person who is left in charge of your alone takes a woman out of the home, if she is seeking some satisfaction of the ego that she does not find through being a wife and mother, it is usually the children who suffer while she finds her satisfaction," says Miss Castendyck.

"If necessity forces a woman to become a breadwinner, then it is usually she who suffers most, though sometimes the work is apt to suffer a bit too," she says. For such mothers Miss Castendyck has a word of advice: "Choose with utmost care the children while you are away. It is not half so important that such a person be an expert cook, that she know the correct ways of serving and answering the doorbell as that she has a natural kinship with children. A wise mother I know who works from necessity once remarked: 'I find it pays to be lots more concerned with the cobwebs in the children's brains than with the dust fluff under the davenport.'"

The most necessary thing parents can give their children, Miss Castendyck says, is a sense of security. "And I don't mean financial security so much as emotional security, guidance and anchorage, a real family life with a normal amount of physical and emotional outlet and some educational opportunities."

The dangerous age for children is the adolescent age, from around 12 to 17 years. "This is the age when they begin to grow up, to feel themselves important, to break away from home. Boys around this age seek association with the gang, play hooky from school, become neighborhood nuisances just for the thrill of it. Boys of this age have a higher recorded delinquency rate than girls," said Miss Castendyck.

Children of this age need sympathetic, watchful guidance such as only a parent can give, if they are not to come to grief. Years ago when parents failed in this regard such children as came to grief were classed as criminal. Recently, since the institution of the juvenile court, they have

Dow Settlement

DOW SETTLEMENT, Nov. 17.—Worship Service held in the United Baptist church Sunday at 12 o'clock, was conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. Mantor Wilson in the presence of a fairly good audience. His sermon topic was found in the different passages of Ephesians, 2 chapter, and Peter, 2 chapter.

Rev. L. T. Sabine of Woodstock spent Monday in this vicinity hunting game. The Young People's Service was held as usual on Tuesday evening at 7.30. Those who were able to attend received a Spiritual Blessing listening to the pastor explain and illustrate in a clear way, certain chapters from the Book of Psalms.

Alonzo Lutwick and Whitney McLellan went to the woods last week. The following people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grant, Wednesday afternoon, and spent the afternoon tacking a quilt: Mrs. Eden Patterson, Mrs. Berton Patterson, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. Reta McLellan and eldest daughter, Violet Mae.

The teacher of the school spent Armistice Day hunting. A number of the boys of this vicinity, who are employed in the woods, spent the week-end at their homes.

Mrs. John Durling, who has been on the sick list for the past number of days is improving.

Charles Cummings was calling at the home of Sandy Moody, Friday morning.

Ronald Sabine was guest for tea at the home of Miss Mary Cummings, Cross Creek, Thursday.

Rev. G. M. Wilson was tea guest at the home of Mrs. Rita McLellan Thursday.

The third and last inoculation treatment was given Tuesday at the Dow Settlement school house.

been treated with better understanding, but even so, the help given was something like "picking up the broken pieces."

Today it is the aim of the juvenile courts and of the Children's Bureau to prevent juvenile delinquency by handling first offenders by keeping them out of the courts and bettering home and neighborhood conditions.

Miss Castendyck comes to her new work from eight years of work in Minneapolis caring for children in need of special assistance because of problems of behavior or personality. In her new office she will plan programmes with relation to the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Engagement Announced in Vancouver
Roaf-Baird—Mr. William George Hamilton Roaf, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roaf, to Miss Mary Edith Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Frederick Baird.

Miss Baird is a daughter of Mr. G. Fred Baird formerly of Perth, N. B., and of Miss Edith Edgecombe, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Edgecombe of this city. Miss Baird visited this city a few years ago with her mother, and much interest is shown in social circles in this city over the engagement. The wedding will take place in December.

Golden Rule Circle

The Golden Rule Circle of the King's Daughters met last night at the home of Mrs. Harry A. Smith, George street. Miss Annie McLagan, 1st vice-president, presided. The meeting was opened by the singing of the King's Daughters hymn followed by the King's Daughters prayer. Mrs. Frank Cooper led the devotional period reading from the tenth chapter of Luke and the first chapter of John. Her subject was "What is our challenge? Have we brought anyone to the Christian life?" This was followed by prayer. Mrs. Webster sang a solo, "The King of Love is My Shepherd." Reports from different groups were given. The meeting came to a close with the benediction.

Devon Women's Institute

At the home of Mrs. Hugh Smith, with the president, Mrs. Frank Shortill in the chair. The meeting opened with "O Canada," and the Club Women's Creed. Then followed the roll call answered by a local event. Reports of the recent Maritime dinner were given, which showed it most successful. The sum of $10 was voted as membership fee to the Children's Aid Society. Plans for Christmas week were held, and there were two short talks, one by Mrs. Robert Scott on "Education," and another by Mrs. C. K. Gray on "Legislation." A sing-song was enjoyed, followed by the W. L. Glory song and the National Anthem concluded the meeting. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hugh Smith, assisted by Mrs. Lorne Thornton.

