SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Premier Dysart's Tribute to the Late King George

His Majesty's loyal subjects of the Province of New Brunswick are bowed in sorrow by the death of their beloved sovereign, not only in recollection of the passing of a great and noble character but profoundly grieving in a more intimate way the loss of a friend and benefactor.

Sympathetic and kind wise and prudent, experienced in the vicissitudes of state and people, his brilliant counsel has guided the destiny of our vast empire in its most crucial test, while his gracious and paternal affection for his subjects endeared him to all.

Few monarchs in history have discharged so magnificently their trust to their subjects and none shall go down in history with higher regard from a contemporary generation.

Maritime Amateur Art Exhibit

During the past week at the Normal School there has been on display a large collection of artistic mercantile posters. The posters which are designed in water colors are intended to be selling agents for various mercantile houses by the use of publicity of various scenes in England. The posters are artistic, many of them works of art. Their use as exhibits is to show the value of art as a means of advertising. The collection which has been placed here under the auspices of the Maritime Amateur Art Association has been forwarded to Moncton. Another series of paintings will be on display at the Normal School in February.

Great Number at Dr. B. C. Foster's Funeral Today

A large and representative gathering of Fredericton residents were present today at the funeral of Dr. B. C. Foster, eminent New Brunswick educationist, whose body arrived here from Florida last evening at six o'clock. Dr. Foster passed away at St. Petersburg, Florida, on Friday morning last. The body was accompanied here by Hon. Dr. R. B. Hanson, K.C., who will leave again this evening for Florida.

The funeral service for the late Dr. Foster took place at two o'clock from the residence of Hon. Dr. Hanson on Church street and a most impressive service was conducted by Rev. Geo. Telford, pastor of St. Paul's United church. Interment was made in the Forest Hill cemetery. Dr. Foster's funeral had been planned for yesterday but the Boston train was delayed five hours by the storm, necessitating the delay. The honorary pallbearers were Dr. C. C. Jones, president of the University of New Brunswick; Dr. R. H. Hagerman, principal of the Normal school; Dr. A. S. McFarlane, chief superintendent of education in the province; Dr. W. C. Kierstead, Major F. A. Good, John E. Page, O. V. B. Miller, principal of the high school, and Rupert D. Hanson, chairman of the board of school trustees.

In tribute to the deceased a half-holiday was declared in the local schools and the teachers of the city were enabled to attend the funeral. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful and attested to the great esteem in which the deceased was held not only as one of New Brunswick's most prominent teachers, but also as a citizen and an outstanding personality.

Sympathetic remarks about Dr. Foster were made at the Fredericton

PROCLAMATION TOMORROW

(Special to The Daily Mail)
LONDON, Jan. 21—The new King, Edward VIII, held his first Privy Council meeting this morning. Arrangements are being made for a public proclamation ceremony tomorrow. English people have no fear for the future under the new Monarch.

Nations of the World Voice Their Sorrow

ed to hear of his death. I wish to convey to the Canadian people our most sincere sympathy."

"I sincerely share the grief of all his faithful and bereaved subjects," said Luigi Petrucci, Italian consul-general. "The news of his death has come as a deep shock to all monarchists who looked to him as a model monarch."

PARIS, Jan. 21—The death of King George stunned Paris.

Crowds remained at a late hour along the boulevards and in front of newspaper offices awaiting news after it was learned the British Monarch was sinking.

Gaston Doumergue, who knew the King as president, premier and foreign minister, said: "The news brings me infinite grief."

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20—The New York Legislature adopted tonight resolutions recording "profound sorrow" at the death of King George V. and expressing deep sympathy to the citizens of the Dominion of Canada and other subjects of his late Majesty.

ROME, Jan. 21—Grief over the death of King George softened some of Italy's bitterness against Britain because of the sanctions campaign in which Britain has played a major role.

Authoritative sources described Italy's government heads as "extremely sad" because of the Monarch's death. King Victor Emmanuel, Italy's Sovereign, had previously asked the Italian ambassador in London, Dino Grandi, to keep him informed of the British Sovereign's condition and to express his wishes for King George's recovery.

Afternoon newspapers told in editorials of the British King's nobility. They recalled to the Italian people that he had been a "benevolent and faithful" monarch.

Vatican circles also mourned the King's passing.

Prelates said the Pope had watched the course of the illness with grave concern, and stressed the cordial relations which prevailed between His Majesty and the Holy See.

From Tweedsmuir
OTTAWA, Jan. 20—Baron Tweedsmuir tonight despatched to Britain's new Sovereign and Queen Mary messages of personal condolence from himself and Lady Tweedsmuir. The messages:

"His Majesty the King, Sandringham:

"I am heartbroken at the news of the calamity which has befallen the Empire in the death of our beloved Sovereign and with humble respect offer for myself and Lady Tweedsmuir our profound sympathy to your majesty in your great personal loss. (Signed) Tweedsmuir."

