DR. BRYCE COMMENDS THE CO-OPERATION OF ALL CHRISTIAN SECTS IN THE DOMINION

MONCTON, Nov. 5—In his opening remarks yesterday in opening his Maritime tour here last night, Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, stated that there was a growing appreciation on the part of the people in Canada as to the value of the church in the community.

Dr. Bryce was addressing a public meeting in St. John's United Church, with Rev. Dr. J. A. Ramsay presiding. He said that the churches in general have adopted a spirit of advance, and added that there was a growing spirit of co-operation among the Christian sects, citing as "one of the most magnificent trends in religion today, the noble efforts of the Catholic and Protestant churches in alleviating hunger and destitution in the stricken western provinces."

The moderator arrived here this afternoon and opened his Maritime tour with a brief address in the Y.M.C.A. early this evening, when he was guest of honor at a banquet, and later he addressed the meeting in St.

John's Church. Rev. Robert Smart, of Central United Church, presided at the banquet.

Co-operative Credit Unions

WILFRED KEOHAN, who was recently appointed director of S. Co-operative Credit for the province, has opened his office in the Federal building, over the Custom House in this city. Mr. Keohan will from here direct the organization of Co-operative Credit Unions in this province and will work also in conjunction with the New Brunswick Farm Settlement Board, which will have their office in the same building. Mr. Keohan has already organized the Credit Union scheme in several places in New Brunswick.

The establishment of Credit Union branches in New Brunswick is bound to be of untold benefit to the people of this province. By wonderful strides the fame of the Union movement in Nova Scotia, has spread all over the United States, and many of the States after studying the Credit Union system in Nova Scotia made a success of the Union in their own localities.

Just three and a half years ago Prof. A. B. McDonald of Antigonish, and Roy F. Bergengren, of Madison, Wisconsin, drove through a howling snowstorm into a little farming community and formed the first Credit Union in the province of Nova Scotia. For the previous six months some twenty members of a Study Club in that community had been studying credit, and depositing five or ten cents at each meeting until they had accumulated eight dollars, ready to deposit as soon as the Credit Union was organized. Today there are 12,000 men and women in Nova Scotia banded together in a provincial federation of 68 Credit Unions, with a total savings of over two hundred thousand dollars, and lending their money to each other to the vast extent of almost half a million dollars a year. This movement is continuing to expand almost daily. Today there are 98 Unions in Nova Scotia and these are all working together for the benefit of rural communities and moving in a direction of peace and good will, calculated to break down barriers of prejudice and misunderstanding. Catholic priest, Protestant minister and Jewish rabbi are working side by side for this movement.

Previous to the starting of Credit Unions many people were unemployed, the prices of farm products had sunk so low that they were not sufficient to pay the cost of transportation to the market, and people only remained in the industrial centres because they could not get away.

The people had relapsed into a condition of idleness, want and poverty. Rev. J. J. Tompkins appeared as a leader on the scene. In his parish of Canso there was a place called Dover. They had sunk into about the last stages of idleness and poverty. Father Tompkins held service here once a week. He persuaded the men of Dover to go to work and spend a part of their time repairing the streets of the village, and their evenings in studying ways and means of bettering themselves. There was no money and no credit but Father Tompkins had a conviction that if he could get them to pool their idle hours for the credit of themselves and the community, the money would come. Within a very few months the streets were in a good condition. A portable sawmill was providing lumber from the neighboring forest to improve the homes and for the building of a co-operative lobster factory. And credit money began to make its appearance. When this money appeared it was pooled for the benefit of the whole community.

The recovery in Dover was so spectacular that it began to attract the attention in other places and this community spirit spread. In every case it was accomplished by a study club. Among other things these clubs studied what had been done in similar circumstances elsewhere throughout the world, and in this way they learned how to benefit themselves. In Nova Scotia study clubs exist in farming, fishing and industrial communities, and contain programmes of study in which adults are most likely to be interested and which would give information that would be most helpful to them. The Credit Union supplies both these requirements admirably and the results attained in Nova Scotia have been so spectacular that it has already attracted the attention throughout Canada and beyond the continent of America. At the last session of our House legislation was passed to provide for the promotion of an Adult Education Movement and the establishment of Credit Unions and various Co-operatives within this province.

