PICNICS ARE IMPROVED BY FINE MEAT LOAVES

Combine Unusual Flavours in Home-Made Meat Dishes

Picnic days are here—those long afternoons of late spring and early summer are just made for friendly gatherings and an outdoor meal. With all the improvements in picnic basket—thermos bottles, paper plates, collapsible cups, and such marvels, it isn't necessary to hold the menu down to sandwiches and weiners. Meat loaves, made at home the day before, are popular and appetizing substitutes for picnic sandwiches.

Cooked meat—the left-overs of a roast—can be used to make a delicious meat loaf. The recipe given here ensures a loaf that holds its shape and retains a moist texture. That is because minute tapioca is used to "bind" the ingredients together in a really tender loaf.

Meat Loaf Roast
Four tablespoons minute tapioca
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
Dash of black pepper
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon minced onion
One tablespoon minced parsley
Three and one half cups ground cooked meat (veal, pork, ham, etc.)
Three-fourths cup tomato juice or meat broth
One half cup hot water and Two tablespoons butter.
Combine tapioca, seasonings, onion, parsley, meat, and tomato juice. Shape into loaf in roaster or turn into loaf pan. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) thirty minutes, basting frequently with mixture of hot water and butter. Serve hot or cold. Serves six.

Ham Loaf
One-half cup minute tapioca
One-fourth teaspoon pepper
One-fourth teaspoon paprika
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
One tablespoon minced onion
One pound lean ham, ground
One pound lean pork, ground
Two cups milk.
Combine ingredients in order given. Bake in loaf pan in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit), 15 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake 45 minutes longer, or until done. Rub mixing bowl with garlic before mixing, if desired. Serve hot or cold. Serves ten.

HERE ARE SOME BRAND NEW IDEAS

Here is a "Counting Game" Which Will Entertain Your Guests — Jumbled Spelling and Spoon Lifting Also Suggested.

Feeling in a "stunt" mood? Here are a few guaranteed to keep you in gales of laughter—and after a while you'll be wondering if you're all right or if everybody else is all wrong!

Janet C. comes to the front with her little trick. As a person (one at a time or several at once if you can handle them!) to count starting with one, as fast as he can go.

Tell him that you're going to ask him three questions, at intervals, interrupting his counting.

He is to answer the questions and continue counting where he left off before answering your question.

For instance: The person counting starts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. —you ask him to name a color; he does so and continues—8, 9, 10, 11, 12.—you ask him to name a flower, which he does and goes on—13, 14, 15, 16.—ask him to name a piece of furniture—he does and that's the end. On a slip of paper you have previously written red, rose and chair. Check the answers with the words on your paper—it seems rather uncanny, but nine times out of ten they'll be exactly the same! If they're not the same—well, it's still a good try!

Jumbled Spelling
See what you and your friends can do with this one. Give each a piece of paper and a pencil. A whole group can do this at one time. They're to spell out "W-o-r-c-e-s-t-e-r" aloud, while writing "Boston" on the paper, and finish the recitation and the written word at the same time. Sound simple, but try it and see how difficult it is to keep your mind working two ways at once. There'll be a lot of queer looking things on that paper! Oh, yes, you're not supposed to look at your paper while writing!

Spoon Lifting

Not "lifting" in the sense of the word (you know—the kind that goes with the word "shop") but just lifting in the air. This cut little trick comes from J. P. M.—always a willing helper when it comes to things like this.

It's really very simple—so he says—but it's got your Cynthia almost weeping—everybody can do the trick but us! And all you have to do is lift a teaspoon—anyway you start with a teaspoon and graduate to tablespoons and forks and such—with two fingers the thumb on the handle and your middle finger on the bowl of the spoon. That's all. But we can't do it. And you'll laugh till your sides ache, watching a group of people around the table intent on lifting spoons—what's more, they never give up and you'll see them in odd corners after dinner, still trying to win out over the spoon! (Better watch your silverware because spoon lifters are pretty serious about the whole business—keeping at it doggedly!) Of course, to the experts, it's just duck soup—people like that man—Mr. M. has been known in one of his greater moments—to lift two tablespoons and a teaspoon at one time, with the aid of only two fingers! Here's a helpful hint—your fingers should be very dry and so should the bowl of the spoon. That's all we can tell you. (Sh! We've been very quietly trying again while writing this—but no hope,—no can do!)

