

Western Province

egates were eager to reduce the number of examinations.

There are five provinces in the Dominion in which the pupils or students are admitted to provincial normal schools and high schools without passing examinations, Dr. McFarlane said. They are recommended by the principal of the schools. This is another progressive step. "The whole tendency is to get rid of examinations," Dr. McFarlane stated. Only four provinces remain to fall in line with the trend. One is New Brunswick.

The problem of the rural schools is a vast one in the western provinces where the schools are long distances apart than they are in this province. In British Columbia, because of this problem, about 2,000 students are taking correspondence courses. This would be good for New Brunswick too, although the problem is not so pressing, and the "setup would be expensive."

In Alberta the system there has no grades. The schools are divided into four departments—primary, elementary, intermediate and high school. No exams are written there until the pupils get to grade nine.

In his trip out west Dr. McFarlane met many people, many of whom formerly lived in this province and are now engaged in educational work in the west. One of these was Hon. J. W. Estey, formerly of Mouth of Keswick, who is now Minister of Education in Saskatchewan. Others whom he met were G. Fred McNally, of the department of Education in Alberta; Dr. Pincock, formerly of Moncton, and now superintendent of schools at Winnipeg; Dr. W. A. Cowperthwaite, principal of the Normal School in Manitoba, and formerly of Kent county; also Messrs. Lord, Anderson, McMonagle and McKenzie, who are now teaching in the west and who formerly lived in this province.

Wilson in regard to the menu of the York county jail.

Mr. Neville said that the conditions in regard to overcrowding had now been eliminated and that the jail was more sanitary. This had been brought about largely through the fight for better conditions put up by The Daily Mail. He congratulated the authorities on the improvement, but contended strongly that there was much need for improvement in the menu.

In reply to a question by the reporter of a local paper, who happened to be present, the commissioner stated that he had visited the York county jail this morning and found that conditions compared favorably with other jails in the province which he had visited. From the appearance of the jail it looks like a hotel de luxe but it is no better than it should be. In reply, however, to a question put to him by one of the gentlemen present, the commissioner stated that he had not visited the other jails of the province, with the exception of those at Dorchester and Saint John. He admitted that he had never seen the other jails situated throughout the length and breadth of New Brunswick. The commissioner also admitted that he was not familiar with the jail menu of the York county jail and could not make any comparison between that menu and the other jails of the province.

A rather amusing attempt was made by a fresh reporter of a local paper to stir up a discussion in regard to the action taken some months ago by The Daily Mail. This attempt, however, was only met with smiles by the gentlemen present who appreciated the efforts taken by this paper to promote better jail conditions for the unfortunate men and women who have to spend time in the jails, many of whom are there because they are poor and unfortunate.

In reply to a question by the commissioner regarding the 45 cents which is given by the province through the Liquor Control Board to the county of York for the board of prisoners who violate the liquor act, Councillor Doherty stated that he had been unable to find out from the county council, of which he is a member, how the money is handled. Coun. Doherty did not know how it reached the county or where it went after it reached the county.

Mr. Neville informed the Commission that the Liquor Control Board secured a list from the sheriff of the number of prisoners confined in the jail each month as liquor violators, and the number of days. The Liquor Board then made a grant to the province based on this information at 45 cents per day per man. The Comptroller General of the province then issues a check in favor of the secretary-treasurer of the county of York for the amount which the government grants to the county for the prisoners' board. Mr. Neville stated that he had secured this information from the provincial authorities mentioned but had been unable to secure any further information from the county authorities as to how this money was expended. He also stated that other sheriffs throughout the province who had received a similar amount from the Liquor Board, and who provide much better board for the prisoners in their respective counties, state that they are not worrying over any loss in regard to boarding these prisoners.

Considerable discussion took place in regard to the parole system, and the advisability of some welfare committee following up a man who had been paroled and endeavoring to see that he made good. It was suggested by several of those present and concurred in by the commissioner that it would be advisable to have local parole boards which would make a study of the man to be paroled and of the conditions surrounding such parole including the chance of his getting employment, rather than have the matter handled by a parole board located at Ottawa who were not familiar with, and could not secure, information regarding the local conditions.

St. Dunstan's Y.P.S.

