Wilmot Brotherhood
The second of the series of biographies which the Wilmot Brotherhood has arranged was heard yesterday when W. J. West of this city spoke on the life of Lord Haldane. This address on one of England's greatest statesmen proved to be one of the most enjoyable that the Brotherhood has heard. Lord Haldane was born in Scotland in 1856 and died in 1928. He entered politics, was made Secretary for War in 1906, Lord Chancellor in 1912 and again in 1923. He was a successful author and one of England's greatest lawyers. Lord Haldane was a student of philosophy and wrote several critical works on this subject. His great success as lawyer and statesman was due largely to a capacity for hard work, he himself said. The tolerance and broad-mindedness which characterized his whole public life were an outstanding mark of his greatness. A vote of thanks was moved by E. C. Atkinson, seconded by Vernon Box and unanimously passed.

Y. M. C. O. Activities
Another successful training period in recreational leadership was held last Saturday under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Albrant. The programme followed was a departure from those of previous meetings. A special committee was in charge and the programme consisted entirely of table games such as bagatelle, bingo, bean toss, ping-pong, etc. This type of entertainment is calculated to be most effective for handling large crowds. The group was divided into two equal sides, the pinks and the blues, the members of each side being decorated with a paper hair ribbon of their color. The two teams contested the games with great enthusiasm, and the handsome platinum trophy (a tin mug to you) was won by the pinks. The captain of the pinks, Don Amos, received the presentation which was made by Mr. Albrant in a brilliant oration. The concluding session open to registered members will be held next Saturday.

"Reverence is the master key of knowledge."
God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our farflung battle-line—
Beneath whose awful Hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies—
The captains and the kings depart—
Still stands Thine ancient Sacrifice—
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-flung our navies melt away—
On dune and headland sinks the fire—
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard—
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!
—Amen.

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard—
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on Thy People, Lord!
—Amen.

Condition of King Unchanged

ing only Wednesday, said, he "looked just as he always does."

"I courted to him and the King wished me good day in his usual kindly fashion. We were all shocked when we learned how ill he is."

Guests in the tiny village of Sandringham's only hotel had to give up their rooms last night and move to the nearest town, King's Lynn, eight miles distant, to make room for the increasing staff of medical aides and advisers.

At His Majesty's bedside is the faithful Nurse Black, who was with him during his serious illness of 1923 and 1929.

During that time the King was near death but he finally recovered. Two operations were performed to draw fluid from his chest.

Newspapers said His Majesty's health had been undermined by the strain of the jubilee celebration and grief over the death of his sister.

BRITISH HORSES TO GO TO RUSSIA

LONDON, England, Jan. 20—Great interest has been aroused in the bloodstock industry here and in Ireland by the purchase of horses for shipment to Russia, a country which, during Czarist days, was a large buyer of English and Irish thoroughbreds. It is reported that some hundreds of animals—one optimistic estimate places it at nearly a thousand—will be acquired to grade up native strains.

At the December sales at Newmarket which have just been concluded, and where a sum exceeding $1,071,000 was realized for 697 horses, numerous purchases were made for Russian account. These animals are expected to be kept in Ireland until the spring.

Other foreign buyers at this five-day sale were from the United States, the Argentine, Scandinavia, Germany, France and Poland. For some time past India and Australia have made extensive purchases of bloodstock at the principal sales in this country. While some of the horses going to India will engage in active racing, most of them are being imported for breeding purposes.

The activity of foreign buyers is hailed in Britain and Ireland as an indication of better times, for at the height of the depression few thoroughbreds were shipped overseas.

A recent official estimate appraised the value of horses in Ireland at the round sum of $50,000,000. While there is no official estimate as to the value of bloodstock horses in England, many turf authorities say it runs, to many more millions than the Irish total, as there are fully 18,000 blood animals in the United Kingdom, more than 5,000 of them in training. In fact, the value of the horses in only five well-known racing establishments (one of these is the Aga Khan's) is reckoned as in excess of $10,000,000.

Since July, and not including private sales, a sum exceeding $3,200,000 has been realized at Newmarket and Doncaster sales of bloodstock. The September yearling sales at Doncaster produced $1,434,300 for 365 animals, compared with $861,275 for 548 youngsters at Saratoga, New York. The $1,071,000 just realized at Newmarket was $52,000 in excess of the total for the December Newmarket sales in 1934.

HOLLYWOOD FLIER LANDS IN TRAFFIC

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20—A student aviator flying over Hollywood made a forced landing today on a busy boulevard, docked traffic, careened through a vacant lot and crashed into a parked motor car.

The pilot, Robert Horn, 19, received a broken nose and facial bruises.

Horn was 2,500 feet above Hollywood when his plane's motor went dead. He made a skilful landing in the centre of a street as automobiles scurried for the curb.

CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL HELD AT ST. STEPHEN

ST. STEPHEN, Jan. 20—The first children's carnival of the season was held in the St. Croix rink here yesterday afternoon, when about 50 boys and girls were in costume. The judges were Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, Mrs. W. Whitlock and Mr. Reese, who awarded prizes to Marion Everett, Phyllis Young, Junior Middlemiss and Jack Scovil, Jr.

The rink was the scene Friday night of an enjoyable party, when Frances Ryder entertained about 50 high school students, at skating and supper. Two of the teachers, Miss Gregg and Gordon Coffey, were chaperones.

ELECTION IS SWAYED BY OATS

DINGWALL, Scotland, Jan. 20—Canadian oats entered the picturesque by-election battle in the constituency of Ross and Cromarty last week.

