HOSPITAL SCHEME
CALLING FOR YEARLY CONTRACTS
BEGUN IN CANADA

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—North America's only hospital contract system, operated as a form of insurance, was explained to delegates to the thirteenth annual Ontario Hospital Association convention yesterday by J. A. Schinbein.

Citizens of the Town of Listowel, if they desire, can enter contracts with the Listowel Memorial Hospital on a family basis or individually.

$10 Annual Rate
Annual rates are $10 for a family and $5 for individuals. This entitles the policyholder to three weeks' hospital care free. A private room, board and hospital nursing are the services furnished. The contract does not include any extra expense incurred in operations, doctor's fees or medicine.

Mr. Schinbein, who is Chairman of the Hospital Contract Board, told the visiting hospital trustees and administrators in the Royal York Hotel that when the contracts were first issued many people who knew they had to undergo an operation, "perhaps for appendicitis," within the next year were eager to sign.

The board overcame this by stipulating in the contract that only applicants not expecting physical emergencies were eligible the first year. The first year the plan was in operation—1933—the entire board got out and solicited business. Since that time, Mr. Schinbein said, the finances of the hospital had improved to such an extent that they were now employing a man to sell the contracts.

292 Contracts Sold
Since the inception of the scheme, 292 contracts have been sold, with cash receipts totalling $2,225. Of that sum, $1,600 has been paid to the hospital to take care of contract-holders, leaving the board with a balance of about $600, which Mr. Schinbein said "wasn't too bad."

In 1933 the 22-bed hospital handled 333 cases. This number increased to 418 at the end of the 1935 hospital year, and jumped to 475 in 1936. Mr. Schinbein attributed the increase to the issuance of the contracts to persons who otherwise would have gone to Stratford, London, and even Toronto for operations.

For the financially embarrassed the scheme provides for a monthly payment of $1 a week in advance. Mr. Schinbein stated that he had received numerous inquiries and personal calls from surgeons and Hospital Administration Boards throughout Canada and the United States regarding information about the contract plan.

Short Splashes
From Major
Hockey Camps

Prospects that Charlie McVeigh would make the grade as a National Hockey League referee look bright. The "Rabbit" showed he knew what it was all about as he handled the bell in an exhibition game between Red Wings and Olympics in Detroit last night. One of the most popular players in the big-time until he was shipped down the river to London Tecumsehs last winter, Charlie hopes to prove equally as popular as an arbiter if given a chance.

Red Wings started off on the right foot, handing their farm team a 5-3 beating in the first game of the city series. Olympics, later to be known as Pittsburgh Hornets, led 3-2 at the end of the second period, but could not hold the edge when the Larry Aurie-Marty Barry-Herbie Lewis line got under steam to register 3 goals.

Manager Lester Patrick is looking for a pair of asbestos pyjamas for Harry Westerby, New York Rangers' trainer. Players vouch for the story Harry said to a porter: "I'm perfecting a non-inflammable rubbing alcohol and I want to show you how it works." He rubbed the fluid on his pyjamas and then lit a match. "Gosh, they're burning," he shouted, and after smothering the blaze added, "Oh, well, they were a little short for me anyway."

After reading about "Harmony" in Montreal Maroons camp, Rangers decided to show a little real harmony. Frankie Boucher, basso profundo, and Cecil Dillon—a soprano according to his mates—led the singing bee. Bill Cook was unappreciative and tried to change the subject. "How's your sore ankle, Frank?" he asked, but Boucher refused to be sidetracked. "Coming along by leaps and bounds, I'll be there when the first bell sounds," he warbled.

It looks like the handwriting on the wall for Whitey Farrant, Naqina Smith and Tony Hemmerling, forwards trying out with Amerks. Normie Himes expects to have the youngsters to strengthen his New Haven Eagles in the International-American League. All promising in camp, it is not likely they will replace any of Red Dutton's regulars.

With Mothers and Youth Against, It Can-

Marchioness.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 24.—On behalf of 40,000,000 women in 36 countries, Isobel, Marchioness of Aberdeen, now in her 80th year, made a strong plea for peace at the opening of Dubrovnik of the Congress of the International Council of Women.

Lady Aberdeen, who as wife of the late Marquess of Aberdeen, Governor-General of Canada, 1893-98, was a beloved Chatelaine of Rideau Hall, Ottawa, likened the council to a women's League of Nations which, however, she declared, "would not evade its responsibilities."

"I ask all women to launch a world wide campaign to save humanity from war. The menace comes from those nations which want to expand and which are arming to destroy their brother nations."

Lady Aberdeen concluded with an appeal for the respect of personal liberty, "so essential to the well-being of mankind."

Asked if she thought the present European situation would mean war, she said "No," adding "we women have firmly decided that it shall not be. England is against war. The young will not have it, and finally mothers of the world are all opposed to war."

John R. Trevis Says
American Colleges Are Making Lots of Money.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—John R. Trevis, well known sports writer crusading for more pay for college football stars in the current issue of American Mercury, commended Yale today for coming into the open and "calling a spade a spade—and football a golden egg."

Yale signed away the privilege of broadcasting its games this year.

"At last we have no old established university admitting openly what has long been a fact; that college football is a racket," Trevis said. "Yale is cashing in on this racket, Yale intends to get up cut."

