Maybe She Like Heem -- Maybe-e-e She Doesn't

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 22—Speaking allegro can fuoco, Lily Pons stated her feelings today about appearing in a movie with Nino Martin. "One opera star in a picture is enough," she said.

The fiery little Belgian was annoyed about the suggestion that the two should sing in a musical film. She said the studio had publicly announced it held her under a five-year contract and that her next picture would be with Martin.

"Mine is not a five-year contract," she said. "I am a free agent after this picture is finished. I want all the world to know that."

But S. J. Briskin, Vice-President in charge of production at R.K.O., says Miss Pons is under contract to that company, and must take orders, not give them, as long as the contract exists.

Bennetts, Joan and Constance On Air Friday

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22—Constance and Joan Bennett, famed sisters of the screen, will talk about each other on two successive broadcasts as guests of Elza Schallert, NBC Hollywood commentator.

RADIO IN SHORTS

Gibbons Gabs

Floyd Gibbons is finding that his radio work on the Saturday night programme in which he appears with Vincent Lopez and his orchestra is serving a double purpose. Conversing with radio veterans who are featured as guest stars, Gibbons gains much material for his newspaper columns.

Dick's Versatile

Dick Ballou, who supplies the music for the Ed East and Ralph Dumke programme twice weekly via CBS, is one of radio's most versatile young men. He studied at Juilliard School of Music, Curtis Institute, University of Michigan, New York University, played football and baseball, sang in the musical picture "42nd Street," and now leads his own orchestra—and he's still in his early twenties.

Precedent-Breaker

Phillips Lord broke a precedent recently when he went to a night club with Irene Crites, Ozark woman featured on a recent "We, The People," programme. Lord's radio work keeps him too busy for night life and he has established a policy to stay away from public places.

Cantor Shoots

With Charlie Cantor making a picture short in Long Island, the cinematic success of Fred Allen's stooges continues. Lionel Stander and Jack Smart, who gained microphone fame with the droll comic, are making great headway in Hollywood. Cantor now has the Number One stooging role with Allen.

Discs for Ducey

Phil Ducey completed four sets of records last week. He sang two operatic melodies, two Negro spirituals, and four popular songs, featuring "Moonlight and Roses" and "Moon of My Delight" on one record.

Harris Harrassed

Just for a lark, the Jack Benny cast picks the weekly football games. Don Wilson is in the lead, with Jack, Kenny Baker and Mary Livingstone following in order. Phil Harris brings up the rear, and is he mad!

King's the King!

A poll taken among students at the University of Southern California reveals that Henry King's orchestra is the favorite, with Carj Ravazza's band in second place. King recently concluded an engagement at Hollywood's Coconut Grove at the Trocadero.

The Indian Treaty

feminine handwriting, and that their particular ranks are written in French. While there is no absolute proof that this is the handwriting of Madame de Bellisle, I am strongly of opinion that it is, and that we see here reproduced on this peace treaty the penmanship of the woman whose early home was burned by the English when the war began in 1703. Her own home on the Saint John was burned by the English in 1758 when Monckton's force ascended the river.

The treaty of Utrecht, 1713, gave Acadia to England but did not define the boundaries. France claimed all of the mainland, allowing to England only the peninsula of Nova Scotia, moreover, they held it in a large part from 1713 to 1758. During this period French missionaries worked among the Indians, ministering to them spiritually and also teaching loyalty to France. The English accused them of being leaders in the planning of aggressive raids. Perhaps they were. At any rate, there is no doubt they were loyal to France and loyalty may be looked upon in a different way by different people. One of these missionaries was Father Ralle, who labored for thirty-seven years among the Indians, and had a church with bell at Norridgewock on the western boundary of Acadia. The English blamed him for many things and offered a bounty of 1,000 livres for his head.

In August, 1724, a force of 200 men with three Mohawk Indian guides, or scouts, surprised the village of Norridgewock, killed Father Ralle and many of his people, and robbed and burned the church. To accounts of this attack have come down to us. One from an English participant and one from the French historian, Charlevoix. Both agree in stating that Father Ralle was scalped. Charlevoix states:

"They found him pierced with a thousand shot, his scalp taken off, his skull fractured with a hatchet, his mouth and ears filled with dirt, the bones of his legs broken and all his members mutilated in a hundred different ways."

The loss of this priest, and the killing of a famous Indian chief, named Pagus in the early spring of 1725, and the breaking up of the Androscoggon tribe by the raids of a Captain Lovewell in the same years seems to have left the Indians without leaders and decided them to sue for peace. In that year the English offered a bounty of £100 for an Indian scalp and an old record speaks of Capt. Lovewell presenting ten scalps in Boston and claiming the reward of £1,000 only a few months before the delegates gathered in the council chamber at Boston to form this peace treaty. Thus it was that this treaty was signed at the close of a very bloody war when the life of no white man or Indian was safe in the forest or on the rivers or lakes of Acadia.

There is much more which could be said about the history of one period with which this treaty deals, about those who signed it, and about how it was broken, but I think I have said enough to illustrate that it is rather an interesting old document. There is one more thought I should like to suggest in closing. The contrast in matters of communication and travel between 1725 and the present. How much travel there must have been then and under what conditions to summon the delegates to Boston? What must have been the conditions of travel for those who went from the Saint John River, from Nova Scotia and from the coast of Maine to that conference in December? The dead past has buried its dead, and we live in a different age at present. Nevertheless, it is well for us to keep the record of our history, the stirring tale of how our country came to be.

WESTPORT, Conn., Oct. 21—Ethel Atwell Tolley and her new hubby, Cyril Tolley, must leave town, Judge Frank B. McMahon of Norwalk city police court decided today.

Ethel's intention of staying here until after election was shattered when the judge sentenced the ex-wife of stuttering Roy Atwell and her husband to 60 days in jail and suspended sentences on condition they leave Westport in seven days.

BOSTON, Oct. 21—An outraged father sought in vain yesterday, through Salem police and court officials, to bring back, minus her bridegroom, his pretty 17-year-old daughter who had eloped to Portsmouth, N.H.

The father, Thaddeus Wisniewski of Andrew St. Salem, appeared at headquarters, and pleaded with police to go to Portsmouth and bring back his daughter.
