Hon. J. B. McNair, K.C., attorney-general, and Mrs. McNair arrived home Saturday from a short automobile trip through the State of Maine.

Wilnot United Church

Last night Wilnot United church carried out a special service for Mother's Day. The choir consisted of fifty mothers of the congregation. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Louis Young. An appropriate solo was rendered by Mrs. Inch. After a short talk by Rev. Mr. Bartlett different contributions were given in honor of Mother, in poetry by Miss Netta MacMillan, in art by Miss Eleanor Bartlett. During the evening each mother in the choir was presented with a flower by two little girls. A quartette selection was given by P. T. Pridham, R. Crewdson, V. Box and F. W. Barker. At the close of this Mrs. Randolph Crocker gave a short address on "Mothers."

Bouquets and Blushes

Blushes and bouquets were in evidence yesterday in the House of Commons, Ottawa, as results of the masculine beauty vote held by the two women members and published in the morning papers.

Bouquets from her choices as "the most attractive-looking members" reached Mrs. George Black (Cons., Yukon). Dr. J. J. McCann (Lib., Renfrew South), named among "hand-some members" by Miss Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce) was presented with a bunch of roses by the parliamentarians in his section of the House.

While Mrs. Black received flowers and notes, one of which read: "I feel your good taste should not go unnoticed," Miss Macphail's desk was covered with letters from seemingly indignant and neglected members who considered themselves or their friends worthy of mention.

Defence Minister MacKenzie wrote to Miss Macphail thanking her for making him a "fourth rater" and to Mrs. Black for "increasing his correspondents." He appeared on both lists.

Hon. C. H. Cahane, former secretary of state, called "Arresting and rugged" by Mrs. Black, said: "It doesn't do your record any harm when you have lived 74 years."

CANADIANA

MOTHER'S DAY, MAY 10th, 1936
(Mary Finch Davis)

Oh ye who wear flowers red
For Mothers still on earth,
Wait not until too late
To tell her how much she's worth.

Purest of earthly love,
Nearest to the Divine
Watched o'er you from your birth
No matter the land or clime.

The love that cared for your needs
Those hands tollworn for you,
Asking naught in return
Save that you be brave and true.

Those eyes grown dim with tears
Shed when you went astray
When nothing was left to do
But only to wait and pray.

Those ears that heard with joy
When others sang your praise,
Those lips that gave you cheer
At close of weary days.

Oh you who wear flowers red
On this your Mother's Day,
Wait not till she is gone
For the word you now should say.

For the letter too seldom sent
Or the little gift of love;
To save your own regret
When Mother has gone above.