It is hoped that this work, which has been beneficial elsewhere, especially to the farmer and to the industrial worker, will be a success in this province. The only trouble here is that our people, especially the farmers in the rural districts, are very slow to grasp new ideas and this is to their own detriment. The progress of the world has been impeded by people who didn't have courage enough to try new methods of doing things. Faced on the side with the threat of another unimaginably horrible world war, in which the city gutter and the village ditch will be a blood-soaked trench of the new world-wide battlefield. Faced again with a crumbling economic system under which the other war brought us serfs and slaves of a greedy, ruthless few, we have need of organization of our social and economic system. If we do not organize along these lines people with false political and social theories,

INCOME AND SALES TAXATION TO BRING $200,000,000

Session of Finance Committee to Be Important

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—Results of far reaching importance may attend the first meeting of the National Finance Committee which has been called for Dec. 9 by Hon. Charles A. Dunning. The National Finance Committee is an outgrowth of the last Dominion-Provincial Conference. It embraces the Provincial Treasurers of the nine Provinces and the Federal Minister of Finance, and was organized for the more or less regular discussion of problems of mutual interest in the field of public finance and taxation. Momentous decisions may be reached by the committee notwithstanding that it is an advisory body only and has no mandatory powers. As a matter of fact, the committee, or its predecessor, tackled such major questions as loan councils and supervision of Provincial finances as the sine qua non of further borrowings by the Provinces from the Dominion Government.

It also considered nation-wide conversion of debt at reduced rates of interest, and one of the dominant figures at the last conference was Hon. (Continued on Page Five)

Sir Anthony Eden Refers to Mussolini's Mediterranean Speech

(Special to The Daily Mail) LONDON—In the British Parliament today, several matters were touched upon including strikes and immigration. Sir Anthony Eden referred to Britain's Foreign Policy and the future peace of Europe. He stated that the stronger Great Britain is today, the greater assurance for peace in Europe. He expressed the opinion that the League of Nations was the best instrument to deal with International affairs but before the League could be considered efficient all countries would have to believe in its importance. Moreover he argued that the League should have the power to take immediate action when necessary. He touched upon the five power conference and said that Great Britain had been informed of the views of the other powers. The relations with France were better now than they had been at any time. Britain would like the friendship of Germany. He referred to Italy and the speech of Mussolini in touching upon the Mediterranean, wherein the Italian Dictator had said the Mediterranean was a shortcut for England's eastern trade route. Sir Anthony said that he would go further in saying that the Mediterranean was actually the main artery of British trade to the East. Britain realized also that to Italy, the Mediterranean

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Co-operation between President Roosevelt and his defeated opponents for the common cause of the good of the country seemed to be the ruling thought in their minds yesterday. Gov. Alf Landon congratulated President Roosevelt today upon his reelection.

"The nation has spoken," the Republican candidate said in a telegram addressed to "the president, Hyde Park, N. Y."

"Every American will accept the verdict and work for the common cause of the good of our country," the message added. "That is the spirit of democracy. You have my sincere congratulations."

About 9 o'clock last night, newsmen and photographers who had transformed the big garage behind the executive mansion into a pulsing press room, were invited to an informal reception. Walking about chatting with various groups Landon chided newsmen for "hanging around here with home-made doughnuts and coffee" waiting in the dining room.

President Roosevelt, re-elected to another four-year term in the White House, rested at his mother's home yesterday, after telegraphing Gov. Alf M. Landon. Dictated after his Republican opponent sent congratulations, the president's message said:

"I am grateful to you for your generous telegram and I am confident that all of us Americans will not pull together for the common good. I send you every good wish."
