R. P. Allen's Good Work

The reference at the exhibition opening on Saturday night of Premier Dymally to the work done by R. P. Allen, in connection with tourist boosting in these parts, was well deserved. Long years before the present system of handling tourist travel was thought of, R. P. Allen was active in bringing to this Province many tourists, including big game hunters and fishermen. He, together with a small band of local men, many of whom have passed away, helped to put the tourist travel on the map so far as New Brunswick is concerned. At their own expense these local men annually attended various sportsmen shows in Chicago, Boston, and other places, and were instrumental in bringing to New Brunswick a number of wealthy United States business men and others.

It may not be generally known, but R. P. Allen discovered Hart's pool as a salmon ground, and later induced Hon. P. J. Veniot, then Premier, to reduce the non-resident license to short-term visitors from $25 to $5. This applies to open waters on the St. John and Miramichi. As a result of these efforts, which were started by Mr. Allen and later carried on by the present tourist arrangements, there are from ten to twelve hundred people coming here and taking out short term fishing licenses each year. It is safe to say that there is no one in New Brunswick today who has done more to boost tourist travel and to bring in fishermen and big game hunters than R. P. Allen. Mr. Allen, in addition to being acquainted with all the leading sports, has a thorough knowledge of the conditions of the woods and streams of this Province.

A Good Appointment

Announcement from Ottawa of the appointment of Hon. Fred Magee of Port Elgin as a director of the Bank of Canada under the new arrangement by which the Dominion Government takes over a controlling interest in the institution, has been most favorably received throughout the Province. Hon. Mr. Magee has long been recognized as one of the outstanding industrialists of the Maritime Provinces, a man of public spirit, vision and enterprise, possessed of a keen business acumen, and highly esteemed by all who enjoy his acquaintance. For a period of ten years he represented his native county of Westmorland in the Legislative Assembly, and for five years filled the office of President of the Executive Council. He took an active part in the proceedings of the House and was recognized by friends and opponents as one of its ablest and most useful lay members and forcible debaters. It is no secret among his friends, that in 1925 he was offered a portfolio in the Federal Cabinet, but declined the honor because of pressure of private business.

Hon. Mr. Magee is the head of Fred Magee, Limited, a concern which operates large canning plants at different points in the Maritimes, with headquarters at Port Elgin. The company's products enjoy a high reputation and command ready sale in domestic and foreign markets. The company is a large manufacturer of box shooks and containers for fruit and vegetables, and makes extensive shipments each year to canners in the Upper Provinces. All through the depression years Mr. Magee's company carried on without finding it necessary to reduce wages, and at the same time steadily increased its output, surely a record to be proud of.

Hon. Mr. Magee was one of the first in this Province to advocate vocational training, and was for some years chairman of the Vocational Board appointed by the Provincial Government. He is a director of the Central Trust Company, which has its head office in Moncton. Possessed of a genial personality, ripe business experience and an abundance of sound common sense, Hon. Mr. Magee should prove a valuable acquisition to the directorate of the Bank of Canada.

The Co-operative Conference at Antigonish

The United Churchman, the organ of the United Church, has the following:

"Many of those who listened to the address of Prof. A. B. McDonald of St. Francis Xavier College, delivered on Thursday evening of our last Maritime Conference, got a new idea of the work being attempted by that college through its Extension work, in Adult Education and Industrial Developments. Several United Church ministers anxious to know more about the things St. F. X. is doing and the results of its endeavors, took the opportunity of attending the 14th annual Rural and Industrial Conference held at that college in Antigonish, August 19th to 21st.

We were surprised at the size of this Conference, at the distances from which many people had come, at the remarkable interest and enthusiasm of all present, and at the way in which the Roman Catholic Church, as represented by its priesthood, is getting behind this movement and interesting itself in the problems of intellectual and economics betterment of people and communities crushed, cursed and despairing under present conditions.

We were impressed too by what we believe is the sincere desire of the leaders of this movement to give help to any and all, no matter what their church affiliations. Several Protestant sections of eastern Nova Scotia are profiting equally with Roman Catholic sections, from help freely extended by the college and its staff.

Study Clubs, Credit Unions, Co-operatives of various kinds and Libraries are being organized so rapidly that it is difficult for the leaders to keep up with the demand for their assistance.

Are Women a Nuisance?

Prof. Bronislaw Malinowski, world-famed anthropologist, came all the way from the University of London to tell the Harvard conference about culture and its effect upon human beings.

"Well, gentlemen," he said, as he started his address, "I am in the unfortunate position of having written a paper that you all can probably understand.

