

WHYS AND OTHERWISE

AS SEEN BY H. L. G.

It's the veteran hockey player who is showing up this year. At least so far. "It looks," says 'Baz' O'Meara in the Montreal Star, "as if 1937 is going to belong to the old hockey players. A few of those who appear on the comeback road are Aurel Joliat and Howie Morenz (we can't remember when their names weren't on a National Hockey League roster), Conacher and Alex Connell.

Says O'Meara: "If there is a more sensational person for his inches in any sport than Aurel Joliat then I am the Rajah of Bong, and the Dionne Quintuplets are Scandinavians.

How that frail little fellow who packs no more poundage than an oversized jockey can go on year after year evading body checks, mucking in as he does, making the most compact defences look as wide open as the Grand Canyon baffles not only this observer, but all observers on the sighting posts in opposition spots as well.

Two years ago they presented him with a carload of plate in honor of his five hundredth game in professional hockey. It looked as though Aurel was ready to reach for his carpet slippers after that season.

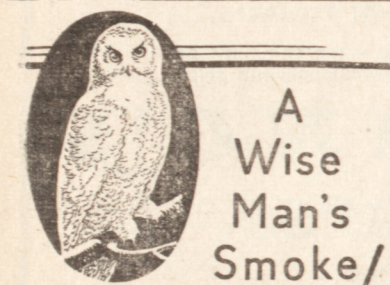

Before the game started there were some who wondered whether he should be signed again. Joliat probably played the best game he has shown since the memorable play-offs against Chicago in 1931 when the late Charlie Gardiner went over to the Canadian room after the game to shake him by the hand.

"I have seen players come and go, but I never saw one go like Joliat did tonight," said that great guardian whose praising voice is still a force.

Some call him the "Mighty Atom." In an outburst of enthusiasm this operator dubbed him the "Little Giant" some years ago. He may never play as well again as he did last night, but for one crowded hour he was the hottest thing on skates this observer has seen for quite a while.

You can add Howie Morenz and Lionel Conacher to the list of veterans who had fans' eyes popping. Morenz had a lot of his old gallop. It may be that he will help place Canadians back to the heights again.

There is a lot of life in the old dog yet. Howie has become a pronounced back checker, and how he spins back to cut off opposing forwards.

Governors Add New Rules -- How Montreal Clubs Shape Up -- That Penalty Rule

MONTREAL, Nov. 16—Hockey has the sports-loving populace now firmly in its grip these chilly autumnal days, especially now that we have had a bit of snow here in Montreal and the neighbor's kids promptly got out their old battered sticks and commenced clubbing a discarded rubber heel about the terra firma. It's an indication that in Canada, at least, the hockey season is practically on.

The local outlook is just as mysterious as ever. Of course everybody hopes that the Maroons and Les Canadiens will have standout teams, but who can tell. They look good in their workouts, all the men are apparently in fine physical condition and all that sort of thing, new arrivals flash about and give loads of promise, managers rant, rave and predict bigger and better things but it happens every year at this time and we are content to sit around and see what we shall see.

Cecil Hart has his Les Canadiens trained in a gymnasium for many days before he permitted them to take to the ice. When they did finally don the steel runners they did all right. They seem to have their old time color and that means a whole lot. It wasn't more than a few years ago that the Canucks were the most colorful outfit in the National Hockey League and the fans flocked enthusiastically to see them in large numbers. We noticed for the past couple of years that these same fans have managed to stay away in equally large numbers, all of which may be sort of expected when a team begins to take it on the chin and look sad consistently. However, under the direction of Cecil Hart this year, it appears as though the Habitants are out to shoot the works and ring the bell in the League. The team has plenty of youth, fire and dash and has an excellent chance to surprise plenty of people.

Old School Mentor
Meanwhile Gorman and his clan of Maroons went about their training in an entirely different manner. Tommy is one of the old school mentors who believes in dragging his charges right onto the ice and letting them get into playing form in a hurry the hard way. This is precisely what he did and we can't see that any of his anemic charges have suffered even slightly from the exposure to labor. Gorman figures that these lads are professional athletes whose business it is to keep in shape and report that way. And if they expect to be nurtured along like babes in arms during the pre-season workouts, they have another thought coming.

