Witnesses in Small Case

Small home about Nov. 29, 1929, when Browne said Mrs. Ambrose Small was at the door. Sullivan said she came in and he introduced her as Mrs. Pretille and a Mrs. Johns. The Small sisters had left the house 15 minutes earlier.

"Mrs. Small said she wanted to see me personally; she said she wanted to see the Small sisters," said Sullivan.

He then told of showing Browne a document that was presented and of getting pen and ink which Mrs. Small used to sign the paper while Browne looked over her shoulder.

"I asked her who the people were who she said in the document she was closing their mouths," said Sullivan. "I asked her if one was Mr. A. and she said he was one."

He told her he would say nothing about it, and three days later Gertrude von Hartman, Mrs. Small's maid, came to him and said there was a plot to injure him. Soon after this he was arrested "for something I published in my paper, Thunderer."

Returned Last November

The document was taken away, said Sullivan, by "The confessor," but was returned to the Small sisters and himself last November by a woman whom he did not know. She said she was living in Hamilton.

Ordered by the examiner to produce the original document, Sullivan said it was at the sisters' home, "and if you will protect Miss Small's home against the Black Army gang blowing up her home I'll produce it."

The two women at the Misses Small home when the document was signed, said Sullivan, are now living in the United States. He asked them not to say anything about the confession.

Bert Browne, the painter, told the examiner he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan in 1928. He met Sullivan in 1929.

He said that when the document was shown at the Misses Small home Sullivan told him, "This is a confession."

"It was on cheap paper and type-written on two sheets and unfastened," said Browne. Sullivan gave it to me and asked me to read it. He went for pen and ink. He whispered 'Come and witness this signature.' I was standing about a foot from the confessor. The signature was just the first initial and the surname. The confessor did not notice me standing there."

Told to Keep Quiet

Questioned by T. N. Phelan, K.C., counsel for executors of Mrs. Theresa Small's estate, why he kept quiet about seeing "a confession signed that Ambrose Small had been murdered," Browne replied he was not interested and Sullivan told me to keep my mouth shut.

He talked to Sullivan later who told him "that old—would sign anything."

Browne said he had not seen an envelope with the document and could not say how the pages were folded.

"Do you believe in Communism?" asked Mr. Phelan.

"I believe it would be better for the human race," said Browne.

Miss Florence Small said she was told the document was delivered to her home "four or five weeks" after the death of the confessor. She first heard of it in 1929 from Sullivan and Patrick Small.

"It was said to be delivered after the confessor's death, but I didn't believe it," said Miss Small. "I telephoned the confessor and was informed of the confession. I told the confessor if I had been at home I would have thrown the confessor out. I had no faith in what the confessor did."

Not Surprised

"I was not surprised at the confessor being implicated in it," she continued. "It said the confessor was responsible for my brother's death. The confessor came over to get me to use my influence to stop Sullivan using something about the confessor in the 'Thunderer.'"

She said she believed Sullivan in his statement that a confession had been made on the murder of her brother. She questioned if there was any use in making it public or going to the police, and said there was no revelation "until the confessor was dead."

Patrick Small said he made an affidavit at Sullivan's request and it was six years after the document signing that Sullivan asked him to recall the first of the confessor. He was sure "the confessor" was seen at the Small sisters' home around Nov. 20, 1929, and visited the sisters six or seven times a year for the last 20 years.

Patrick Small said he saw "the confessor" enter and leave the house and was told by Sullivan "the confessor had made a confession."

"The confessor took it away," continued Small. "One lady who was present asked 'What's the use of that?' The Small sisters came in when Sullivan told them what had

CANADIANA

CANADIAN POETRY MAGAZINE

We have received the second number of the Canadian Poetry Magazine, a quarterly magazine issued under the auspices of the Canadian Authors' Association for the encouragement and development of Canadian Verse. The publishers do a service to Canadian literature in their endeavour to stimulate an interesting in Canadian verse. Their magazine is doing a work for Canadian literature that no other magazine has yet undertaken. It is a pleasure to know that the promoters of this magazine—and they include some of the best known literary men in Canada—are meeting with encouragement in their efforts.

An annual award will be given for the poem adjudged the best over the four issues of the magazine for the year. In addition there will be three prizes of fifteen, ten and five dollars awarded for the best poems in each issue as selected by the advisory board. This board is composed of Dr. E. J. Pratt, W. T. Allison, Alexander Calhoun, Pehham Edgar, H. F. Munroe, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts, Duncan Campbell Scott, Arthur Stringer and other well known Canadian writers.

Fredericton as the birth place of many of Canada's well known writers such as Carman, Roberts, Sherman and others should be particularly interested in this magazine. Well known local writers who have already contributed include Dr. Theodore Goodridge Roberts, Dr. Alfred G. Bailey and Dorothy Roberts Leisner. The subscription price of the magazine is $2.00 per year or fifty cents per number. It is published at Toronto. The next number will be published in July. We extend our best wishes for its success.

ATTENDED FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Robichaud are in Bathurst today where this morning they attended the funeral of William Boucher, whose death took place under sad circumstances on Saturday morning. The late Mr. Boucher was in the act of lighting a fire in his stove when his clothes caught fire and he was so seriously burned that death ensued shortly afterwards. His second wife was Miss Gertrude Boudreau, a sister of Mrs. Robichaud of this city. Surviving are his wife and five children. Deceased was formerly a resident of Bathurst but lived in Petit Rocher recently. Many attended the funeral this morning at Bathurst.

"Wisely, and slow, they stumble that run fast"

The public demanded shirts for one dollar. Being public servants we felt it our duty to meet this demand. First we had to secure shirts of quality equal to our standard of value, or keep out of the low price field.

Realizing the truth of the words of Chesterfield, "A man of sense may be in haste, but never in a hurry, because he knows that whatever he does in a hurry he must do very ill"—we therefore took our time and carefully "combed" the shirt manufacturers' lines for values before we decided to "stock" shirts at this price. We feel confident that you will agree with us that our dollar shirts are real value—worth one dollar of any man's hard-earned money.

When better shirts are made to sell for one dollar, they'll be sold at
