, for the smell clings and is so strong that it can be detected a mile away. If you got any of that juice on your clothes you'd have to hang them in smoke for several days before you'd like to wear them."

"As a skunk always wins a fight it never runs away. I once killed one with an auto because it would not get out of the road, but it sprayed my auto with juice before it died so that I had to jump down and walk. I couldn't sit in that auto again for more than a week though I didn't spare washing."

"If," I put in, "skunks are so secure from attack, they must be able to increase at a great rate." "Well," he replied, "a skunk raises from six to ten in a season, but it's hard to judge for they stay in their burrows all day and only come out at night. Trapping, or course, must keep the numbers down, for a trap isn't scared of a skunk."

"How is the smell got out of a pelt that's made up into furs for women?"

"The pelt does not smell," he answered. "It's only the juice that smells. I know a guy in Okanagan Valley who has a tame skunk. He caught it young and trained it up, and it's one of the cleanest pets you could have. And it eats beetles and grasshoppers and mice."

"Are skunks harmful to stock or crops?" I asked. "Well," he replied, "sometimes they eat chickens eggs, but ordinarily they live on insects with mice, frogs and carrion. You haven't any skunks in the old country," he went on, "there aren't any outside of America. What you've just seen is a common skunk, and belongs north of Mexico. There are other kinds in Mexico and south of there. One kind has a bigger tail than the common skunk and another kind has a smaller body. But I guess our friend's quiet."

The trail stretched ahead deserted, and my companion started his engine and moved cautiously forward, not daring to accelerate until well past where he thought the skunk might lurk. Man has paid homage to the dreadnought of the wild—Home Magazine.

WORD-COINERS ARE PROUD OF "HUMIDAURICULATE"

NEW YORK, May 18—The Education Committee of the National Puzzlers' League crashed through today with nine new words which it will offer the league's semi-annual convention in Boston Sept. 5.

One which they are proud of is "humidauriculate"—meaning not dry behind the ears.

The others:

Ismer—a person given to isms, a brain truster.

Ismeriat—an ismer who seeks to convert his neighbor.

Poorich—both poor and rich.

Zag—a line at an angle to a zig; both lines necessary to make a zigzag.

Compah—a cheer as expressed by a scholar who is not a gentleman.

Entgophile—one who loves his work.

Logoklept—a word-snatcher, a plagiarist.

tion of $1,500 on or about May 29 1932, on threat to expose and impute to Alfred E. Smith, jr., a disgrace.

A second indictment charged Krone alone with extorting $10,000 in promissory notes on February 21, 1935, by the same means.

Miss Pavlick was granted immunity in return for her testimony.

DUST - FREE ROADS PLANNED AT BANFF

OTTAWA, May 16—Construction of dust-free roads from the American boundary to the Banff National Park, is being considered. Interior Minister Crerar told the House of Commons today.

The Dominion has spent $10,000,000 on the park, and last year only 4,800 American cars visited it. The Minister said many Americans turned back after a few miles of the dusty, gravel roads.

It was a question of deciding what roads to resurface, Conservative Leader Bennett said. If one road was selected, all must be. One of the difficulties of the park was the fact that Jasper Highway was not completed, nor the road to the Coast. Tourists must return by the road they entered.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon., East Kootenay), put in a word for parks in British Columbia. He believed it should be a national policy to open national parks to American tourists. The parks were there if they only could be reached.
