Report That Germany in Agreement to Fur- nish Arms to China

(Special to The Daily Mail)
LONDON, Eng., June 26—International unrest and discontent reverberated around the world today as developments in Palestine and Japan took on a bluish tinge to those seekers of peace, security and amity between nations.

Desert warfare threatened across "the River Jordan" of biblical fame, as Bedouin leaders urged a march to the aid of their brothers, the Arabs of Palestine now under British control. From Japan comes the ominous report that a secret agreement was being negotiated by which German interests would supply arms, munitions and machinery to China.

LONDON, June 26 — A rumor of trouble arose in the deserts of Trans-Jordan tonight to plague officials in Palestine, already vexed by Arab discontent.

Officials said they were prepared for any eventuality. They were said to have approximately 15,000 regular troops, backed by minor units, such as the Camel Corps, the frontier guards and regular police. British armaments are vastly superior to any the Arabs might summon to their cause. They have airplanes, armored cars and tanks. The Arabs possess none of these.

Last official figures listed approximately 100 dead in Palestine on June 19, and since then at least 25 are known or reported to have been killed.

Holding the League of Nations' mandate in the Holy Land, Britain faces the dual task of pacifying the Arabs and at the same time opening the gates of Palestine to the Jewish refugees from Germany, Holland and Russia.

Secret Agreement

TOKYO, June 27—The Domei (Japanese) news agency, in a despatch from Shanghai, said today a secret agreement was being negotiated by which German interests would supply arms, munitions and machinery to China.

The German products, the agency's despatch said, would be worth 100,000,000 Chinese dollars (about $30,000,000).

JAPANESE "MATA HARI" IN POLICE CUSTODY, SPY CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, June 27—A beautiful slant-eyed young Japanese girl, who reputedly wrung naval secrets out of enlisted men, is in the custody of federal operatives after two men had been indicted, charged with conspiring to supply naval information to the Japanese government.

The girl, "Mata Hari" of the Pacific Coast, was said to have been used as a lure.

She was reported to have been friendly with Harry Thomas Thompson, former navy petty officer, accused by the government of masquerading as an officer to obtain secret information and then selling it to Toshio Miyazaki, the other indicted man. Both the two men and the girl are reputed members of an international spy ring.

Thompson now is serving a jail sentence for illegally wearing a naval officer's uniform.

Thompson, the indictment charges, began selling his country's secrets in August, 1934, when he boarded the U.S.S. Brooks at San Diego.

The indictment goes on to charge that Thompson, dressed as an officer, boarded warships at San Diego and San Pedro and "obtained code books, signal books, photographs, blueprints, plans, maps, models and information relating to the national defense."

F.D.R. Renominated

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 27—Franklin Delano Roosevelt was re-nominated for the United States presidency early today by the tumultuous acclamation of the Democratic National Convention. Nearly three score seconding speeches, filling the night with praise of the president and all his work, preceded the convention's vote.

On the tumbling sound waves of an hour-long demonstration, crested by more hours of individually shouted praise, Franklin D. Roosevelt was borne to an acclamatory renomination for the United States presidency. Milling and shouting Democratic convention delegates sustained their noise-making even toward the near-midnight balloting hour. Few seemed to give thought to saving themselves for shouting still to come.

BLAZING HOT TEMPERATURE IN CANADIAN WEST

(Special to The Daily Mail)
WINNIPEG, June 27—With blazing hot weather in many sections, wheat in the Prairie West has been growing rapidly during the past week, says the periodical report of the Canadian Pacific Railway Agricultural Department today, but at the same time moisture conditions have fallen off considerably.

Various points in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta registered temperatures ranging up as high as 102 degrees and, apart from some sections of South and North Saskatchewan and North Central Alberta, where heavy showers occurred, precipitation during the week consisted of a few light scattered showers.

000). In exchange, it was stated, Germany would buy Chinese products. The basic agreement, the Domei report stated, was signed in Berlin in the middle of May, and details are under negotiation now at Nanking.

News Briefs

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, June 26—The giant commercial dirigible Hindenburg landed at 5.40 p.m. today after an uneventful flight from Lake Michigan.

REGINA, June 27—Better times apparently aren't just coming. Up to June 15, income-tax collections totaled $222,000, nearly $100,000 more than was received from Saskatchewan's citizens in the same period of 1935.