The Hon. Dr. MacLaren, Lieut.-Governor of New Brunswick, was host at luncheon at his home in Saint John recently in honor of Sir Andrew Macphail. Covers were laid for twelve and the table was centred with an artistic arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums in a silver bowl. Besides Sir Andrew the governor's guests were Major-General the Hon. A. H. Macdonnell, Brigadier L. F. Page, Commodore P. W. Nelles, R.C.N., Mayor D. L. MacLaren, Commander W. B. Creery, Major John P. Simon, Major W. A. MacDougall, Charles Scott and the governor's aides, Lieutenant-Colonel V. D. Davidson and Lieutenant Commander Paul B. Cross.

Among those who attended the Community Concert which was given last evening in Saint John are Mrs. J. M. Lemont, Mrs. J. H. Calder, Mrs. J. Russell Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, Miss Jean Anderson, Drury Anderson, Mrs. R. Bailey, Miss Doris Bailey and Robyn C. Bayley.

Ellington and Calloway in a Novel Program

One of the most unusual song compositions ever to ride the airways will soon be broadcast. The number, as yet unnamed, is in the act of being composed co-operatively by eight famous band leaders including Duke Ellington, Will Hudson, Cab Calloway, Jan Rubini, Ina Ray Hutton, Milt Britton, Yascha Bunchuk and Lucky Milinder.

This interesting musical experiment is the brain child of Milton Berle, radio comedian, and it grew out of a casual chat with his friend, Duke Ellington. Since a song reflects the personality of its writer, queried Berle, why wouldn't a number composed by several outstanding and colorful figures possess dazzling qualities? Duke's fancy was immediately captured. Together they picked the leaders to participate, looking for varied talents and personalities. Ellington, genuinely excited over the possibilities in the novel stunt, has already written the first two bars of the song and it has been placed in Will (Organ Grinder's Swing) Hudson's hands to carry on. Cab Calloway will broadcast it as soon as it is done.

To retain the standard song form of thirty-two bars, each contributor is to do two bars with the efforts of the first four writers repeated. Then eight more bars will be written and then the first melody will again be repeated. Nick Kenny has been picked to do the lyrics.

Considerable interest has been created over this unique song and already two publishers are angling for the rights. Tin Pan Alley is said to be excitedly curious to see the result of this fascinating musical adventure.

Prominent Couple Wedded Today

A wedding of more than ordinary interest took place this morning at eleven-thirty o'clock at the parsonage of the Brunswick Street Baptist church when Dr. Ella Ishbel Duff, daughter of Dr. A. Wilmer Duff and the late Mrs. Duff was united in marriage to Captain George Alvah Good, M.A., District Scout Commissioner of this city and son of Major and Mrs. F. A. Good, also of this city. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. Gerald W. Guion. The bride wore a travelling suit of tomato-colored tweed with hat and accessories to match. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Windsor Hall covers being laid for twelve. Those present included besides the bride and groom, Dr. Duff father of the bride, Major and Mrs. F. A. Good, Dr. A. W. G. Good, brother, Miss Martha Macintosh, aunt of the bride, John Macintosh, Miss Netta MacMillan, Professor Robert Pugh and Mrs. Marian Murray. The table was centred with a beautiful basket of yellow mums and tapers matching shades. The toast to the bride was proposed by Dr. A. W. G. Good and replied to by the bridegroom. Dr. Wilmer Duff, father of the bride, proposed a toast to Major and Mrs. Good, parents of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate in medicine and for the past several years has been holding the position of psychiatrist in one of the Boston schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of U.N.B. and a former McGill student in medicine. He is a veteran of the Great War and has been prominently associated with several local organizations in the city especially with Boy Scout work and educational organizations. During the past summer Captain Good acted as European correspondent for The Daily Mail and his writings were read with a great deal of interest.

On their return from their wedding trip, Captain and Mrs. Good will reside in the city and at Island View.

Canada's Exports to Brazil Increase 35 p.c.

Canada's trade with Brazil recorded a 35 per cent increase in exports last year as compared with the previous one, totalling $3,500,000 for 1935. Important increases in imports from Canada were copper plates and sheets, which appeared in the trade returns for the first time; aluminum manufactures which also appeared for the first time; raw and scrap aluminum; tires and tubes; electrical machinery; sewing machines; zinc; newsprint; according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Other increases were recorded in the case of furs, silk hose, electrical apparatus, iron and steel cutlery, electrical insulators, and asbestos manufactures. In the case of Brazilian exports, Canada imports coffee, shelled and unshelled Brazil nuts, cocoa and cocoa butter which account for 75 per cent of the total value. The United States is Brazil's best customer, followed by Germany and Great Britain. Germany in 1934 occupied fourth place and has now moved up to second.