"Her Majesty the Queen, Sandringham:

"My wife and I am deeply disturbed at the news of the tragedy which has deprived the Empire of its great and beloved Sovereign and we beg most respectfully to express to Your Majesty our profound sorrow and heartfelt sympathy in your great loss (Signed) Tweedsmuir."

After an uncertain start in the first quarter of 1935, common stock prices moved forward sharply to levels not hitherto touched during the current recovery movement. The first stage of this advance ended in the latter part of May, and was followed by over four months of rather aimless fluctuation during which time price ranges generally were narrow. Early in October a second rise commenced which carried markets precipitately upward in a sustained movement which did not lose momentum until the close of the year.

Old Times Recalled

Many old timers of forty and fifty years ago, especially those who lived "across the river" will be interested in reading of the conditions which existed in the present town of Devon in those old days. Mrs. Susan Squires has written a very interesting paper dealing with these conditions. This paper The Daily Mail will publish from day to day, at the request of several members of the York and Sunbury Historical Society.

REMINISCENCES OF EARLY ST. MARYS

Between the Bidden house and Mr. Jaffrey's residence there were two houses on the lane. The one next to Mr. Jaffrey's was probably the first house on this grant of land for it was small and very old. When Mr. Whitman Haines first moved to St. Marys from Keswick about 1854 he rented this house. He afterwards bought it and moved it to the back of his lot and built a big two-story house in front of it. The small house was usually rented. Mr. Haines later bought the house between his own house and the Bidden house. It was a double tenement and was owned and partly occupied by an old man and two ancient sisters by the name of Joutet. After they sold out they moved back down to Joutet's Point. A man named Cole lived in this house at one time and had a small tannery and several tan pits in a shed behind it. Mrs. McGoldrick and Miss Flynn who live on Regent Street also lived in this house and their father worked on the ferry boat for Abs McKeen. Mr. Haines' house and sheds took up half of the width of Jaffrey Street so it would seem that the Land Company had sold this lot before Jaffrey Street was laid out. Mr. Haines moved to St. Marys because it would be more convenient for his work. He had been building bridges on the country roads for some time. When he came he must have been a man of more than forty years for he had children grown up and married. The chart of the early settlers has two Haines on the Keswick. The lots begin with number one at the mouth of the stream and lot fifteen was granted to Joseph Haines and sixteen to Peter Haines.

Schools and Schoolteachers
The old St. Marys Schoolhouse stood a short distance up the hill on the Miramichi road. An older sister took me to school there occasionally the summer I was five. The teacher's name was Jerry Meagher. The Free School Law was passed in 1871. One member of the House of Assembly named Hathaway from the Nashwaak, who had been fighting for the bill for years, said that when it was passed he would say like Simeon of old "Now Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace." After the law was passed St. Marys and Gibson decided to build a union school house for the two villages. It must have been 1874 before this building was ready for occupancy. The old school house in St. Marys was sold to a man named Bayley who moved it down beside the railway track and used it for a warehouse. He bought and sold hay, oats and potatoes. His wife was a sister of the late Judge Marsh.

The new school house was built on a lot of land directly behind the Anglican church so it was midway between the two villages. It was one storey and had only two rooms. The teacher of the higher grades was a Miss Keever Smith. She belonged to Oswego, New York State, and was a college graduate and intended to study medicine. I am not sure how she got to this part of the continent, but I think she had been governess for Col. Mansell's children. Then she taught a year in the school on the back road between Fredericton and Springhill. A sister and brother of my mother went to school to her there so my father who was one of the trustees heard of her. The teacher for the lower grades was Mrs. Peake. She and her sister were English ladies who had married brothers. Both men had died and the widows, one with two children and one with five, had come to Canada. Three of those children afterwards graduated from the University of New Brunswick.

This schoolhouse only lasted one year and then it was burned. I still remember that I lost my slate and primer. The next school was on the present location and faced the road. It had four rooms, two upstairs and two down. The first principal was Dr. Edward Patterson. He was a native of Digby, Nova Scotia, and had just graduated from medical college and was looking around for a place to locate. Father met him in a hotel in Saint John and persuaded him to come to St. Marys and teach the school a year while he was getting acquainted with the people. The other teachers were Miss Louise Morgans, afterwards Mrs. John Reid, Miss Kate Flewelling who married Geo. Logan, and Miss Annie Hanson, sister of the late Edgar Hanson. Dr. Patterson was succeeded by a Mr. Carter afterwards a dentist in Fredericton. Then a Mr. Davis was principal and later on Arthur Belyea. It was only in the Fourth Reader when this school was also burned. A temporary school was started in Gibson at once in a store on the Marysville Road owned by George Fair and we walked down there for several weeks. The two rooms were taught by Miss Morgans and, I think, by Miss Flewelling. Then two departments were opened in St. Marys and the teachers were Miss Minnie Marsh and Miss Barbara Staples.
