TURN THOSE ORANGES TO MARMALADE

Here are Directions for Making That Delicacy, to Be as Good as New Year's Resolutions.

If Santa Claus was as good to you as he was to me and brought you a box of oranges as well as one of grapefruit you will be thinking about making orange marmalade. Even if you're not so lucky as I was, your thoughts will turn to the making of this popular marmalade now that oranges and grapefruit are coming into the height of their season. Perhaps you will like a mixed marmalade which has a pleasantly bitter tang, given by the grapefruit or lemon and which is not unlike the imported products which are made with Seville oranges.

If you care more for flavor than you do for appearance you may prepare the fruits very quickly by putting them through the food grinder. A more attractive marmalade is made when the fruit is cut by hand. In any case, for the sake of flavor, fruit should be allowed to soak overnight before it is cooked. The length of time for the first cooking depends upon the tenderness of the rind of the fruit which you use. Sugar should not be added until the fruit is tender. The test which decides when the marmalade is ready to go into hot jars is the usual jelly criterion. Two drops should hang beside each other from the spoon which has been dipped into the syrup and held above the kettle for a moment. By the way, speaking of kettles, be sure that you use a heavy utensil through which heat will be distributed so evenly that there will be no "hot spot."

May your marmalade be as good as those New Year's resolutions which you will, perhaps, be making tonight when the clock strikes twelve and 1936 is ushered in Happy New Year!

Citrus Marmalade

- 1 grapefruit.
- 1 orange.
- 1 lemon.
- Water.
- Sugar.

Wipe fruit and slice very thin. Remove seeds of fruit and core of grapefruit. Measure and add three times the quantity of water. Let stand in dish overnight. Boil until the fruit is soft. Measure, add an equal amount of sugar and boil, stirring occasionally until the sirup jellies, about one hour. Pour into hot glasses and seal.

Marmalade Variations

- Use six oranges and two lemons.
- Use three grapefruits and two lemons.
- Add one and one-half cups crushed pineapple after fruit and sirup have been cooked fifteen minutes.
- To cooked fruit, add two cups cooked cranberries and an equal amount of sugar.

SATEEN PYJAMAS

Much too good looking to go unheralded are the new pajamas with black, brown or navy sateen trousers and a white shirt. It requires very little prophetic power to foresee for them a career of lounging. The trousers flare slightly from a pleat or two and an adjustable waist band helps to achieve a trim hipline. The blouse has a pleated front, short sleeves, becoming pointed collar and brown bow. They are meant primarily for sleeping in, but they won't stick to it. In misses' sizes.

BLOUSES COME IN SPRIGHTLY PRINTS

Spring, if you can believe the signs in printed blouses, is not far off. Months before the arrival of the first crocus that unofficially opens the season, colors and designs that are being foretold by the fashion seers are making their appearance in blouses to wear now.

In keeping with the coming vogue for gray is a blouse printed in mottled gray with a thin scattering of flame, yellow, and green flowers. New details making for soft, feminine dressiness are the inverted pleats adding fullness to the raglan sleeves and the twist of shirred fabric looped over the soft, round collar in front. So adaptable is the style that daughter can lend it to mother or vice versa. In sizes 36 to 46.

A far more vivid print in flame and violet toned down with black features big white buttons tied on with bows of waxed string.

Early white and turquoise pussy willows blooming on a brown background fashion another blouse with pleats in front and a collarless round neck fastened with a large and interesting wooden button. This blouse is gathered into a pleated front for smooth fit.

Red, white and blue, that ever refreshing combination, appears in a woman's blouse also with a pleated front and subtle interest is achieved in the soft folds held by rhinestone crescents down the front.

There are yellow printed blouses for cruise suits, or for winter suits of brown, gray or navy that would be much smarter for a touch of cheer. In fitted waistcoat style is a yellow and blue print with blue crystal buttons, round collar, two pockets on the chest and long sleeves.

On another in yellow and brown print interest focusses on a band spreading out to form two pockets on the chest. For the rest, it has a pointed collar, crystal buttons, long sleeves and a fitted waist.

BELT OF THE MONTH

Belts have become so fashionable that there's a "belt of the month," now! This month's belt is soft leather in colors, of course, medium width with an attractive flat tailored bow of the leather for a buckle. In pastels it makes a perfect accessory for tailored cruise clothes. In tan it is smartest of all.