OTTAWA, June 26—Senator Patrick Burns, Calgary cattle dealer and rancher, has forfeited his seat in the Red Chamber, it was learned tonight, because he has been ill for the last two sessions and unable to attend sittings.

STRATFORD, Ont., June 26—Ontario furniture manufacturers and workers will seek the co-operation of Quebec firms and employees in formulating better codes for the industry in the two provinces, according to James A. Kane, representative of the workers here.

After One Year

One year ago today—June 27 last, the present Provincial Government was returned to power by one of the largest majorities ever secured at a general election in this Province. With the exception of Carleton County which returned its three old Conservative members and the county of Saint John which sent two Opposition members to the Legislature, the Dysart party swept the Province from Madawaska to the sea, and from Restigouche to the Nova Scotia boundary.

The Dysart Government has endeavored to carry out all pre-election promises and has made a remarkable record of accomplishments during the short year that it has been in power.

Old Age Pensions is now an accomplished fact, so that within the next few days pension checks will be going through the mails to brighten many a home and to cheer many an old man and woman in their declining years.

When the schools reopen in the fall free school books, under proper departmental supervision, will be another fulfilled promise.

During the last session of the Provincial Legislature a large amount of constructive legislation was introduced and passed through the House.

There has never been a government in the province which has worked harder than the members of the Dysart administration. There has hardly been a week since the Government came into power that the Executive Council has not met. These meetings extended over several days each week and far into the night. The gentlemen who compose the Dysart Government have not only earned their salaries, they have given their services to the public at much personal sacrifice to themselves. We know for a fact of more than one member of the present government who has lost money and business during the past year as a result of having been appointed to the Cabinet. New Brunswick does not pay her Cabinet Ministers enough salary. She cannot afford to do so. She is fortunate in having men who are willing to sacrifice their own interests to help govern their Province. We have yet to learn of any man on either side of politics who ever became a rich man by being in the New Brunswick Cabinet.

The present Government has got away to a good start and the province is safe in its hands. We may well expect much more progressive legislation and more accomplishments during the years to come.

NEW QUEBEC CABINET IS ANNOUNCED

QUEBEC, June 27—Premier Adelard Godbout made public today the cabinet he selected to administer the affairs of Quebec Province until the August elections. It contained 10 men including the premier, four less than the cabinet of his predecessor, ex-Premier Louis A. Taschereau.

The premier took two portfolios for himself, retaining his position as minister of agriculture held during the Taschereau regime and naming himself also as minister of colonization.

The cabinet: Hon. Adelard Godbout, premier, minister of agriculture and minister of colonization.

C. A. Bertrand, K.C., of Montreal, attorney-general and provincial secretary.

Hon. T. D. Bouchard, minister of lands and forests and municipal affairs.

Hon. P. E. Cote, minister of roads.

Hon. Edgar Rochette, minister of labor, fish and game.

Stuart McDougall, K.C., of Montreal, provincial treasurer.

Wilfrid Gagnon, president of the Canadian Shoe Manufacturers Association, Montreal, minister of commerce and industry.

Cesaire Gervais, K.C., Sherbrooke, Que., minister of public works and mines.

Hon. Cleophas Bastien, minister without portfolio.

Frank Connors, Montreal, minister without portfolio.

LYNCH, Neb., June 26—Dr. Earl Bell, University of Nebraska anthropologist, said today he and students had unearthed near Lynch, what probably was the largest prehistoric city in North America. The anthropologist said the discovery indicated a mid-western agricultural civilization flourished "possibly 4,000 years" ago.

N. B. ARTIST MEETS SUCCESS WITH PAINTINGS

Among the young artists of Canada who have been coming to the front in the past few years in the art of painting is Miss Lucy Jarvis, a daughter of New Brunswick.

Miss Jarvis has been doing portraits in Brantford and Toronto during the winter and expects to return to Ontario in the fall to complete her commission. Miss Jarvis studied painting at the Museum School in Boston for four years and has exhibited with the Montreal Art Association, with the Royal Academy, the Graphic Art and the Ontario Society of Artists in Toronto. Her pictures have also been hung in the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and in the National Gallery in Ottawa.

She has done distinguished pictures of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia landscapes and intends to do some work during the summer in New Brunswick.

