SYMPHONY-TRAINED MUSICIANS
ABOUND IN KOSTELANETZ
DANCE ORCHESTRA

Picture musicians, trained in the subtle intricacies of Tchaikowsky, Beethoven and Bach, turning their extensive musical talents in the direction of "Tiger Rag," and "Goody, Goody!"

Picture also these same men—formerly noted concert masters, conductors and prominent players in symphony and grand opera circles—welded together, with a group of Paul Whiteman graduates, into one of the finest dance orchestras in radio!

And then, to complete this strange scene, consider the conductor himself—once the director of the St. Petersburg Royal Grand Opera, now equally at home in classical arias and in modern "swing" tunes.

Paradoxes abound in the 45-piece orchestra which Andre Kostelanetz directs every Wednesday and Friday evening in broadcasts over the Columbia network. And one of the most important is the fact that the background of his musicians enables them to interpret his unusual and outstanding arrangements of current dance music.

Here are the accomplishments, past and present, of some of the instrumentalists:

Michel Guskoff, violinist, was formerly concert-master for the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra and the

New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra.

Chester Hazlett, saxophone player, was formerly first clarinetist with the San Francisco Symphony group. Francis Lapino, harpist, accompanied famous opera stars for Victor Red Seal records.

Samuel Spielman, cellist, served as concert-master at the Moscow Opera House.

Serge Kotlarsky, violinist, was the accompanist of the great Caruso for many years.

Gregory Besrodny, violinist, was concert-master at the Petrograd Grand Opera, where Kostelanetz himself conducted, before and during the Russian revolution.

Jacob Altschutler, viola player, was the initial organizer of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, in this country.

Hans Gaberman, violinist, is now the director of the WPA orchestra.

Martin Ormandy, cellist, plays with the Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in New York, and is a brother of Eugene Ormandy, director of the Philharmonic Symphony.

Now, they can swing it with the best of them—and their favorite number is "Stompin' At The Savoy!"

NETWORK
NEWS NOTES

George Burns and Gracie Allen will leave their current sponsor, Campbell's Soup, for Grape Nuts, next April—an event which makes us very happy, since we are now privileged to announce that George and Gracie are going "from soup to nuts!"

Josef Pasternack has composed a new theme song, as yet untitled, which will be heard for the first time when Vicks Open House, with Nelson Eddy as host makes its debut Sunday, September 27, at 9.00 p.m., AST, over the Columbia network. Pasternack and Eddy, incidentally, will be together on the air on the tenth anniversary of their joint appearance on the Atwater Kent Hour, back in 1926.

Frances Langford is ranked as the No. 1 feminine U. S. singer in Great Britain—though she has never been there. The youthful star from Lakeland, Florida, earned the rating by her phonograph records, which are best-sellers in England.

Andre Kostelanetz has earned a new title—"Coast-to-Coast Commuter." He commutes by plane between New York and Hollywood, every week-end, as casually as many New Yorkers motor to Long Island for the regulation Friday-to-Monday jaunt. After his Friday CBS broadcast, Kostelanetz hops in a plane and zooms 3,000 miles across the Continent to the film capital where he directs the music for Lily Pons' second picture. The following Tuesday, he is back in New York again, rehearsing his musicians for the Wednesday radio programme.

Robert Ripley's return from a round-the-world trip will be marked by a testimonial dinner at The Waldorf-Astoria, October 8, for the benefit of the Boy Scouts. More than 2,500 persons will attend. Ripley's NBC broadcasts will be resumed Sunday, October 4.

Bat Boys Tell
Baseball Secrets

Two seventeen-year-old youths, who will capture the envy of every boy in the country during the World's Series when they serve in their regular capacity as bat boys for the Yankees and the Giants, will appear on the CBS "Community Sing" programme, Sunday, September 27, at 11.00 p.m., AST. Tommy Troy, bat boy for the Giants and Tim Sullivan, who serves the Yankees will be interviewed by Billy Jones and Ernie Hare.

They'll reveal interesting background stories about the teams, the players, their idiosyncrasies and foibles. In addition, the boys will give their idea of the batteries for the opening game of the World's Series. In honor of the visitors, the studio audience will sing "Take Me Out to The Ball Game." Among the other songs scheduled are "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing," "Shine on, Harvest Moon," and "When Day is Done."