HOW IT STARTED

"Tis a fault to Heaven,
A fault against the dead, a fault to nature,
To reason most absurd."

Thus Shakespeare in "Hamlet," crying, "That is absurd"—a frequently recurring remark whose import is familiar to all.

The phrase embodies a typical use of the word "absurd" in the implication that the explanation vouchsafed in extenuation or otherwise, is of offensive to one's credulity.

This is a peculiar and an interesting divergence, though understandable, from the original sense of the word which, preserving the parallel, at first signifies "offensive to the ears."

We have "absurd" from the Latin "absurdus," meaning, literally, harsh-sounding.

Hon. Premier Dysart Speaks on Policies of Provincial Gov't

In this age of enlightenment, education must not be confined to youth and it must not be confined to the select few. It must be made available to all, young and old, as they require it to meet the necessity of earning a livelihood and to enjoy the pleasures of culture and refinement.

To promote the physical and mental well-being of our people, health institutions previously under the direction of Boards, have been placed directly under the Minister of Health and with this centralized control and supervision there is every reason to anticipate improved efficiency with correspondingly improved results. During the course of the present year in addition to work now a routine of the government health service, special campaigns will be conducted in connection with cancer and mental hygiene.

Time does not permit me to enter into detail on any of the many angles of our general development policy, nor am I able in this short period to even touch upon them all. Bearing in mind that we are completely organized for the payment of old age pensions in July, and that we are restoring free school books, I feel that you have a picture of our constructive endeavors that should give you a more hopeful outlook and provide encouragement to bend your shoulder to the wheel. We ask your complete co-operation and we, on our part, assure you that we shall do our utmost. We can provide the instruments. It is for you to make use of them. Let us stand together and make New Brunswick what nature intended it to be, what our Loyalist ancestors had visioned it, and what you and I are determined it shall be.
I thank you.

NORTHERN LAKES STILL ICE-BOUND

ROUYN, Quebec, May 19—Ice hazards in Osisko Lake and Lake Duparquet, together with uncertain weather conditions in the North, have held a dozen airplanes poised here ready for flight to isolated mining camps.

The spring break-up has been developing steadily and these are the last of the lakes still to hold ice, constant danger sources to pontoon-equipped planes. Air traffic may be resumed on Friday or Saturday of this week, once again opening the vast mining territory.

Queer tricks by the Weatherman during the past week, however, brought new dangers to the plane traffic. Warm rains suddenly froze with dropping temperatures, while spring-like days turned into bitterly cold nights.

Highway traffic opened yesterday between Rouyn and Amos, 100 miles north of here. Buses were operating for the first time since December.

Spreading rails, due to soft roadbeds following a forty-eight hour rainfall, caused delays in traffic on the Nipissing Central Division of the T. & N.O. Railway between Rouyn and Swastika. A long freight was bogged.

Regular mail and passenger trains were running off schedule, in one instance two hours behind time.

Rich Widow (joyously): Ah, Bridget, I am going to marry a great painter.

Bridget (gigglishly): Shake, ma'am. O'm goin' to marry Joe McCloskey, the great paper-hanger.

He—This dining-room table goes back to Louis Fourteenth.

She—That's nothing. My whole sitting-room suite goes back to Turn-Back Furniture Company on the fifteenth.

Ryan's "Cherry Red Brick" cut down the Fire Hazard

Nothing is so terrifying as to be suddenly awakened in the small hours of the morning with the smell of smoke and the crackling of fire, all from the use of ordinary building brick in the chimney which have become red hot and set the building on fire. You can guard against this by using Ryan's Cherry Red Chimney Brick, made expressly for chimneys.

Do not let your contractor use cheap imitations—Brick that require a cold chisel to break and brick that fly to pieces when hit with a hammer were never meant for chimneys and should never be used because this class of brick has been burned so hard to keep out the moisture that the pores are plugged and become red hot when the chimney burns out.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" so take no chances, demand Ryan's Chimney Brick made expressly for chimneys.
