HARNESS NOTES

The death of Peter Volo, which stood in the stud for the past sixteen years, leaves a sharp gap in the ranks of trotting sires. For some time it was thought that Peter Volo's son, Protector, would rival his sire, but the prices for the Protector yearlings showed a sharp drop this year.

When Mr. McElwyn was entered in the auction this year, Tranter ordered that he be referred to as "the greatest sire of trotters of his age." When Tranter later learned of the passing of Peter Volo, he changed the remarks on Mr. McElwyn to read "the greatest living sire of trotters."

Like most others, Tranter rated Peter Volo the best of them all.

The high favor that Peter Volo enjoyed with harness racing men is reflected in the figures of the recent sale. Walnut Hall Farm sold twenty Peter Volo yearlings for an average of $1,678, while twenty-two Protectors brought an average of only $583. The closest approach to the Peter Volo figures was the average of $1,131 for nine youngsters by Volomite, another son of the famous sire.

Capitals Defeated 7-2 by Moncton Maroons

RESERVES OF BRUINS ARE RATED HIGHLY

Bruins Believe That Any Hockey Team as Strong as Its Reserves.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Any hockey team is as strong as its reserves. The Bruins have the best and the most reserves. In addition to three strong fast lines of forwards and two pairs of defense men, they have three fine spares in Nels Stewart, Peggy O'Neil and Ted Graham.

Proof of the value of these three extra players was demonstrated when the Bruins won three and tied two in a stretch of five unbeaten games in eight nights.

Hockey fans must be patient, for the Bruins will not play at home until a week from tonight. The winter and ski carnival at the Garden and the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, New York, upset the hockey schedule but after next Sunday everything will be normal until later in the season when the circus opens at New York.

Detroit will be here on Dec. 8, when the Bruins play their next home game. The Bruins will play an exhibition game at Springfield to-night against the Indians of the International-American League. On Saturday they will play against Les Canadiens at Montreal.

Decision on the retention of Stewart, O'Neil and Graham will be made this week, probably, as Eddie Shore expects to be in shape to play at Montreal on Saturday.

May Retain Stewart

Joe Jerwa was not able to go to New York for the game with the Rangers last Saturday, but, as Joe needs rest for his injured back, as did Shore for his hurt, he should be able to resume work when the Bruins play against Les Canadiens.

It wouldn't be a bit of a surprise if Stewart were retained in place of Bill Cowley; that is, if the Bruins cut the squad to 15 players.

Fredericton Club Braced and Scored Two Goals in Final Period -- Contrast in Condition of Squads.

MONCTON, Dec. 2.—Moncton's fast-skating Maroons, in mid-season form, downed Fredericton Capitals in the opening game of the Southern New Brunswick hockey league here to-night and breezed through for a 7-2 victory. With the advantage of almost a month of ice training and seven-game pre-season series with Saint John, the Maroons crashed the Fredericton defence almost at will in the early stages of the game and although Young, the Capital net-minder, turned in a brilliant performance, he was unable to cope with the swirling Hubmen around his doorstep.

Only a small crowd turned out in ideal winter weather to see the opening engagement of the Southern League campaign but the fans were impressed with the talent of the Capital squad who should be tough to beat when they reach top form.

Haining scored the Capitals' second and last goal of the evening on a long shot which Barton, playing goal for Moncton, stopped with his hand but it trickled through his glove and dropped into the cage. In the dying minutes of the game the Capitals, clearly displaying the lack of physical condition which hockey players gain only on the frozen surface, weakened under the pressure of Maroon drives. Appleby took a pass from Bell to score on a close-in shot and 10 seconds before the final gong Len LeBlanc scooped up Carroll's pass to beat Young for the final score of the game.

Bus McLennahan, who patrolled right lane for the first line and Mills who played at left wing, were the pick of the Fredericton forces to-night and each turned in a sparkling performance.

The Capitals, although showing lack of condition and team-training, stuck closely to the rules—at least close enough to escape punishment from Referee Gill. They did not draw a single penalty in the three periods.

Defensively Chalmers turned in the best performance among the rear-guarders as Lasky was not so effective. Forwards found him not difficult to get around and his clearing left considerable to be desired. Bud Steen, veteran rear-guarder with the old Fredericton Capitals in the days when the Atlantics carried the Moncton hopes, and who was acting-manager in the absence of Coach Larry McLean, used himself sparingly and the times he spent on the ice he seemed quite willing for his mates to carry the brunt of attack.

The teams played under the latest rules of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, which resembled closely the National Hockey League rules with the penalty shot and all. This section of the modern version of rules was not exercised, however, as there was no occasion in which to call a penalty shot.

While the Capitals were outplayed and outscored by a considerable margin, they left the impression with the cash customers and critics that they will be a vastly different team when they get the advantage of a few weeks of training and league competition. They appear to have the ruggedness necessary to make a strong showing in a strong league and the mixture of youth and experience seems well blended.
