EDEN JEERED ANNOUNCING END OF SANCTIONS WHICH NO ONE WANTED TO HAVE ENFORCED

Will Support Movement To Lift Italian Sanctions

Canadian Premier Makes Announcement in House Yesterday

Announced Several Days Ago

Canada Lines Up With United Kingdom in Foreign Policy

OTTAWA, June 19—Canada lined up with the United Kingdom yesterday in supporting the movement to lift economic sanctions against Italy. Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced in the House of Commons Canadian delegates to the September meeting of the League would be instructed to press for lifting of sanctions.

The prime minister made his statement a few hours after Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign secretary, told the United Kingdom Parliament the British Government would lead the movement to lift sanctions. He made it plain, however, the Canadian government came to its decision independent of the British viewpoint and several days ago.

At the same time, Mr. King said, Canada would continue to support the League of Nations in its efforts to promote collective security and peace. It would be folly to disorganize it.

To Expand Legations

Canada would give not work alone through the League to promote good will and understanding, Mr. King said. When circumstances permitted, legations would be extended in foreign and Empire countries.

(Canada now has legations at Washington, Paris and Tokyo and a high commissioner at London. The prime minister did not say where new legations would be built but possibly Australia, South Africa and Argentina would be among the first).

It would be dangerous and futile to continue sanctions against Italy now that Ethiopia has been conquered and Haile Selassie put to flight, the prime minister said. It was the government's view there was no alternative to raising the economic bars against trade with Italy.

ITALY READY TO NEGOTIATE WHEN PENALTIES ARE ENDED

Also to Collaborate in Reform of League—Will Offer to Discuss European Settlement on Lines France Desires, and Naval Limitations.

LONDON, June 19—As soon as the League of Nations lifts sanctions, Italy will offer to negotiate for a European settlement on lines desired by France, will agree to consider proposals for naval limitations and a non-aggression pact to safeguard peace in the Mediterranean, will endeavor to reach an understanding with France and Britain as to their economic interests in Ethiopia and East Africa, and lastly, will collaborate in reform of the league.

In short, Italy will be prepared to resume her place in the Stresa front established in April, 1935, after Hitler introduced conscription into Germany. This Stresa front was based on defence of Austrian independence, a western Locarno air pact, and refusal to recognize unilateral repudiation of treaties.

An Inquiry Into Quebec Administration Says New Premier

QUEBEC, June 19—A royal commission will conduct a complete inquiry into the previous administration of Quebec province, Premier Godbout said last night in his first address as prime minister.

The commission will be "absolutely independent of the government," he declared, and people whom the inquiry revealed as being responsible for any abuses would be punished regardless of their position and station. The only instructions the commission would receive would be to bring to light all that has been done by the Quebec administration, regardless of whether these revelations affect or involve persons attached to the Liberal party.

Stop Signs

Yesterday a Massachusetts driver came in York Street and turned down Queen street in his car. He came at between fifteen and twenty miles per hour without making any stop at the Queen street intersection. He narrowly escaped running down several people, one an old lady crossing the street. Those who were on foot naturally expected that the man would see the "Stop" sign and stop. The man who is used to seeing red and green lights at street intersections, or else was used to seeing the long painted strip with "Stop" painted on the pavement across the road, was entirely innocent of any stop signs. Others from a distance will do the same thing and some day there will be an accident on this corner. Another place where there has been several accidents is at the corner of Brunswick and Regent streets. Brunswick street is a through street and strangers who visit here for the first time are unaware of this. They do not expect to see these white up-right signs at the corners and so do not look for them. In the smaller cities and towns in the United States and in many parts of Canada the system is to have a long strip painted across the street from curb to curb, and in the centre of the street is the word "STOP" in large white letters. No person could help but see this sign, and it is getting to be an almost standard sign. Of course the larger cities have lights, but we could not afford these. We might be able to afford the other scheme of a painted strip across the road. Even those people down in Saint John have these painted strips.