"Could you not, as Dominions Secretary, have stopped excessive importation of Canadian oats?" a heckler questioned Malcolm MacDonald at a meeting of farmers in Dingwall Cattle Market.

"I have been Dominions Secretary only a few weeks", Malcolm MacDonald replied. "It depends on you whether I am going to remain Dominions Secretary for more than another few weeks."

MacDonald who is supported by the Government and by the Liberal Association in the riding, but opposed by the local Conservative Association, said that, as Dominions Secretary, he would see that Canadian authorities did their best to keep the supply of oats down.

His policy was the home producer first and the Dominions second, MacDonald said.

NEWCASTLE, Jan. 20—Fire last evening destroyed the home of Norman Campbell, farmer, on Chaplin Island Road, about six miles from Newcastle. Several barns were saved with difficulty and some of the household furnishings were taken out in time. The origin of the fire was unknown. Damage was partially covered by insurance.

Old Times Recalled

Many old timers of forty and fifty years ago, especially those who lived "across the river" will be interested in reading of the conditions which existed in the present town of Devon in those old days. Mrs. Susan Squires has written a very interesting paper dealing with these conditions. This paper The Daily Mail will publish from day to day, at the request of several members of the York and Sunbury Historical Society.

REMINISCENCES OF EARLY ST. MARYS

The highway road or the Douglas Road as we called it above the corner, was crossed at right angles by the street which ran from the St. Mary's Ferry landing to the railroad station and on out the hill to Nashwaak Village and the Miramichi. Winslow Tilley's drug store was on the south corner. Walter McFarlane's big two-story building, a blacksmith shop downstairs and a woodworking shop upstairs, was on the east corner. Elisha VanWart's grocery store was on the north corner and on the west corner was a vegetable garden belonging to a house facing the Douglas road and owned by Stephen Burr. This street running from the river to the railway station was the main street or front street of the village. On it was the post office kept by Calvin Estabrooks. A small dry goods store was at first owned by A. A. Miller and F. B. Edgecombe. Matthew Tennant was clerk. It was later owned by Ran Staples. Jim Boone had a harness shop, Jerry Staples sold shoes. Tom Biden was a baker and my father had a general store. There were also two hotels and five rum shops, two of them wholesale. Joe Smith had a harness shop around the corner on the Douglas Road. After Spencer Inch moved to the village and bought the Burr place he had a meat shop in a small building on his land. When the Rev. William Jaffrey moved to St. Marys in 1845, he bought quite a tract of land from the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Land Company. This tract included all of the lots of land which the company still owned between Front or St. Marys street as it is now called and McKean street (Tommy Staples lane) and out the hill to the Miramichi Road, across that and on out for some distance farther. Mr. Jaffrey at once opened a street through the middle of his land until it joined the Miramichi Road and had it all laid out in lots which were all eventually sold. Robert McKeen owned the land from McKean Street to Friel's Creek. This parcel of land was the old Beverley Jouett place. The old house stood where William Kesson's house now stands. It has been moved twice but is still occupied. Its walls were built of pieces of deal or plank put together with mortar like bricks and spikes driven through occasionally to hold it together. The Jouett house used to have a hedge of cinnamon roses in front of it and quantities of lilacs in its garden. To this Beverley Jouett belongs the credit for setting out the row of elm trees on each side of the road across his farm. The actual parish line ran through the Friel property which came next but for the sake of convenience it was considered to be on the northwest of the Friel farm. When Mr. Friel died four lots from the road to the river above the Friel homestead were sold. Calvin Estabrooks bought one, Thomas Hoben bought a double lot, my father bought one and my oldest brother bought one. The Peabody land came next. The Peabody name was among those of the earliest settlers in Manguerville. Isaac Peabody ran a milk farm for years and supplied the village and part of the city with milk. I have been told that his was the first milk delivery in Fredericton. Above the Peabody place was the Miles farm, two Pugh farms and then the Nashwaaks, with Col. Beverley Robinson's land on both sides of it. Such was roughly the old lay of the land.

Old St. Marys

The part of St. Marys burned in the big St. Marys fire of October 23rd 1893 was unquestionably the oldest part of the village although there were several old houses scattered around outside of this section. When the Rev. William Jaffrey moved to St. Marys he bought the house, in which he afterwards lived for so many years, from Col. Hayne, manager of the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Land Company. The house was of old English architecture, a main house in the middle with a wing on each end and a two-storey veranda on the front. It had several of the swinging French windows which were so common in the early well-built houses. A lane or narrow street connected this house with St. Marys Street. On the corner of this lane and St. Marys Street stood the Biden house, so called. It also belonged to Mr. Jaffrey but was occupied by Thomas Biden for about twenty-five years. This too was an old house but well-built with very wide eaves, French windows and a built-over veranda which had been closed in with glass. It was in this house that Biden had his bakery. (To be Continued)

PORTO ALGERE, Brazil, Jan. 20—The Prince of Wales was reported today to be interested in a British proposal to build important meat packing plants here. The Prince would invest if the proposal were accepted by the Government of the State of Rio Grande do Sul, it was understood here.

TWO MONCTON MEN ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

MONCTON, Jan. 20—At L'Assomption church here this morning, two Moncton young men, William Pellerin son of Mrs. Edward Pellerin, and the late Mr. Pellerin, and Oscar Bourque, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bourque, were ordained to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic church by His Excellency Rt. Rev. P. A. Chiasson, bishop of Chatham. A large number were in attendance at the ceremony.

Father Pellerin is a graduate of St. Joseph's University and Father Bourque a graduate of Sacred Heart College, Bathurst. Both studied later at Holy Heart Seminary, Halifax.