Dairy Products
Only Now Coming
Into Use in China

Strange as it may seem, considering all the centuries of existence as a people and country and the many inventions attributed to them, but the Chinese do not and never have used butter, nor any other dairy products. For the most part what butter is consumed in China is by the foreign element and in later years those Chinese who have been educated abroad where they have become accustomed to its use. There is, however, a slow change towards the use of milk products among the native Chinese, particularly around the main treaty ports. One indication of this is the greater interest in the import of dairy cattle and the increased production of milk by Chinese dairy farms. In the matter of butter imports, Australia has long dominated the market but due to rise in prices, importers are looking for other sources of supply, including Canada, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

Canada at one time did a not inconsiderable business in butter exports to China, the high year being 1924 when 363,900 pounds were exported but subsequently the trade dwindled down to an insignificant figure. Total imports of butter, principally through the port of Shanghai, range from $300,000 to $500,000 a year. There is very little production of butter in China at the present time. In Central China, a butter is being produced from buffalo cows which has an odor quite different from imported butter, although the fat content is said to be high. It sells wholesale for about 30 cents a pound in Canadian money. Margarine is produced in Shanghai from three factories and is used principally by the Russian portion of the population along with Chinese.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day and daughter Mary accompanied by Mrs. Sarah Parker spent the day with Mrs. Day's sister, Miss Katie Jones recently. Miss Katie Jones who had the misfortune to fracture one of the bones in her arm some weeks ago is now able to return to her duties.

PROOF OF ACHILLES RAID
REVEALED IN EXCAVATIONS

LONDON, Sept. 24—When Homer sang that Greek warrior Achilles raided the isle of Lesbos at the start of the Trojan war, he was repeating history, not legend.

So Miss Winifred Lamb, archeologist of the Fitzwilliam museum, Cambridge university, is inclined to think after excavating the ancient town of Thermi, on the island of Lesbos.

Hesitantly advancing this romantic theory in a sober and technical report of her excavations, Miss Lamb tells the evidence. She found a great fire blackened and reddened the soil around the mound where the town stood in Bronze Age days. Pottery the townsfolk used is identified as archeological evidence that the fire occurred no later than 1200 B.C. That would be just before the Trojan siege, according to the most usual dating.

SCOTLAND HAS THREE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES

Although there are highly industrialized sections of Scotland, much of the country is devoted to agricultural and pastoral pursuits. The two for that matter, go hand in hand, the farm lands supplying food for the industrial population. Farm production is carefully fostered by the governmental authorities and there are three agricultural colleges with a total attendance of approximately 720 students each year, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. Some of the students take the degree course but more take special short courses.

RIFLES BILLED AS GLASSWARE SEIZED

OSTEND, Belgium, Sept. 23—Customs agents last night discovered a clandestine cargo of arms and munitions, billed as glassware, which was about to clear for Hamburg. A verification of the ship's papers and its load showed most of the cases on board to contain rifles and bayonets, believed destined for a Spanish port.

The ship a tramp steamer called the Raymond, was ordered to stand by and the cargo will be unloaded. Government authorities were notified and the ship's officers were ordered held pending an investigation.

WOULD TREAT DRUNKS

HAMILTON, Ont. Sept. 23—Hamilton Board of Control has received a resolution from the London, Ont., board, urging that the Ontario government be asked to open a place for treatment of inebriates. Saying the government gets the beverage room profit, controllers insisted it was up to the provincial authorities to cope with the products of beer-drinking establishments.

MODERN MILITIA
IDEA APPROVED

HALIFAX, Sept. 23—A resolution reaffirming support of the reorganization of the Canadian militia along modern lines was passed without comment at the convention of the Canadian Infantry Association today.

It was one of fourteen resolutions considered by the meeting. Eleven of these, dealing with army routine and practice, were passed, and three others will be redrafted and considered tomorrow.

The convention chose Ottawa as the site of this 1937 meeting.

Also approved was the report of the Council recommending an increase in prize money paid non-commissioned officers and members of the various military units. The meeting expressed regret at the death of Colonel C. J. Ingles of Toronto, a former Vice-President.

Delegates were guests of the United Services Institute of Halifax at a dinner tonight. The meeting, held in private, was addressed by Colonel G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., director of training and staff duties in the Department of National Defense.

Thank You Mrs. Smith!
For Proving me Right.

I knew you were a bit doubtful as to the operating cost of an Electric Range, but now you have one, also your first month's electric bill. I am happy to hear you say that the bill is even lower than my estimate. I am glad that you are going to tell your neighbors, that—

The average family of 5 persons can cook electrically 3 meals per day, to say nothing of baking, etc., for approximately $4.50 per month.

This McClary Combination Electric Range gives you heat in the kitchen (when you need heat) quantities of hot water, a large insulated electric oven, with full automatic control and four electric surface plates.

Act today! Turn in your old cook stove. A liberal allowance will be made toward any model Electric Range.