The weekly meeting of the St. Dunstan's Young People's Society was held last evening in St. Dunstan's hall, about 125 members being present. The opening programme was an entertainment by the Normal School students, with Miss Jeannette Gagnon as a very capable mistress of ceremonies. There were several songs by the group, a dramatic sketch by Miss Biviane Dufour and Clarence Johnston, piano solos by Miss Josephine Durick and Miss Imelda Poitras and a vocal solo by Miss Gertrude Levesque. Miss Mary Bowlin, Miss Elizabeth Boyd, Donald McDonald, William Kilfoil, Antonin Fioret and Romeo Boudreau presented a very amusing pantomime; Clarence Johnston rendered harmonica solos and Miss Patricia McHugh and Miss Eleanor McGuire gave recitations. Misses Helen Duffy and Helen Doyle sang a duet and Miss Mildred Guilmond rendered a solo. Each feature of this programme was very pleasingly presented, and reflected much credit upon all who took part, especially upon Miss Gagnon and John McKendry, who organized the programme. At the conclusion of the entertainment Fred Boyle, on behalf of the assembled young people, moved that a hearty vote of thanks be extended to the students for the very fine entertainment which they had provided. This motion was seconded by Mark Neville and the vote of thanks was tendered to the performers by the president, Edward Carten. The gathering then adjourned to the rooms downstairs, where dancing and other amusements were indulged in and refreshments served. The singing of the National Anthem brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

Cathedral Men's Club

The regular weekly meeting of the Cathedral Men's Club was held last evening in the Memorial Hall, Church street, with a very large attendance including a number of clergymen, here to attend the Provincial Synod committee meetings. Very Rev. Deah Moorhead, as usual, led the opening prayer in union. The speaker of the evening, J. L. Neville, managing editor of The Daily Mail, gave a very interesting address on the early history of Newspapers in the province generally and in Fredericton particularly. Showing results of deep research and intermingled with humorous instances of misprints and transposed composition, Mr. Neville's address proved most interesting to his audience, particularly to those members present who were descendants of some of the early pioneers of the fourth estate in this community. The thanks of the meeting were conveyed to Mr. Neville by the President, enthusiastically endorsed by the Club members as well as by His Grace, Archbishop Richardson, whose presence at the meeting had been warmly welcomed. Play was then commenced, in the cumulative card tournaments. The results of the evening's play showed Geo. Wandless to have the high score among the forty-five players and Wayne Bebbington leading the contractors, both by high margins. The usual light refreshments followed by the National Anthem ended still another most instructive and enjoyable evening for the Cathedral Men's Club.—(Contributed).

The Freshman Class of the University met today. Election of officers for the year resulted as follows: President, Neil Ganter, Woodstock; vice-president, George Ritchie, Campbellton; secretary-treasurer, Miss Mary Neville, Fredericton. The finances of the class were discussed and routine business carried on.

Capitalism must build up some structure of public relations, said Mr. O'Leary. Great corporations could no longer afford to hide their lights under bushels. Although the financial structure of the world had thus far been based on competition, Mr. O'Leary saw more and more of a turn away from this system to one of co-operation. Advertising must lead the way in that co-operation, he believed.

The major part of Mr. O'Leary's address dealt with some of Canada's noted figures with whom he had come in contact during more than twenty-five years in the Parliamentary Press Gallery at Ottawa.

He spoke of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as one of the greatest orators and statesmen Canada had ever seen.

"I heard him deliver three speeches which, for structure, beauty and passion, were greater than any I have ever heard in my thirty years as a newspaper man," was Mr. O'Leary's tribute.

Laurier, he said, had been proud of the fact that he himself had once been a newspaper reporter.

"He would look upon some old degenerate in the press gallery and say, 'There, but for the grace of God, goes Laurier!'" said Mr. O'Leary.

He named several Parliamentarians, Frank Carvell, Senator Charles Murphy, the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, giving brief but vivid sketches of their characters as he had known them.

Colds Cause

In addition, a higher-than-average occurrence of cancer of the eyes was found among workmen handling oil and oil substances, such as garage-men, machinists, oil-station attendants and auto salesmen. Certain oils have been definitely proved to be cancer-causing in experiments on animals.

In the years immediately following influenza epidemics, such as that which swept the country in 1918, a threefold increase of cancer of the eyes was found, Dr. Lane said.

If this point can be substantiated by further study, the University of Michigan, scientist pointed out, "it strongly suggests that a virus or toxin may be one of the causative factors in cancer."

"Cancer of the eyes was found to be almost three times as prevalent among individuals employed in work where strong sunlight contributed to the disease along with association of oils, chemicals, pitch and asphalt, she declared.

This group of individuals included sailors, farmers, laborers, divers, dock workers, fishermen, carpenters, painters and bricklayers.

Some danger of contracting cancer also exists for the general population travelling highways paved with tar substances as well as for the workmen who construct such roads, Dr. Lane added.

EDUCATION OR CHAOS?

OCTOBER

October is a gypsy maid,
Scarlet poppies in her hair,
Dancing 'neath a harvest moon,
Her tawny feet all bare.

She smiles upon the cornfields,
All ripe with golden grain,
And casts the magic of her spell
Till winter comes again.