So now we find the Maroons out there in New Brunswick about Montreal way engaging in plenty of play and a three-game series with Art Ross' Boston Bruins and both outfits seem to have plenty of power and drive. If the Gorman clan can only forget that they were Stanley Cup champions the year before last, and instead of basking in the dimly reflected glories of past triumphs, they may find themselves sitting much prettier.

Fireworks at Meeting
So much publicity attended the meeting of the governors of the National Hockey League when they met at Montreal recently and forfeited the franchise of the New York Hockey Club which is now being carried on under the direction of Melvin "Red" Dutton, that a great deal of other things that they did went practically unnoticed.

One of the most important changes in the game made by decision of the board of governors is the one which concerns trying to put a stop to the practice of players intentionally getting offside in order to stop play and enable changes in players to be made. It was shown that team managers have the right to change players at any time during the game and that the public is growing tired of seeing players fool around inconsequently with the puck until a fellow player crosses the blue line and receives it, thus stopping the play.

In order to avoid this, they decided that in case of intentional offside play, the puck will have to be faced off, not at the blue line but at a point in line with the goal that is ten feet out from the end of the rink, just the same as though the puck had gone over the boards.

Another decision decreed that in the future, official scorers will not be allowed to give more than two assists on a goal. This will in all events have a decided effect upon the point totals of players in certain "home" towns where scorers in the past have been very generous so far as the giving of assists was concerned. Also, insignificant as it may seem to the casual observer, the penalty spot was moved two feet nearer the goal in order to make it potentially more effective. It will therefore, now be 36 feet from the goal line.

Bill Stewart, who will be referee in chief, will insist that all rules be strictly enforced and now that a school for referees has been opened here in this city, the league governors believe that there will be more uniformity in interpretation of the rules in the future.

Incidentally, those National League referees who are working out in New Brunswick in the games between the Bruins and the Maroons are not just there for practice exactly. Manager Tommy Gorman of the Montreal team balked most decidedly at the prospect of having his boys "cut to bits" in these games as the direct consequence of poorly arbitrated contests. Last year, according to Gorman, Canadiens suffered the loss of several players during an exhibition trip to the Maritimes and after a pre-season series in Winnipeg, two years ago, "Maroons" came out of the games in a very sad shape.

We feel quite of the same opinion as Gorman on this point. In baseball training with both the National and American Leagues, regular umpires are assigned to arbitrate the pre-season exhibition engagements and the results have been most satisfactory. The professional hockey situation is quite a parallel one and could easily be met with in the same way.

GOLF PROS
JOBS PLENTY

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—Between 500 and 600 new jobs for golf professionals are in the making.

Through an arrangement between the United States Government and the Professional Golfers' Association of America, close to 600 new public courses will be built within the next few years, George Jacobus, president of the association, said yesterday. The Government will furnish the funds, with the work to be done with advice from the P.G.A.

Jacobus, who was re-elected yesterday, said construction would start within a few months. Under the agreement, the P.G.A. will be consulted as to the locations of the new courses and only members of the P.G.A. will be hired to serve as pros.

The front of a shop in a busy South London street was being painted a bright red. The man at the top of the ladder let his paint-pot fall on his mate underneath, who consequently got well covered with red paint.

"Keep yer mouth shut, Ald," warned the voice above, "or else they'll be shovin' letters and parcels in it!"

Champion Red Wings
and Maroons in 2-2 Tie
--- Leafs Win, With Scraps on Tap---Bruins
Beat Canadiens.

DETROIT, Nov. 15—For the second time in as many nights, the champion Red Wings and the Montreal Maroons leaders of their divisions in the National Hockey League a year ago, battled tonight to a 2 to 2 overtime tie.

Red Wings, leading the American Division and undefeated in their first four starts, took the lead in the first period on Herbie Lewis' short shot past the veteran Alex. Connell, only to see Earl Robinson knot the count after 5.49 of the second.

2-2 Tie
MONTREAL, Nov. 15—Montreal Maroons came within 48 seconds of their first National Hockey League victory Saturday night, the closest the Canadian section champions have advanced to win this still-young season.

That much time remained when Syd Howe shot the puck through a maze of legs into Alex. Connell's net. He gave Detroit's champion Red Wings a 2-2 tie. The deadlock gave Maroons their first point of the season and left Detroit without a defeat in their three games.

Bruins Win
BOSTON, Nov. 14—Boston's bruising Bruins opened their National Hockey League home season by turning back Les Canadiens 2-1 tonight before 13,000 at the Boston Gardens.

