"MILLIONAIRE" GAG WORKS, POSED AS A RELATIVE

Stayed With a Lincoln Resident 3 Weeks By Smooth Tongue

Worked "Cook" Gag Then Folded Tent Like Arab, and Silently Stole Away

A smooth individual who gave his name as Robt. Legere and posed as a millionaire, landed in Lincoln about a month ago. He posed as a family friend of Thomas H. Bourque of that place and succeeded in not only running up three weeks' board, including roast chicken and the fixin's and all the extras which Mr. Bourque could provide, but also succeeded in departing with about $50 in cash which he painlessly extracted from members of the Bourque family. He then gave out that he was coming to town and he took his grip containing all his clothes, saying that he was going to give it to a poor family. That is the last that has been seen of him.

Previous to visiting Mr. Bourque of Lincoln this man Legere landed at Aul. He lost no time in getting friendly with the cook and engaged that young man, whose name is Barry to become his chief cook in connection with his vast estates and ranches in California. Barry who was promised $100 a week, resigned his job at Aul and was preparing to go to California with the millionaire Legere when the balloon blew up.

Mr. Bourque who owns and operates the old Senator Glasier estate at Lincoln is one of the most comfortable farmers on the river. When the stranger arrived he told Mr. Bourque that his car had met with an accident and he had abandoned it, as it was only a cheap Lincoln car. He told Mr. Bourque that if any of the boys wanted to take the car and fix it up they could have it. He stated that the Legeres and the Bourques had been family friends many years ago on the North Shore and that as he had made several million dollars he was disposed to divide it up, and to use them generously as soon as his checks began to come in from home.

Legere seems to have had somebody working in league with him for one day a lady's voice called up the Bourques on the telephone and asked them to tell Mr. Legere that there was $7,000 at the bank and they wished he would come to town and get it. There was excitement in the Bourque household and everyone was wondering how much of the $7,000 they were going to get. When Legere came home he was given the telephone message and he did not appear to be unduly excited about a small matter like $7,000.

It was only a day or two later that he folded up his tent like the Arab and silently stole away.

SMALL ROOF FIRE
A small roof fire occurred on the barn at the residence of Vernon Olive on Aberdeen street this morning. The damage was slight.

Successful Year By Technical Agriculturists

Owing to the absence of Dean A. M. Shaw, the retiring president, the president's address was read by Dean W. H. Brittain, president-elect, at this afternoon's session of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists. In his address Dean Shaw paid homage to the society and commented. He appreciated the welcome paid by the province of New Brunswick and declared that the balancing of the accounts of the association during the year was an outstanding achievement. He referred to the publications carried on by the association and its success and congratulated the editorial board. A report of the Finance board showed successful operation in the year's work. While there has been an increase in membership more is asked. About sixty delegates have already registered.

This afternoon Dr. C. C. Jones, president of the U.N.B., gave an address of welcome. He said that a joint meeting will be held on Thursday—the third special convocation ever to be held by the U.N.B. He mentioned in his address the tremendous advance in technical agriculture.

"Where, Oh Where . . ."

There is a report that dissension has arisen in the ranks of the once mighty Tory party in York. It is said that at a recent gathering of the clans held in this city that many of the local lights who had formerly been prominent both in the federal and local arena were conspicuous by their absence. One was away attending to his golf balls, another to his sick calls, and still others were sulking in their tents and refused to be comforted. Those who were present at the gathering the other day reported that a pleasant time "was had by all."

"Where, oh where is the Tory party, that we knew once long ago."

NORWAY—Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese labor and religious leader, arrived here today to attend the twelfth World Sunday School convention. Permission for the noted Japanese to traverse Germany, Denmark and Sweden was at first refused, but later granted after urgent requests were made to authorities.

AUSTRIA—Hopes are reviving that the Austro-German tension of the last few months is nearing an end. This has a dampening effect on the aspirations of the Monarchists, but these are comforting themselves with the thought that the difficulties are too deep-rooted to be overcome easily.

PLENTY OF PULP FLOATING

A great quantity of pulpwood floated past the city over the weekend. At the present time a large crew of men is engaged in sacking logs off the shores on the St. John river above this city, which accounts for the surplus of pulp in the water.

Visited Moose River Mine, Got Some Specimens

The first Fredericton people to visit the Moose River mine, made famous by the recent disaster there, are Mrs. Jack Dewar, of this city, and her sister, Miss Muriel Dykeman. The two Fredericton ladies returned over the weekend after spending about ten days in Nova Scotia. They report a great number of tourists as visiting that area during the summer. The Moose River mine is not now in operation but Mrs. Dewar and her sister were shown the site by Frank Prest, who was recently paid a tribute by the N. S. Legislature in the form of an engraved resolution commending him for his part in the rescue work of the three men who were trapped in the mine, and whose story is known now all over the civilized world. The Fredericton ladies visited the MacDonald mine and the mine owned by Sutherland & Crow and were able to secure two splendid specimens of gold ore. About $100,000 worth of gold has been taken out of these mines in the last two months. The local visitors to the mine area were shown the cairn which is being erected in tribute to Herman Magill, the only one of the three entombed men who lost his life. While at Moose River Mrs. Dewar and her sister were entertained by Mr. Prest's sister at the "Wayside Inn." Isaac Lively and George Geddas, workers there, were kind enough to show the Fredericton people about the mine area. The Moose River mine is not now in operation. The Fredericton ladies were observant enough to notice that the two other gold mines there are situated on higher ground than the Moose river mine, which is in a boggy area, and which right now is half full of water.

"Glorious Twelfth" Celebrated By the Local Orangemen

"The Glorious Twelfth" was celebrated for this part of New Brunswick on Sunday, with a special service at Taymouth, when more than 300 members of the Orange lodges, Prentice Boys and L.O.B.A. organizations through the county attended. An impressive service was held in the United Church, held under the auspices of the York county lodge. Rev. J. E. Shanklin preached the sermon, his text being, "Are Ye Different to Others?" A great number lined the elm-shaded roadside to watch the proceedings. The principles of the Orange lodge and its foundation were outlined by Rev. Mr. Shanklin. The collection for the special service amounting to $42.47 was donated to the N. B. Protestant Orphans' Home. A quartet from Wilmot United church composed of F. T. Pridham, Vernon Box, John Harrison and Fred Barker sang several selections. There were impressive parades during the afternoon.
