

FARMING OFFERS BEST OPPORTUNITY BOYS ARE TOLD

OTTAWA, Oct. 21—Farming offers the best opportunity of any industry in Canada to the average man, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture told a group of farm boys assembled here as guests of the Ottawa Kiwanis Club. The boys took part in a grain club competition and Mr. Gardiner presented prizes to the winners.

"There is no place in Canada where the average man can make a more comfortable living, have greater independence, greater freedom of thought or more abundant opportunities for home life than on the farm," said Mr. Gardiner.

In the past many people had a wrong impression of farming, he said. Many farmers had tried to give their children an education in order that they could leave the farm and have an easier life. This was a natural consequence of the hardships the pioneer farmers of Canada had met. The proper attitude was to strive for education and culture, but to remain on the farm.

Young farmers should get the best education they could. Culture had a place on the farm, as well as in the office, and a man was no worse as a farmer if he had a university degree. He would enjoy farming more and enjoy life more. The people who really ruled any democratic country were those who were not ashamed to do the real hand labor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Sir Chas. Marler will arrive here tomorrow afternoon to take over his new duties as Canadian minister to the United States, in succession to William Duncan Herridge, who resigned a year ago.

German Musical Art

MONTREAL, Oct. 20—From the treasure-house of German music came the material which was used to build up the cycle of German music featured during October by the Canadian Radio Commission's "Little Symphony" in Montreal.

Under the baton of Dr. J. J. Gagnier and with the help of outstanding instrumentalists, an attempt was made to sketch a rapid synthesis of German musical art. Obviously, five half-hour concerts provided too restricted a frame in which to encompass a complete history of musical achievement in Germany. Nevertheless, those who have heard the programmes are agreed that deep and valuable understanding of the Germanic contribution to the literature of music has been gained from the cycle.

Evolved by Dr. Gagnier and the Montreal programme department, under the directorship of H. Rooney Pelletier, each concert in the cycle was devoted to the music of one German front-rank composer, notably Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven and Wagner.

Special attention might be drawn to the artistry and reputation of the guest artists: Charlotte Cooke and Hortense Lord, two-piano duo who performed the Bach Concerto for piano and orchestra; Gilbert Martin, pianist; Roland Leduc, violoncellist, and the Montreal Vocal Symphony.

Subsequent to the October concerts, broadcasts of the "Canadian Concert Hall of the Air" on successive Friday evenings at 9.30 p.m., EST, will be devoted to the musical art of Russia, Italy, France, Canada, United States, Spain, Finland, England and Czechoslovakia. The programme to be broadcast over the Commission's national network on October 23 will present Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony No. 6."

CANADIANA

"SUNSET IN NOVA SCOTIA"

One evening as I stood on a high hill overlooking the Atlantic, a real appreciation of nature seemed to fill me.

This hill was some distance from the sea, and at my feet stretched tree upon tree even to the very shore, looking for all the world like arrows turned upside down, while at my left a clear white beach ran horizontally, connecting a little fishing village with the mainland. At the far end of the beach a silver of land, five miles long, ran into the sea, and at its outer tip a small green island breathed freshness from its very pores.

For two hours I watched the display of colours that never ceased to change, and it seemed as if nature exerted herself, for every colour was represented and a quiet stillness like a great cathedral pervaded all.

The water was as smooth as a sheen of silk, and in the distance a white-winged ship passed out of sight. As the final rays of the sun sank in the west, I thought of the opening verse of Grey's beautiful Elegy. Moments like these are never forgotten; they are printed indelibly on the mind and form all that is noble in character. They are like dim incidents of our childhood which come back to us in flashes through the years. As I mused on these things the last light passed away and, looking up, I saw a twinkling star.

A FARMER'S WIFE

(In the drought area in Saskatchewan)

The crops have failed again, the wind and sun

Dried out the stubble first, then one by one

The strips of summer-fallow, seered with heat,

Crunched like old fallen leaves—our lovely wheat—

The garden is a dreary blighted waste

The very air is gritty to my taste.

And now I ask (O Lord, a mother's prayer)

Help me to know these fields so brown and bare,

Are not of Thee; that all this stricken land

Is not because of Thine avenging hand,

But ours the fault—we did not farm it right

And now it answers us with wind and blight.

I don't know how we'll face another year,

—Help us some way to know that Thou art near—

The children need so many things, and I—

(I don't count much), but oh, I'd love to buy

A nice new dress, a soft blue silk that clings,

(O God forgive me for such trivial things).

I know we'll manage somehow, but today

It is all dark, I cannot see the way.

The months loom up with all their snow and cold

Oh give us something, Lord, some faith to hold,

Something that we can count on, look ahead

Above these stricken fields so brown and dead.

And even as I wait before Thy throne,

New strength flows in and I am not alone.

This hour with Thee has brought me strength and grace,

I shall go on with courage now to face

Whatever comes. The children will be fed,

Give us each day, O God, our daily bread.

—Edna Jaques.

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 21—His young and pretty wife, who married him "because she just wanted the simple things of life," has proved too expensive a luxury for him, Andrew G. Pierce, 3rd, scion of the American Woolen Mills millions, declared today, returning to his home from Alimony Jail.

the load should not be tolerated.

Prior to storage, the warehouse or storage cellar should be thoroughly swept and then sprayed with a solution of copper sulphate. During the first few weeks of storage, the warehouse should be well aerated in order to carry off the excessive amount of water from the sweating tubers. The best temperature range for potato storage is between 36-40 degrees F. The application of the principles contained in this article will do much to insure a good storage product with a minimum of storage rots.