GUILTY YET GUILTY

In the recent annual report of Dean William F. Russell of the Columbia Teachers College, Alberta has been lifted from the ranks and given a new distinction—the distinction of extreme and awful example.

Said Dean William F. Russell of Columbia Teachers College: "The little red schoolhouse, with its ignorant teacher, slight equipment, few books, red-hot stove and icy walls, has become glorified in some minds; distance has lent enchantment; and the inference is that if we should only return to the good old days all would be well."

Continued Dean William F. Russell: "In the Province of Alberta in Canada a political party...promised $25 a month to every worthy citizen.... If there is any place on the American Continent where the old conservative educational ideals hold full sway, it is the Province of Alberta. There they are innocent of 'modern' educational methods. They are guiltless of progressive education. They centre their attention upon reading, writing and arithmetic. Nevertheless, the citizens of Alberta voted to pay themselves $25 a month."

DR. DAFOE TOLD TO USE SOW TO FEED QUINTS

Physician, of Famous Five Tells of Study Being Made of Habits, Psychology of His Charges.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13—A scientific psychological study of the Dionne quintuplets has shown all the babies to be "at age intellectually and developmentally, with the larger two slightly above," Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe reveals in an article published last week in the journal of the Canadian Medical Association.

The study was begun some time ago and is still being carried on, Dr. Dafoe mentioned in an incidental reference in his article titled "Further History of the Care and Feeding of the Dionne Quintuplets". He did not elaborate his remarks or reveal who is making the study.

ner with the care and feeding of the famous youngsters until they reached one year of age last May 23. Dr. Dafoe details their development from the first few days when they were fed warm water with an eye-dropper every two hours to the time they started eating strained vegetables and fruit.

Growth Is Steady Their development has been continuous ever since they were moved to their hospital home in September 1934, Dr. Dafoe wrote, "and I know of no greater treat in the world than the one I receive when I enter the quintuplets' nursery every morning and see such a rare collection of smiling healthy babies."

In an editorial accompanying the article the journal called the article "The first scientific record of the feeding and care of the world-surprising quintuplets."

Of Dr. Dafoe the editorial said: "We hail him as the only physician in history who has succeeded in nurturing quintuplets to a point where they may be reasonably expected to maintain their existence for a prolonged period."

The Callander physician lent a humorous touch to his recital of the babies' development by relating the advice he has received from all over the world about the babies' care, "I feel I have learned a great deal in the last year and a half regarding infant care," he wrote.

There was the veterinary surgeon who seriously suggested sow's milk as wonderfully nourishing. He proposed a sow could be kept in the hospital and the babies directly suckled. "It was intimated the sow could be trained to adapt herself to this maternal duty," the doctor wrote.

Tells Of Conditions

The article contains the physician's first comment on conditions in the Dionne home. The opening of the hospital, he wrote, "gave me the first opportunity for unrestricted medical control (with its various ramifications in this case) in the care of the babies."

"Everyone realizes, I am sure, the difficulties that any family would have in adjusting themselves to a situation that the birth and survival of quintuplets produces. The Dionne house was a representative home of the backwoods."

The routine of the family life was shattered by the various duties carried out by the three nurses, orderly and cook, which were necessary for the welfare of the babies. It was quite natural, therefore, that the family should find the whole situation bewildering."

An unnamed resident of the United States, a friend of the medical fraternity, plans to obtain 172,000 copies of Dr. Dafoe's article for distribution to every physician in the United States and Canada, Dr. W. A. Dafoe said yesterday.

AS FOR EXAMPLE

"Oh, this theatrical jargon, it is such nonsense!" exclaimed his Honor Judge Tobin, when a defendant in an English Court referred to himself as a "dance band producer."

"If a man's business is to provide, purvey, hire out, engage or otherwise supply on commission bandmen, instrumentalists, crooners and other persons skilled in, or alleged to be skilled in, the production of wood, wind, string, brass, percussion, vocal or other music, or performing any of

Itching, Burning, Stinging Eczema or Salt Rheum

Eczema or Salt Rheum as it is often called is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases.

The intense burning, itching, smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in water, are almost unbearable.

Use Burdock Blood Bitters internally, and apply it externally. A few bottles are usually sufficient to afford relief from this torturing blood and skin disease.