HUMAN NATURE

Letty loves me; I can tell it. Eyes and sighs and cries all spell it; Letty loves me true, but truly. My heart's none the more unruly.

Jenny hates me and she shows it. So that everybody knows it; Yet the fact that Jenny hates me Scarcely even irritates me.

Katy never even sees me, Never tries to tease or please me; Laughs at me when I implore her: Consequently, I adore her.

CANADIANA

By Kathleen Switzer

Mrs. Kathleen Strange, pretty, auburn-haired winner of the non-fiction prize in the Canadian $1,000 Book Contest, wrote in 1934 of her book as follows: "I call it a Modern Pioneer, and it describes my ten years on the farm. Maybe it will come to nothing, but maybe I shall finish it, and maybe one day it will get published. The trouble with me is that I cannot write when life is dull; and it often seems dull with me now, in comparison with what it used to be on the Prairies."

Mrs. Strange was born in London, England, and she never saw a farm until her arrival in Canada after her marriage in 1918. She has three children — Mary, age twelve, and two younger, Donald and Kathleen. Her hobbies, outside of writing and her children, are dancing and farming. She and her husband won the wheat prize in Chicago in 1923, and they have been hailed out twice. Both of these occasions she described in an almost autobiographical story called "The Rubber Apron," which has appeared in McLean's Magazine. Her stories have been mentioned in E. J. O'Brien's Canadian list of 1926, 1932 and 1933. "The Modern Pioneer" was written during 1930 and 1933.

Dr. Pelham Edgar, one of the judges, says that the book is not only admirable as literature and as a personal record, but it has the further value of describing in the most animated way conditions that still exist in the newly settled regions of the West. "Such a book would have definite practical value for all intending settlers, and would be read with extreme interest by the less heroic part of the population," said Professor Edgar.

The contest was jointly sponsored by George J. McLeod Ltd., Toronto, and the Dodge Publishing Co. of New York.

NATIONS OF EUROPE, PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSEDSpeaker Makes Clear Situation in Europe Today

At a largely attended meeting in the auditorium in the Provincial Normal School last evening Hugh Molson former member of the British House of Commons defined Britain's policy in foreign affairs in regards to the future. The meeting was sponsored by the National Council of Education and was presided by Brigadier General Hill. Mr. Molson attributed much of the troubles of today in European affairs to the unwillingness of nations in applying two of the principles laid down in the Treaty of Versailles. First of all the Reparation problem by which Germany had been called upon to pay large sums greatly in excess of her ability to pay and for which no means had been provided by other countries to facilitate her ability in paying. The Versailles era was coming to an end and when it would be written in history to come would not appear as unfair and unjust as it is today. The failure of the treaty had been due to lack of spirit on the part of the nations in following up the principle of the treaty. The Disarmament conference had also proved a failure and had resulted in European nations arming to the teeth. He explained the elements constituting the Fascist block running from Germany to the Mediterranean and which was alarming France. Certain nations in Central Europe had regained their former culture and independence of later years such as Poland and Czechoslovakia. The late Italia-Abyssinian war had provided a lesson to all European nations namely that might was still right when dealing with a dictator and that economic sanctions were useless unless supplanted by military support. Europe was now divided into two great armed camps, Fascism and Democracy and the Spanish struggle had become a question of international problem.

The British policy in the future will probably be based on the principles of the league England does not want to be involved in all treaties and entangling alliances. It was impossible for all parts of the British Empire to be entirely out of danger. In answer to a query from His Grace Archbishop John A. Richardson as to what would be the effect on England's position in the Mediterranean in the event of a Fascist victory the speaker replied that it was the popular belief that England would lose control of the Mediterranean since it was generally conceded that Italy would secure control of the strategic point Ceuta, a northern point in the Spanish Morocco and also would gain possession of Majorca in the Balearic Isles. However, that was only guesswork the speaker said. Nevertheless the situation today in Europe was extremely tense. Errors and blunders on the part of Britain as well as other countries had con-

NOVEMBER

SHERIFF'S SALE

November comes, November comes, Along the way she lingers, To pluck the leaves from forest trees, With eager chilly fingers, She snuffs the fern and goldenrod, As it were a candle. The moss and rushes 'long the way, She crushes 'neath her sandal.

She peeps in every little nook To find belated flowers. Loudly she berates them all For keeping tardy hours. To send them hurrying to their beds She sends her shadows creeping And through the night sings lullaby, To lull them to their sleeping.

To lean old Mother Nature's house, Is a wondrous undertaking. She had to take the curtains down, And give them all a snaking. She lit the fires upon the hearth And brushed away the crumbs, The house must be all spick and span, Before King Winter comes.