The home team registered its winning tally, provided by Roy Goldsworthy, in the third period with Howie Morenz resting in the penalty box.

TORONTO, Nov. 15—Toronto Maple Leafs at last have found their scoring munch. After getting only three goals in two games and losing both of them, Conny Smythe's team uncorked an effective attack against Chicago Black Hawks and won their first National Hockey League victory of the season by 6-2 Saturday night.

Four goals in a wild third period snatched gave Leafs the one-sided win after Hawks had battled them on even terms for two periods and tied the score twice. They were never ahead of the persistent Smythmen.

Fights Feature
CHICAGO, Nov. 15—Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks played at 1-1 overtime tie in their National Hockey League battle tonight. Just before the game ended a series of fights broke out near Leaf bench.

Amerks Humble Rangers
NEW YORK, Nov. 15—New York Americans took over sole possession of first place in the International Division of the National Hockey League tonight by downing their local rivals, the Rangers 2-1, with a two-goal final period rally.

A crowd of 15,644, including Dr. Allan Daeoe, quintuplet doctor who faced off the puck to start the first tilt of the Ranger-American intracity series, turned out for the battle.

Babe Pratt, Ranger defence recruit, took advantage of two Amerk penalties in the second period to send the Rangers out in front with a hard shot from 25 feet out. Neither team had come close to scoring in the opening session.

Northern Fans Are Hockey Minded...
Impressions

TORONTO, Nov. 16—A house divided—No, we're not talking of a marital quarrel, but trying to give you a conception of crowd reaction to hockey in Northern Ontario as seen through the eyes of Nat Turofsky, the demon photographers who looked in on a game at Stanley Stadium, near Sudbury, recently.

Coniston and Falconbridge Mines were playing in the opening game of the Nickel Belt Hockey League, the latter, Allan Cup finalists last year, by the way, won 6 to 2. But to get back to the crowd.

The Turofsky was speaking: "Boy, do they take it serious. Here's the picture: On one side of this rink are all the Coniston supporters, and on the opposite side of the house those of Falconbridge. This is one place the referee gets no credit at all. He can't please anybody. If he hands out a penalty to Falconbridge, the fans on their side of the fence give him a ride. If he sends off a Coniston man he still gets the bird."

"What kind of crowds do they play to?"

"Crowd—say, half an hour before the game starts they're all sold out and standing-room line-up stretches a block," replied our photographer friend.

The Stanley Stadium seats probably 3,500 people, he figured, and there wasn't a seat empty. But there were many of the good folk standing.

"Oh, ya, I forgot to tell you," he continued. "Every time the referee sends a player off, whether he's right or wrong, he is greeted with a shower of programmes. Funny thing, too, as he bends down and picks up the programmes from the ice close to the board, another two or three well-aimed folders hit him smack in the face from close range as soon as he stretches up again. Sure, it's lots of fun."

The great lighting system in this far-North rink impressed the Torontonian and the loudspeaker system, too, was very good, he said.

The modern ice palace had all the best features of any of the larger rinks around Southern Ontario, and in many respects was a lot better.

Don Hodges, the Toronto boy, who is playing with Falconbridge, was a standout in the game Turofsky saw. The ice was fast and the hockey was of top-notch calibre. Interest is high in hockey in the North and each game is broadcast over a local radio station.

Crutchfield is Now a Coach

MONTREAL, Nov. 16—Nels Crutchfield makes his bow as a hockey coach at the Forum when he leads his McGill intermediates against the strong Concordia team in the Montreal Intermediate Hockey League doubleheader. It will be McGill's first game of the year. Concordia having downed University of Montreal last week in the league opener. U. of M. comes right back this week to take on Villavray, who also won last week.

The games, originally set for next January, were set forward at a meeting of the league last week to oblige U. of M.

Concordia showed plenty of power to down the champion French college six last week. It's rebuilt team, under the guidance of Tony Lamer, who handled the famous St. Francois Xavier teams of a few years ago, outscored its old rivals 5-2, to beat U. of M. for the first time in the four seasons that they have plenty opponents in the same league.

Villavray will be making a bid to get to the top of the standings when it meets U. of M. Impressive in its 4-1 win over St. Lambert in the opener, it can take the lead if it wins while Concordia loses to McGill. Led by

YANKEES DUE FOR RAISES IN NEW SEASON

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Having made good in their first real try in the big time, ten new major leaguers, headed by Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, Bob Feller of the Indians and Jimmy Rippe of the Giants, lead this winter's line at the baseball payoff window.

