OLD PARTIES IN UNITED STATES ARE DOOMED SAYS VETERAN

Danger of Swinging Youth to Communism or Fascism --- Many People Want Change

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Following up its recent survey of the millions of new voters who will go to the polls for the first time on November 3rd, The American Magazine today publishes an article by Lewis J. Gorin, Jr., organizer and national commander of the 100,000 youthful Veterans of Future Wars, in which he charges both Democrats and Republicans with cloaking their true aims in a cloud of slogans and catchwords.

Continuance of this policy, he warns will result in swinging the youth of the country either to Communism or Fascism, and as a remedy he suggests scrapping of the old political organizations and formation of clearly defined liberal and conservative parties, which will base their campaigns on facts instead of slogans.

Mr. Gorin, who was graduated from Princeton last June and is now attending Harvard Law School, states that the present parties are giving the voters nothing more than 'a brass band, a banner and pap.' Discussing the need for a new party set-up, he says:

"The liberal party should be made up of those people who want to change their government, and the conservative party of those who have something to gain by ensuring stability. Naturally, the conservatives will be property holders. The principal aim of government seems to be to ensure peace and equilibrium in human affairs, and if there is no conservative party in the government working to that purpose, that government is hardly a success. At the same time, the equilibrium which we have is always unstable, and it requires a set of thinking men, who are willing to brave progress, to plan the inevitable change. Therein lies the purpose of a liberal party."

The national survey of new voters by The American Magazine showed that they could, if united, swing the election one way or another, but Mr. Gorin seems to feel that this merely gives his group a choice of evils. He does not reveal how he himself will cast his first ballot, but has this to say about the old parties:

"While both Republican and Democratic parties are glib with catchwords, they are reticent about voicing their fundamental principles. They both believe that we should have a constitutional government as set forth by the founding fathers, and both maintain that Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness mean something besides a couple of titles for magazines and the name of a motion picture. But they devote their time to discussing which is 'the party of Jefferson' and which believes in 'the American system,' meanwhile clouding all, if any, issues.

"Most of us in this country believe in progress. We are not agreed on the rate of progress, and the rate for a sure and intelligent progress can best be developed by compromise between the venturesome liberal interests and the solid conservative interests. But if our parties continue to cloak their nature in silly catchwords and slogans, the people will become in time so confused that they will demand a change toward either fascism or communism.

"Our parties are not giving to us younger voters, or to any voters for that matter, a clear definition of what they intend. We are getting a brass band, a banner, and pap. They aren't very satisfying."

Mr. Gorin reports that his generation remembers little of the campaign of the last twenty years except the slogans. In 1916 they were rocked to sleep by the soft but constant repetition of the phrase "he kept us out of war." As they prepared to enter school in 1920 they learned to read the three word Harding prescription for a "return to normalcy." The formula in 1924 was to "keep cool with Coolidge" and in 1928 it was "who but Hoover?"

"In 1932 it was easy to predict the election of Mr. Roosevelt," Mr. Gorin writes, "for he could proclaim at every turn that what was needed was 'a New Deal for the forgotten man.' Mr. Hoover tried to conduct a campaign almost without slogans, and naturally lost. Nobody today can remember what Mr. Hoover had to say in 1932.

"In this year 1936 all the old slogans have been dusted off and polished up and even some new ones invented. This promises to be the closest election in years. Never have the slogan writers been so prolific. The supporters of 'Wear a Cap' Lamke have even predicted that the election will have to be decided in the House of Representatives. This prophecy is based on the idea that there are enough cap wearers in the country to give Mr. Lamke the controlling electoral votes.

"This seems contrary to the accepted idea of how to campaign for election to the presidency. As a matter of fact, when you study the backing of Mr. Lamke you will see that about the only irrefutable thing about him is the fact that he wears a cap. But, in spite of Lamke, it appears to my unpracticed eye that the two old-timers, Roosevelt and Landon, may have a chance to get somewhere after all. They not only have some excellent tried-and-true slogans, but they have also developed some new ones with which to plague each other and the voters.

"Meanwhile, I am casting my first vote, confident that I shall live to participate in political campaigns fought with facts rather than with phrases."

LOTS OF WORK FOUND IN WEST

GODERICH, Oct. 26.—"There's plenty of work in the Canadian West for those who want work," chorused three husky Bruce County youths, passing through here today in an old car, en route to their home near Port Elgin after five months on the prairies. The boys were Harold McArthur, Harold Cannon and Alvin Boettger, all in their twenties. They were in high spirits with money in their pockets.

"We went to Rimby, Alta., in May, and were never idle a day until we left for home," said McArthur. "We made $1.50 a day and board for general farm work, and $2.50 a day and board during the threshing season. We said we were from Bruce Township, in Bruce County, and the job was ours for the asking—just like that. That's what they think of Bruce County lads out West. And we were paid in real cash—no scrip for us."

The boys made over 7,000 miles in an old auto they purchased for $75 before leaving home. They drove and slept in relays, night and day and the total cost of the trip home, including food, was $40 for the trio.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—C. P. Fullerton, former chairman of the board of trustees of the Canadian National Railways, will receive $30,000, one year's salary, as a retiring allowance. An order-in-council has been passed by the cabinet approving the payment.

Mr. Fullerton was appointed for a term of seven years, but legislation altering the railway setup resulted in the abolition of his position before this term expired.

The government has decided to retain Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the Canadian Radio Commission in an advisory capacity to the newly created Canadian Radio Broadcasting Corporation which will replace the commission at the end of this month.

CONGREGATIONS LARGE AT THE CHURCHES SUNDAY

The churches of the city were largely attended yesterday, and interesting and inspirational sermons were delivered at the various churches.