We understand that this is one of the things that comes under the jurisdiction of "that there" police commission. This being so we take off our hat and humbly suggest this improvement to that august body. Perhaps the Administration of Justice Committee of the City Council might also approach the police commission with sufficient humility and make the same suggestion. The police commission might really adopt the idea.

At any rate, under the present conditions there is liable to be an accident anytime and the stranger who is not posted in regard to our stop regulations should not be held responsible. It is up to us.

There might be some way of making our stop sign system known by inserting the information in our tourist literature or some other way.

Duplessis Says Gouin's Statements Are Unfair

MONTREAL, June 19—Maurice Duplessis, Quebec Conservative leader, last night characterized the statement of Paul Gouin, Action Libérale Nationale leader who split with the Conservative party, as "extremely unfair and for the most part contrary to the facts."

Mr. Duplessis said he wished to consult members of the last Legislative Assembly and supporters of the Liberal, Conservative and independent groups loyal to the union before giving a complete answer to the statement Mr. Gouin made in announcing the severing of relations between the insurgent Liberals and the Conservative party.

Italian Military Campaign Success, Says Eden

Germany, France and Great Britain Must Work For Peace

Sanctions Were a Failure

Action of Government Repugnant, But Best of Two Evils

ACTION LIBERALE NATIONALE WILL STRIKE FOR SELF

To Be Three Parties in Coming Quebec Election

MONTREAL, June 19—Quebec's coming election campaign will be a three-party fight.

Paul Gouin, leader of the insurgent group, Action Libérale Nationale, announced yesterday his party would enter the campaign free from the agreement made with the Conservative party in the election of last November when they united for the expressed purpose of defeating the Liberal regime of Louis A. Taschereau, in power for the last 16 years.

In a statement made public after a long caucus, the son of the late Sir Lomer Gouin, declared the Conservative leader, Maurice Duplessis, was "seeking to reconstitute the Conservative party," and had failed to respect an agreement which would "reserve" 60 of the 90 counties for the rebel group.

"The fact has got to be faced that sanctions did not realize the purpose for which they were imposed," Eden declared yesterday in the House of Commons. "The Italian military campaign succeeded. The capital and the most important part of Abyssinia is in Italian military occupation and no Abyssinian government survives in the Emperor's territory."

"That situation has to be faced. It is a situation which nothing but military sanctions from outside the country could possibly reverse. Is any country prepared to take such military action, or is any section of opinion in the country prepared to take such military action?"

Asserting collective security has failed, Mr. Baldwin said: "If possible, it shall not fail again.... I regard it as of first importance that Germany, France and ourselves should work for peace throughout all Europe, side by side."

"We as trustees of the people," he continued, "ought to remember if there is a war against this country nearer than the Mediterranean, they will pay for it on the first night with their lives. The first blow may come from the air."

"The part Germany can play for good or evil in Europe is immense."

Action Repugnant

Referring to the foreign secretary's announcement regarding sanctions, Prime Minister Baldwin said: "I do not think myself it is necessarily a mark of cowardice to take the action (Continued on Page Four)

Five Caught in Single Day — 500 - Pounder Battled for Nearly Three Hours — World Record, Set in Nova Scotia, Still Stands.

YARMOUTH, June 19—Fishing with rod and line off the coast of Nova Scotia a visiting sportsman landed 26 tuna last season and on the average the fish weighed 215 pounds each.

Any angler who wouldn't be satisfied with sport like that would be sure to want jam on his bread.

The fish were caught in Lobster Bay, Yarmouth county, and all told, as reported to the Dominion Department of Fisheries by its inspector on duty in that area, they weighed 5,590 pounds. The smallest was only a 91-pounder and was soon landed but his big brother weighed 500 pounds and didn't give up the right until 2 hours and 47 minutes after he had made the fatal mistake of grabbing at a hook.

Big as he was, however, the big fellow weighed less by 119 pounds than another member of his family which was taken by a second angler (Continued on Page Four)