The admirable young New Brunswick artist is the daughter of Mrs. Edward Jarvis of this city who was before her marriage Miss Kate Harris.

LONDONDERRY TRIES TO EXCUSE DUFF "BOMBSHELL"

LONDON, June 27—The Earl of Londonderry, former cabinet minister and advocate of Anglo-German friendship, went to the Reich's defence.

He acted after a Paris speech by Alfred Duff Cooper in which the secretary of war referred to the British and French frontiers being the same.

Lord Londonderry declared:

"In my judgment, the peace of the world depends primarily on an understanding between France, Germany and Great Britain. We would work

DANIEL'S SECOND TRIAL RESUMED THIS MORNING

Story of Gruesome Find
Body of Philip Lake
Related at Dorchester in Bannister Case.

DORCHESTER, N. B., June 27—Three witnesses were heard yesterday as the second trial of Daniel Bannister, charged with the murder of Philip Lake, continued in the Westmorland circuit court. A fourth, Frances Bannister, sister of the prisoner, and a witness for the Crown, was under direct examination when adjournment was made by Mr. Justice Fairweather, the trial judge, until this morning at ten o'clock.

Otto Blakney, Dr. J. W. Roussel and William Horsman were heard yesterday. Frances Bannister has been detained since Jan. 8 as a material witness. Her direct examination by P. J. Hughes, K.C., was under way but a short time when adjournment was called.

A feature of yesterday's hearing was the evidence submitted by Dr. Roussel, medico legal expert of Montreal, who testified that the bullet found in the charred skull of Philip Lake was fired from a .22 calibre rifle alleged to have been owned by Arthur Bannister. The expert contended that the chances of the bullet being fired from another rifle were remote.

Gruesome Find
Otto Blakney, who found the burned ruins of the Lake home on Jan. 6 last, as well as the remains of Bertha Lake and the frozen body of 20-month-old Jackie Lake on the ballast pit road at Pacific Junction, re-told his story of the gruesome find.

Dr. Roussel followed Mr. Blakney to the stand. His evidence took up more than two hours. The witness was subjected to a severe and lengthy cross examination by H. Murray Lambert, defence counsel.

The witness said that, in theory, identical markings might be discovered on bullets fired from different guns but that such chances were so remote they were considered practically an impossibility.

Wm. Horsman followed Dr. Roussel to the stand and told of being at his home on the old Berry Mills road on Sunday, Jan. 5 last.

BALDWIN MAY RETIRE

CAMBRIDGE, England, June 27—Premier Baldwin in a speech at Leys School, Cambridge, indicated he would like soon to retire from public life.

"I shall not be here much longer," he told the students.

His grandfather being the late John Harris, prominent citizen of Moncton. Her father the late Mr. Jarvis was a native of Saint John, and was manager of the Bank of Montreal several years prior to his death.

New Brunswickers will look with much interest to continued success to Miss Jarvis in her art in which she has displayed special talent.

At the same time the Labor members of Parliament Ernest Thurtle and Rev. R. Sorensen followed Geoffrey Mander, opposition Liberal, in putting down questions for answers in the Commons as to whether Duff Cooper spoke for the government.

Other questions, it was expected, would be asked about Lord Londonderry's charges that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, despite his disavowal, knew the rate and extent of German rearmament.

Attorney-General Says Government Recognizes Need

Home & School Association Hears Announcement
With Enthusiasm at Annual Meeting

Official confirmation of the prophecy made in The Daily Mail some time ago respecting the establishment of a new department at the University of New Brunswick to promote extension courses of study and adult education generally was made by Hon. J. B. McNair, K.C., attorney-general of New Brunswick, in an address before the Home and School Association last night at its annual meeting in the city hall.

Said the attorney-general: "Recognizing the need for practical education the government is now perfecting plans to give direction, counsel and assistance to organizations such as yours, (The Home and School Association). There is to be established in connection with the university a new department to promote extension courses of study and adult education generally."

Continuing, Hon. Mr. McNair said: "I am hopeful that further reforms will be brought about which will improve our educational system generally and enhance its value for our people."

The attorney-general in concluding his address, assured the Home and School Association of the government's desire to co-operate with it to the fullest "as you move forward to the attainment of your laudable purposes."