Well armed with impressive batting and pitching averages, the other newcomers expected to be raised when the 1937 contracts come out are:

Johnny Mize, who batted .329 for the Cardinals; Les Scarsella, Red's first baseman, who finished with a mark of .313; Bill Atwood and Walter Millies, catchers for the Phils and Senators, respectively; Harry Gumbert and Frank Gabler, Giants' pitchers, and Harry Kelley, who won 15 and lost 12 for the Athletics.

DiMaggio, with an average of .323, is almost certain to get a substantial boost. Feller, center of baseball's most interesting current controversy, likely will get what he wants without haggling.

Rippe Due for Raise
Rippe, who patted .306 and practically replaced Hank Leiber in center field for the Giants, probably will get his reward when young Horace Stoneham mails the 1937 contracts.

General raises are expected for the pennant winning New York clubs, with Pitchers Carl; Hubbell and Freddy Fitzsimmons and Outfielders Joe Moore and Mel Ott of the Giants, and Pitchers Red Ruffing, Monte Pearson, Pat Malone and Bump Hadley and Bill Dickey, Lou Gehrig and Frankie Crosetti of the Yankees getting the biggest boosts.

Others in the National league whose prospects are good are: Paul Waner, Pirates, who won the National league batting crown with .373; Frank Demare, Cubs, who boosted his average from .325 to .347; Gus Suhr, Pirates, who finished another full year without missing a game, and batted .317. Kiki Cuyler of the Reds who hit .328.

Other Raises Ahead
Baxter Jordan, Bees, who finished in the .323 slot, and Dolph Camilli, Phillies, who shoved his average up from .261 to .315, also are in line for raises.

Other outstanding upward moves in Senior circuit pitching ranks were shown by Danny MacFayden of the Bees, who won 17 and lost 13 after winning only six the year before; Larry French, Cubs, who won 18 and lost 9, and Red Lucas, Pirates, who won 15 and lost only 4.

In the American league Pitchers Vernon Kennedy of the White Sox, Jimmy Deshong and Buck Newsom of the Senators and Johnny Allen of the Indians, improved greatly on their 1935 records.

Charley Gehrner, Gerald Walker, Al Simmons and Goose Goslin, Tigers; Rip Radcliffe, White Sox; Joe Kuhel, Senators; Earl Averill, Bruce Campbell and Hal Trosky, Indians, and Roy Bell and Lynn Lary, Browns added plenty of points to their batting averages.

McIntyre and Cameron Go to
St. Stephen

Vernon Olive, president of the Fredericton Hockey Club, has been named manager of the capital team which will compete in the Southern New Brunswick Hockey League this season. Mr. Olive will contact H. L. Marcus of the Saint John Seagulls' Hockey Club in Saint John immediately to make arrangements for the practice of the Fredericton club at the Saint John Forum next week-end.

Go To St. Stephen

Doug Cameron, centre, and Bill McIntyre, right winger, both of whom were with the Fredericton Club last season, will perform for St. Croix in the Southern N. B. League this season. Both players established residence in St. Stephen before Oct. 15. It is learned that the Fredericton Club would not stand in the way of either player.

Bill Booth, who assumed an early league led in scoring when he figured in all four goals last week, Louis Duhamel's team packs plenty of punch, including the Westman brother act, Herb and Robbie.

SENATORS TO HAVE FAT MAN
BATTERY '37

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—The only thing Bucky Harris feels sure of next season is that his Washington Senators can advertise the fattest battery in baseball.

Even rock-headed infielders groan as catcher Frank "Shanty" Hogan, the 260-pound smiling Irishman, and Eddie Linke, the 225-pound blonde pitcher, amble onto the diamond.

"The fat boys will be on the firing line," Bucky said yesterday, "and that is really about all I can say now about next season."

Credited with one of the best managerial performances in the majors as he jockeyed his bargain-counter Senators into fourth place this year less than a half game behind the runner-up Detroit Tigers, Harris shied away from a forecast for 1937.

"We may do better and we may not do a swell," he explained. "It all depends on what players we have and what 'breaks' we get."

Along with 15 other major league clubs, Washington wants pitchers. The Senators have an abundance of outfielders and some may be used in trades for hurlers.
