Collins erved with Pathe News and the re cording department of the Columbia Broadcasting System, before his meeting with Kate. One night, he chanced to drop in on George White's "Flying High." Kate was the singing comedienne, a Broadway newcomer.

Immediately after the curtain fell Ted dashed backstage and asked her to record for the phonograph company which he represented. She agreed. Two weeks later, he became her manager, bringing her to the microphone and to greater fame than she had ever dreamed of. His work as producer followed naturaly, and later, when Kate broadcast from Lake Placid, he pinch-hit as announcer. Subsequently, this became a permanent role, his informal, friendly method of delivery winning wide comment.

TIME, PLEASE

Morton Downey has found himself the principal in an unusual radio

Downey signed at an impressive salary to broadcast five times weekly on a commercial series which would have begun the last week in October. However, although a few years ago the networks had difficulty in selling time to sponsors, the situation now reversed, as the tenor's backers discovered. For, at present, the sponsors are having difficulty in buying. time from the networks.

Therefore, the Chicago firm, which had signed for Downey's services and had him under contract, was faced with an obstacle. No' regular air spots for him could be found. Frantic in their efforts to clear periods

Downey, on the other hand, received a weekly salary, and couldn't get the chance to work for it.

Adventure Tonight

A thrilling manhunt will be the subject of Allister Grosart's story on the CBC "Adventure" series, to be heard over the Eastern and Midwest network from the Toronto studio on Monday, Nov. 30, at 7.30 p.m. "New Guinea" will describe the adventures of a white man pursued through this land of intrigue and color by the French colonial police. The natives of New Guinea help the fugitive to elude the officials by arranging a hideout that defies detection. "Mr. Adventurer" will tell why in this thrill-promising episode of strange stories of far away lands.