Hon. Mr. McNair's address, in full was as follows:

"May I, at the outset, take occasion to congratulate those whose foresight and zeal have brought about the existence of this association. We owe a real debt to those whose industry and perseverance have brought this thing to pass and promoted the development of the organization to its present state.

Such pioneer work calls for strong qualities of heart and mind. The task has doubtless proved disappointing perhaps even irksome, at times. But may we not anticipate that henceforth the way will be brighter and less cumbered with difficulties.

Your purpose is to foster, and promote the cause of, education. Our day has seen new demands in this field, due in large measure to two causes. On the one hand there has been the growth of democratic forms of government, on the other the advance of science which has created new methods of communication, annihilating time and space.

Such progress has not only extended our horizon but has enlarged our responsibilities. Compared with the condition of our forefathers of a few generations ago our problems are complex indeed.

To rise to the new opportunities and responsibilities and to solve the many social and economic problems that surround us, we must rely upon our system of education. By education I mean not simply book learning but that training which while developing the mind builds character as well.

Mental development and character building are personal processes. But on the objective or social side they are reflected in the relationship known as good citizenship. The latter in its turn implies largely being a good neighbor.

"To thine ownself be true and it must follow as the night the day thou canst not then be false to any man." Thus spoke the great student of human nature.

Amid the many complex problems that surround us let us get down to realities. Why not admit that education is no longer for the cloister; nor confined to school days. Rather let us agree that it is a continuous process and that its aim and end is a practical one, to fit men and women, young and old, to be good and useful citizens.

Someone will say that when we think and talk of citizenship we are wandering in a forest of abstractions. This condition can be dispelled if we think of citizenship in a personal and friendly way.

What would you say to my suggestion that for a time, while we do some building in this Province, we think of ourselves not as citizens of a world, or an Empire or a Dominion, but rather as citizens of New Brunswick.

Did someone flinch at that remark? Does it to you savour of parochialism? Well the salve I offer to injured dignity is simply the suggestion that if we in our own home country prove good neighbors one to another, each vying with the other to build up New Brunswick and we shall be able to play our part in all the wider fields.

I am quite aware that against my proposals protests will arise. I can picture in my mind's eye many who will declare for a wider arena, of thought and activity. Here are some of their phrases—"I am a Canadian,"—"I will not think of myself as a New Brunswicker; that smacks of sectionalism."

We are told today that Canada is a nation; and even on the Statute it has not escaped your attention, I am sure, that at this moment a movement is on foot to bring about certain constitutional reforms.

You will recall that back in 1867 four provinces of British North America agreed to join forces for certain purposes. In order to carry out their joint objects or endeavours they set up a central governing body to administer certain of their affairs. All those matters which were thought to be of peculiar local interest the provinces reserved for themselves to handle.

Such was the federal union which our province agreed to enter into 69 years ago. We surrendered certain powers to the government and parliament of Canada. But we did not surrender our status. We remained as before a Province of Great Britain.

Today it is being urged that the British North America Act which confirmed and ratified the union of 1867 should be repealed; and that a new deal should be entered into under the sanction of an Act of the Parliament of Canada.

The nature of the new deal is sought to be concealed. The real suggestion is that the Magna Carta of the provinces be erased and that they place themselves under the suzerainty or overlordship of the Government at Ottawa.

The men who framed Confederation knew what they were about. Their generation, however, has passed on. How many of us in this day realize the grim necessity of maintaining the status quo.

It is time that we abandoned the habit of political wool-gathering.

The type of union created in 1867 was sound and adequate, it does not call for the subservience of the provinces. It will function best when its constituent members are strong, virile and militant.

It is because of these views that I advocate in these days a real New Brunswick movement. We should become New Brunswickers minded. Material reasons are in themselves compelling; but apart from these, such is the only dignified course.

Entertaining these views I suggest with confidence that we should without delay begin to study and ponder in our homes, our schools and colleges these questions, "Why am I a New Brunswicker?" and "What can I do for New Brunswick?"

With our studies there will develop an esprit de corps, a spirit of co-operation, mutual understanding and good-will which will carry us forward to a solution of our problems.

We have it in our power to make of New Brunswick what nature intended she should be, a happy and contented land.

Before that goal is reached, however, many changes will be necessary in our present social and economic system. To pave the way for orderly change we should proceed without delay to set our house in order.

Recognizing the need for practical