"There are certain functions of life in which man is definitely superior," said Prof. Malinowski, "and when women start to take over these functions, they should be stopped. Equality between men and women," he added, "doesn't imply they should do the same things.

"I don't know whether they will become the dominant sex, but I am certain that women will become the dominant nuisance," he said.

The professor expressed a deep dislike of the "emancipated women," agreed that it was right to give her the vote and educational opportunity, but expressed a belief that "when they try to wear the pants" a stop should be put to it.

Please do not hoot at the merry gentleman for this brief excerpt from his address. We have picked a highlight. As the father of two daughters the professor must know that true women despise men who let women "wear the pants." A woman who "wears the pants" is just about as disagreeable a creature as the man who wears the brassiere.

Are women nuisances? Sure—at times. So are men—perhaps more times.

SNAPSHOTS

The Union Jack was flying upside down at the Exhibition yesterday and today. Some people say that the world is all upside down. But why exhibit the good old Union Jack upside down?

One lonely bachelor whose name was mentioned on the list of eligibles published in The Daily Mail last week writes us:

"The English language being what it is, I am wondering if your girl friend really wanted 'a good list of eligible bachelors' or a list of good eligible bachelors. If the latter then I regret that I feel unable to qualify and humbly leave the field to the others mentioned.

"You however, overlooked including Hitler. Perhaps he could tell you what in heck the world is coming to anyhow. He does seem to have rather determined ideas about most things.

"Perhaps we of your exclusive list may think ourselves as an individual modern Pygmalion, awaiting the arrival of Venus to bring to life the object of our imagination, matrimony being the objective. However, be that as it may, I for one am damned if I can picture you as a Cupid, skipping about in your birthday suit with a quiver full of arrows. The R.C.M.P. might have something to say about that."

A lonely Manitoba prospector wants a wife with a heart of gold. But if he can only discover a mine of that description the wife will be easy to find.

We can recommend as an eligible wife a young lady who makes wonderful fudge.

More than 70,000 school children in England had their tonsils removed in the course of a year. So gradually English speech may be easier to understand.

Since the apple crop is so short, it will be more difficult this year to keep the doctor away from your door.

What is needed, says the Sault Daily Star, seems to be more taxpayers rather than more taxes. And the way to get more taxpayers is to reduce taxation.

Big Increase

Controls 1,000 Plants
The General Commission for War Manufacturers, he told the Ministers now controls more than 1,000 auxiliary manufacturing plants.

The amount of extraordinary appropriations voted for the armed services was not disclosed. A Cabinet communiqué said, however, they would "perfect our military preparations in a certain period of time."

Italy's move further to increase her armed forces follows Germany's doubling of her compulsory term of military conscription and action by France to spend $910,000,000 in tanks, planes, guns and armored cars in an effort to increase her army's efficiency, rather than its size.

French statisticians last month calculated that Europe's military powers now could send nearly 6,000,000 trained men into battle, if necessary. The figures fixed Germany's strength at 1,365,000; Italy's at 1,250,000; Russia's at 1,200,000; and France's at 654,000.

Mussolini Hailed

(Continued from Page One) we had the idea in our heads that everybody loved the British Empire so much they would go to any limits to preserve it. Only recently has a little sanity percolated through, and I think we can really say from our hearts, "Thanks Signor Mussolini," for had it not been for him, we would still have been sound asleep as we were 18 months ago."

$1 Lots

(Continued from Page One) Goring, who brought the matter to the attention of the Aldermen, that these lots have for many years been non-productive and this will provide a means of not only supplying much-needed small houses, but will also add materially to the total of assessable property. Care would be taken, Ald. Goring pointed out, to see that real estate dealers do not get these properties and the nominal sale would be contingent upon the purchaser immediately commencing building operations.

TO LET—Modern, up-to-date residence; partly furnished; residential section; from November until May. Further terms upon application to "House," care of The Daily Mail.

No Further

(Continued from Page One) wishes to go West to buy cattle under two years old for feeding in the east, and cattle up to five years of age to be used as breeder stock, and will also pay fifty per cent of the freight for shipping the cattle, providing they are fed here for at least three months. This policy applies only to the buying of cattle in country points.

The minister wishes to impress on the prospective buyers of western cattle that they should buy nothing but the best feeder stock. It is felt in this province that if the farmers could buy their cattle from stockyards, they could get first-class cattle and at a lower price. The department is in a position to give any prospective buyers any information on the scheme and is ready to give them names of federal officials located at strategic points in the drought areas in the west who can in their turn give them any information as regards the selection of cattle and inspection, the minister states. The department is also willing to assist by way of supervision of methods of handling the cattle in this province and making recommendations as regards the compiling of rations suitable for feeding of the cattle and would also endeavor to help in marketing the cattle. About three to three and one-half cents per pound for top steers and from two to two and one-half cents per pound for yearlings would be the average price the cattle could be bought for in the west, he thought.