At Brunswick Street Baptist church Rev. G. W. Guluu spoke both morning and evening. In the morning his subject was "Two Men Went up to the Temple to Pray," and in the evening he spoke on "The Christian Message of our National Life," a sermon from the series of Evangelization of Canadian Life programmes being carried on in the churches this month.

At Wilmut church the pastor, Rev. J. W. Bartlett spoke in the morning and evening. "Facing up to Life," was the title of the morning sermon, and the evening subject was "A Protest against Taking Orders from Anti-Christ." This latter was the second in a series of Protest sermons. In the afternoon at the Wilmut Brotherhood meeting Rev. John Copp, M.A., spoke most interestingly on the subject of a Russian book, "Fate of Man in Modern Times." There was a large attendance.

The twentieth Sunday after Trinity was observed at Christchurch Cathedral, with Rev. Dean W. H. Moorhead as speaker both morning and evening. Holy Communion was observed at 11 a.m. On Wednesday the festival of St. Simon and St. Jude will be observed with Holy Communion at 8 a.m., and on Thursday Holy Communion also at eight o'clock.

Rev. F. E. Bishop, B.D., of Digby, N.S., was the speaker at the evening service of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday. Rev. Dr. G. E. Ross spoke on the subject, "Our Vast Home Mission Field" at the morning service. Special music featured a solo by Mrs. Charles Fleet and a violin solo by R. M. Webber.

At the Advent Christian church Rev. Milton C. Burt spoke at all services. "Things not seen as Yet," was the morning theme and in the evening there was a service of song followed by the sermon. The congregations were large.

Less Passing

Will Cut Points 25 Per Cent

"But all the gang here are glad this business of three and four assists on the one goal has been tossed overboard. Why, it has reached the stage where defencemen handling the puck behind the blue line got assists. And last year Tiny Thompson, the Boston goaler, got one for passing the puck out to Eddie Shore. It cheapened them."

"I got 28 assists the year before last and 38 last season, but I was between two good scorers, 'Sweeney' Scribner and Lorne Carr. I figured I earned them all, but I supposed every one else does too."

Hockey experts consider the new rule made at the Board of Governors meeting in New York recently will cut the total points awarded the players by something like 25 per cent. If the scorers observe the rule that an assist must not be credited when a goal is scored from a rebound off a goalkeeper the reduction may be even greater.

More Assists Every Year

In recent years there has been a progressive increase in the number of assists handed out by the scorers. Ten years ago they formed only 28 per cent. of the total points. There was an increase the next year to about 31 per cent., then to 37 per cent. in the 1928-29 season when "Cooney" Weiland of Boston Bruins set up his scoring record with 43 goals and 30 assists.

By 1934-35 assists formed 57 per cent. of the total points, more than double the percentage of 1926-27, and last season there was only a slight drop to about 55 per cent.

APPALLING CONDITIONS TO BE INVESTIGATED BY NEW BRUNSWICK SOCIAL WORKERS

Felt That Something Should Be Done to Prevent Crime --- Bannister Case is Cited --- Provincial Department of Health Has Report of Conditions in Province.

It is stated on good authority that leading social workers in this province have decided to make a survey of conditions existing in this province especially in some rural districts in Albert, Westmorland, Kings, Northumberland and York counties. It is also understood that the investigations will be followed by some drastic action to eliminate as far as possible certain appalling conditions which have been of general knowledge for some time.

Some months ago two leading social workers, one of whom was Dr. Mabel Hannington of Saint John and the other a woman who is well posted on social conditions throughout the Dominion, made a report on social conditions in this province. This report, which is now on file at the provincial department of health, reveals conditions which would surprise and shock the general public if it could be published in full.

Oversized

We find them hiding themselves in other ways. They stay in the background. They don't volunteer for dramatics, they don't go to dances, they avoid appearing in any place where others look at them. This is bad because it builds up mental barriers, as well as physical ones, between themselves and complete living.

Dress the big child, the tall child, the heavy one, in such a way as to lessen his marked difference. Forget about his age, and buy clothes that suit him no matter what label they bear.

Try to have him go with children more his own size. Schools are usually co-operative in this matter and issue special programmes for such children.

Teach him that his height, or his size, is no disgrace. It is the mark of fitness and health. The larger children have more power, as a usual thing than the little ones. Stature has a relation of health and power.

Keep trying to get these children to value their size. Try to get them to make it an asset among their many others. Praise good carriage. Point out the success of the tall ones of the earth and so condition their thinking to acceptance of their endowments.

Even then there is something for the children to overcome. They stand out in a crowd, and they dislike it. You will have to stand by, keep encouraging, teaching, praising, until they catch up to their height and weight by growth of mind and body.

It was felt that where in recent months many thousands of dollars were spent in certain parts of the country to prosecute crime, notably in the Bannister case, that if a portion at least of this amount were spent to eliminate such certain conditions that lead up to these crimes that public welfare would be much better served. It is no secret, in fact it is recorded, that in many sections of New Brunswick there are children living today who were born of illicit intercourse between father and daughter. One man speaking to The Daily Mail today stated that where thousands of dollars went from this country every year, and rightly so, to convert the heathen in China and Africa and so on, that it might be well for social workers to first spend a portion of this money in our own province. A well known clergyman told The Daily Mail not long ago that he knew of conditions existing less than a hundred miles from Fredericton which would shock the ordinary citizen if he was informed of the details. Hon. Dr. Roberts, minister of health, who has perused the report referred to, is strongly of the opinion that something should be done to better the social conditions which exist in many parts of our fair province.
