that King Edward need not marry a royal princess but may wed a commoner."

The magazine cites royal marriages under the act of 1772, affecting descendants of King George II.

King Edward is a descendant of King George II.

"The only limitation on the King's choice of a bride is that which forbids him to marry a Catholic," the Review will say.

King Edward, on a shooting party at his Sandringham estate, signalled the court's emergence today from nine months' formal mourning for the late King George V by appearing in a green Tyrolean hat decorated with a bright red cord, and brown plus-fours. He participated in his first shoot of the season, being in the field from early morning to late afternoon.

forces of private philanthropy, with the happiest results.

"We have been living through years of storm. I believe the skies are clearing and the storm abating; but it has left uneasy waters behind it and a great deal of salvage work before the nation," Lord Tweedsmuir said. "There are many individuals and families who have fallen below the standard of civilized life. There is much sheer physical distress to be relieved. More important still, we have to face the moral effects of years of continued unemployment. Household goods have been scattered, family life has been dislocated; men and women, haunted by economic insecurity, have begun to lose their nerve and look out upon the world with hopeless eyes. We have not only to succor the body, but to revive the spirit."

"Much of this task must fall upon the State, and to its performance every taxpayer contributed. But the State today had greatly enlarged its area of duty."

"We realize that it is not a remote and impersonal thing, but the collective powers of the community organized to help any part which is in distress. But that is not enough. There will always remain a big margin which no Government can reach and which must be left to private benevolence," his Excellency said.

Organic

tion had been patented in any other country. Under the old act two years was allowed.

For six months after the new act went into effect the old act was still effective, and the applicants could come in under whichever act they desired. Hundreds of applications came from United States during that six months of inventions which had been patented in that country more than a year before, and this was their last chance to patent them in Canada before the old act was discarded. Another important change in the new act is that the life of the patent is now seventeen years, instead of eighteen years, as formerly.

Few to Canadians

Of all the patents issued during the year, only 792, or 10 per cent., went to residents in Canada. Residents of the United States obtained 5,010, or 64 per cent., of the total. Residents of the British Empire outside of Canada obtained 382, and 1,107 went to foreign countries other than the United States.

Every year, as far as the officials of the department can recall, applications have been received to patent machines designed to produce perpetual motion. Last year was no exception to the rule. However, the officials now insist that the applicant must produce a working model that will run perpetually, and the applicants never come back.

The Patents Branch is profitable to the Dominion Treasury. Last year the receipts were $454,762, and the expenditures $226,650. Both represented substantial increases over the previous year.

A notable increase was shown in applications for inventions relating to organic chemistry, the report stated.

Wilmot Brotherhood

The programme followed at yesterday's meeting of the Wilmot Brotherhood was a departure from the usual procedure. Instead of entering upon a discussion of some of the teachings of Christ the Brotherhood listened to an address by Rev. John Copp upon a recent book, "The Fate of Man in the Modern World." The book is written by Nicholas Berdgaev a Russian who discovered the error of Communism and who is today considered one of the greatest religious philosophers of history. The author sees the European War of 1914-1918 as a judgment upon history, Rev. Mr. Copp said. Itself organized chaos, the war was a culmination of chaotic influences working through history. These influences began with capitalism, came to fruition in the Great War and have continued in post-war history as collectivizations, i.e., movements to persuade man to move individuality to the state. The Communism of Russia and National Socialism of Germany are examples of this collectivization.

As a result of this influence man is losing his identity as man—as a son of God. A basic force is advancing the mass at the expense of individuality. The machine is dehumanizing man. Is the future to belong to man as man or to some dehumanized thing represented by a number on a pay sheet? asked Mr. Copp in summarizing the threat in this development.

In the growth of technocracy, in the principles of Germany's political party, the National Socialists, in the myth of racial purity which Germany claims for itself and in other facts of modern history the author of "The Fate of Man in the Modern World" sees just such influences as culminated in the chaos of the World War. So today the world is faced with the task of recreating civilization, Mr. Copp said. There is grave danger of the reconstruction falling into anti-Christian hands. The task calls man to a kingly duty. Christianity must undertake the work. The new Christian will not curse the world. He will try to embody in its civilization a freedom implying the acknowledgement of truth.

Following this address the sincere appreciation of the Brotherhood was extended to Rev. Mr. Copp in an unanimous vote of thanks moved by Austin Squires and seconded by C. A. Smith. The meeting then concluded with the singing of a hymn and the benediction.

AN AUTUMN DAY

See, etched against a leaden sky,
Their branches all so bare and grey.
Yet perfect in their symmetry,
The trees are flitting openly
With darkling clouds that scurry by.

The winds, that kiss so daintily
The golden leaves that sleeping lie
On Mother Earth, and, sleeping, die,
Rush to the sea and, tossing high
The waves, laugh long and merrily.

As darkness falls, a misty rain,
Descending like a foggy veil,
Bedews with tears both hill and dale,
That glisten as they turn to hail.
Ah, when will springtime come again?
—Mack.

VanWart, pastor, who was assisted by the choir from Upper Hainesville, who sang the hymns "Just When I Need Him Most," "Sweet Will of God," "There is No Night There," and "Abide With Me." There were many beautiful floral tributes testifying to the esteem in which she was held in the community. Her remains were tenderly laid to rest in the cemetery in Staple Settlement, beside her infant daughter, who was buried on Thursday last.

Rev. C. Leroi Mooers
In Farewell Sermon

Rev. C. Leroi Mooers, rector of St. Mary's Parish church, Devon, who is leaving on Thursday with Mrs. Mooers for Sackville, where he has been called, delivered his farewell sermon last night to a large congregation. In the course of his sermon Rev. Mr. Mooers reviewed the past eight years in which he had been connected with the parish and expressed his appreciation at the co-operation which he had received. He spoke also of the new rector, Rev. H. E. Dysart, who is expected here shortly, and he asked that the same co-operation be given his successor. Rev. Mr. Mooers said that the rector alone could not make a success of the work of the church. The church of God is more than parochial boundaries, he said. Concluding Rev. Mr. Mooers asked for the consecration of everyone to God. Rev. Mr. Mooers spoke at St. Peter's church at Durham in the afternoon, and at the All Saints' church in Marysville in the morning.

Nations of the World
Need Christ as King

The special feast of Christ the King was celebrated at St. Dunstan's church yesterday. At High Mass celebrated at 10.30 o'clock Rev. Dr. J. H. Milligan preached the sermon appropriate to the Feast. Dr. Milligan traced the history of the nations of the earth to show that whilst individuals and nations recognized Christ as their King and took the Lord into their partnership that peace had prevailed to a large extent upon the earth. During recent years, however, since the nations have drifted away from Christ and atheism has taken the place of Christianity the world has ceased to be at peace. When the nations of the world acknowledge Christ as their King and get back to the principles of Christianity, then and not until then will the world be at peace.