Communist

"The first step is to make a new Locarno and to fortify the area of peace in Western Europe. That can and should be done before Christmas.

"In Eastern Europe we can make no engagements. . . But we can and should repudiate a motive of political encirclement of Germany or any political preference of Slav over Teuton, or Communism over Fascism. We can warn Germany that the future will of our people depends on her own conduct.

"And we can use our influence on Austria and Czechoslovakia to work out, while there is still time, the conditions of friendship with Germany which ultimately, perhaps, may lead to a federal union."

Germany is well armed and ready to defend a miracle—"the miracle of its own resurrection"—Chancellor Hitler told 120,000 uniformed Nazis and 50,000 spectators in a ceremonial tribute to Great War dead today.

"Let no one be deceived!" he shouted. "We are ready at any hour."

He dismissed with a phrase the material achievements of the regime—road building and claimed reduction in unemployment.

"Our miracle, however, was resurrection of a humiliated people," Hitler said. "That miracle consisted not in the fact that one man arose (Hitler) who believed in the resurrection but that millions followed him and went the same way.

"That I found you, that you bore with me all these years—that was Germany's great good fortune."

Emphasizing that the 120,000 uniformed men before him were only an extremely small percentage of his 2,500,000 storm troopers, his 226,000 black uniformed "S. S." men, not to mention the regular armed forces, Hitler asked:

"Who can oppose this bloc of national determination?

"Our old enemy, Bolshevism, is vanquished within Germany but still active around her borders.

"But let no one be deceived. We are ready at any hour. We have one wish—to maintain peace—but with it goes one firm decision: Never to surrender Germany to that enemy we have come to know so well."

Referring to Spain he said: "Everywhere agitators are calling masses together in demonstrations against Fascism and against National Socialism—demonstrations for supplying arms and ammunition and volunteers.

"But if I should call a demonstration it would amaze the world. Millions upon millions would respond with flaming hearts."

DAILY FOREIGN NEWS COMMENT

The seventeenth annual assembly of the League of Nations will take place on Sept. 21st. To which Japan, Germany, Italy and several other nations say, "So what?"

Nevertheless fifty nations will send delegates. It is a pretty safe guess that with more assorted troubles on their hands than have ever been the lot of any Assembly, the fiction of unity of purpose will be preserved by following general procedure and transacting routine business.

Among the spectres which are so hard to lay are such fearsome apparitions as these:

(1) Ethiopia still exists as a "state occupied by an enemy." Emperor Haile Selassie is still the recognized head of this State. This view is regarded by Mussolini as irresistibly comic, as most abstract questions of right and wrong are considered by dictators nowadays. Italy will likely not send a delegation to the Assembly if the credentials of the Ethiopians delegation are accepted. As they paid their yearly dues for membership previously, it would seem to require an exceptional degree of finesse to exclude Ethiopia's envoys. However no doubt a "formula" will be found by the brilliant Geneva diplomatic chemists, who are by now well skilled in the art of alchemy.

(2) Manchoukuo is another unwanted founding on the League's doorstep. Though still unrecognized it cries lustily and thrives very well with occasional help from its fond mother Japan. The child is growing so big that the neighbors are beginning to be afraid of it.

(3) The Germans say openly that they are directing their rearmament against Soviet Russia, a League member in good standing.

(4) The French say they will stand by their defensive alliance with the Russians.

The only distinct gain in sight is the almost certain separation of the League Covenant from the Versailles Treaty.

Using the League to enforce the Peace Treaty has brought war so near that a final divorce between this ill-paired couple is just around the corner.

Alberta Trade

(Continued from Page One) "The trend at present is toward buying direct from the manufacturers," Mr. Manning declared. "While it was necessary to provide the people with goods the Government is not thinking of setting up a competitive system.

"Our responsibility lies purely in seeing the people get the goods they need. It seems to me retailers would soon become active in that respect if they did not get service from wholesalers. Our field would be to arrange for purchase of goods direct from the manufacturers, but distribution would be to the merchants."

K. J. Tall of Medicine Hat, Alta., has been appointed a Trade Commissioner for the Province and will open an office in Montreal soon. Similar trade offices might be opened in Winnipeg and Vancouver, and the government might arrange with British co-operatives for exchange of goods, Premier Aberhart has said.