Author Insists He's Not Satired
What Trevis doesn't like about the collegiate football setup is that the players are not getting their share. He denied that he was attempting "Satire."

"I mean every word," he said. "Surely it is an occasion for honest celebration when we abandon the ridiculous custom of calling professionalized athletes amateurs."

"We are, thank heaven, getting to the point where college athletes can be paid salaries and paid frankly." Trevis classified 100 colleges into three groups—amateur, semi-pros and professionals—A, B, and C, respectively.

He labelled 33 schools simon-pure, 26 semi-professional, and 41 professional. He defined class A colleges as mostly "small colleges of high standing, many of extremely high standing in the educational world. They all play football. So far as I know, none of them buys athletes or goes in for a high-powered professional coach. None attempts to underwrite a huge stadium."

"Group B," Trevis said, "include both small and large colleges . . . all have athletic plants which cost real money to maintain . . . These colleges strive to subsidize good teams in order to make their athletic corporations function profitably."

Using the University of Pittsburgh as an example for Class C, which Trevis said was comprised of a weird assortment, for football—like politics—makes strange bedfellows . . . Pittsburgh, for instance, has years mortgage payments of nearly $200,000 on its stadium. To meet this bill . . . the Pitt team has for several seasons been playing a terrific schedule . . . Naturally, it is impossible to assemble a legitimate enrollment of students which can produce a team capable of meeting such opponents on successive week-ends . . . So if you choose to call this thing sport, all right. But don't call it amateur sport."

DAMMING SEX
IMPULSE SEEN
AS DANGEROUS

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 28.—Dr. Brock Chisholm, well-known Toronto psychiatrist, told a gathering of Western Ontario clergymen and physicians today that "in our present civilization, where we practice monogamy," the child's natural impulse toward sex "must be diverted."

Speaking before a group called together under the auspices of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada, he said: "The great function of organized religion in our civilization, which is bidding fair to becoming one of the most neurotic the world has ever seen, is to take the tension out of sexual development and lead to effective social development."

"The civilizing system is permanently antagonistic to nature," he went on, "and we must study how far we can safely divert natural impulses and at what stage they must be diverted."

"It is natural for a child to be curious of sex at from three to six years. That is natural, but in our present civilization, where we practice monogamy, we must divert that natural impulse. Too great a pressure on man's natural development will lead to disaster."

"Religion is the backing of the civilization in vogue at any given time and place. Murder is generally a sin, but under certain circumstances it becomes a virtue and we call it war."

"The natural behavior of man has not progressed much in thousands of years. An infant is born a greedy savage. It is expected to become civilized in three or four years. The great civilizing force is fear. Some say it is love. I say it is the fear of losing the love which gives it protection."

Stepping on sexual urges early in life, he continued, will produce a great crop of neurotics. "Parents call upon religion to back up their mistaken ideas. If religion back up mistaken prejudices which are inhuman, it signs its own death warrant. Surely the part of religion is to help people understand themselves and see their impulses and train them into accepted social channels. Fear, imposed by a moral system which dams up every sexual outlet, will cause disturbances blamed on the sexual outlet."

Dr. Chisholm, at the outset, said the subjects of sex and religion are heavily loaded with prejudice, since much early training in each has been outside the field of intelligence of most men.

Fredericton Junction

Monday afternoon, in St. Columba's Church, here, eight candidates—one young woman, three girls, and four boys—were confirmed by His Excellency Bishop P. A. Bray of Saint John. Rev. Father Boyd of this Parish and Rev. Father MacDonald of Fredericton assisting. In his address to the newly-confirmed, the Bishop, in urging them, with the assistance of God, to live always pure and blameless lives, remembering that their bodies were temples of the Holy Spirit, strongly stressed the evils of intoxicating drink, which, he declared, had never done anyone any good but harmed all who drank, tending to weaken resistance to evil and to destroy the spiritual life. He had each one vow never to touch intoxicants before the age of twenty-one years, when, he hoped, they would renew the vow and always remain total abstainers.

After the ceremony, Rev. Father Boyd expressed his pleasure at the appointment of Bishop Bray and welcomed him to the Parish. An address from the congregation was also presented by Lawrence Ball.

Bishop Bray gave a very feeling reply and assured Father Boyd and his congregation that he was pleased with the devotion to their religion, as evidenced, among other ways, by the spiritual knowledge shown by the young people just confirmed, and that he would assuredly revisit them as often as possible.

His Excellency spoke of the specially troublous times in which we live, in which it was harder for people to live Christian lives than in any previous age of the world. Christians were being martyred in the present day in Mexico, Russia and Spain. They must watch and pray constantly—never grow careless as many had done in Mexico and Spain. It was terribly pathetic to see young children whose parents had been Catholics, in a country like Spain, persecuting the religious with all their might. To avoid the onslaught of Godless Communism, Christians must practice their holy religion wholeheartedly and openly day by day, ever looking to God for leadership and support. His hearers should be thankful conditions were so favorable for them, and keep the banner of Christ the King floating ever over worthy and faithful soldiers of Christ.

His Excellency held a reception after the service, meeting all his parishioners present and many others of the large audience.
