

ARCHBISHOP RICHARDSON DELIVERS ANNUAL CHARGE TO ANGLICAN SYNOD

more that there has been no breach of trust. I think that you will agree with me, however, that it is high time that the Cathedral received some consideration in the matter. I am very doubtful, indeed, whether I ought to continue to give my approval to the arrangement, under which the entire benefits of the fund are appropriated to the use of diocesan missions.

You will ask me, perhaps, what in my judgement ought to be done in the matter. In Bishop Kingdom's Charge to Synod in 1893 he made the following interesting comment upon the proposal of the Memorial Committee in reference to the Canonry, which was in view:

"Nothing can satisfy the requirements of the position that does not ordinarily demand nine months' work in the diocese, with occasional refreshment and recuperation, amounting in all to three months, at the Mother Church."

What Bishop Kingdom envisaged in the light of the Memorial Committee's recommendation was clearly the appointment of a canon, who should give nine months in each year to the work of a missionary, the remaining three months being spent in the Cathedral. I do not understand the Bishop to have meant that three consecutive months should be given to the assistance of the Cathedral in its services, but that for that length of time in each year his work would lie in the Cathedral.

There is another aspect of the question, that impresses me as being of grave importance. In justice to the Medley Canon, the opportunity for the "refreshment and recuperation," of which Bishop Kingdom speaks, ought to be afforded him. The work of the Medley Canon, under the conditions that have heretofore belonged to it, is exceedingly arduous. He is almost continuously "on the road," so that his home life is reduced to a bare minimum. That ought not to be. Here and there a man may be found, to whom that kind of life appeals—such for example, as our revered friend, Allan Smithers, who discharged the duties of his office for so many years with such extraordinary diligence, and who was never so happy as when he was travelling up and down the diocese. Such men, however, are few and far between, and we must think of the occupant of the Medley Memorial Canonry as an ordinary man, for whom opportunities for refreshment and recuperation are urgently required. As Bishop Kingdom indicated, such refreshment and recuperation—in addition, of course, to an ordinary vacation—would be afforded the Medley Memorial Canon by a recognized arrangement, under which for a certain number of Sundays in each year he would act as an assistant priest in the Cathedral. With the terms of the Trust in view, it can hardly be disputed that the Cathedral is entitled to some consideration in the matter.

Christianity and the Jews

The conscience of the Christian world has been shocked by the appalling persecution of the Jews in Germany, and it is the clear duty of the Church to protest against the wicked cruelty of it all. Such a protest was made recently by the Church Assembly—the parliament of the Church in England—and I invite this Synod to identify itself with that action. As was pointed out during the debate upon the subject in the Assembly, the Jews in Germany have been cast out from all cultural and professional life, while it has been made practically impossible for them to maintain their position in business and trade. To a great extent, the most ordinary civil rights are denied them, so that, while they continue to be subjects of Germany, they are no longer in any real sense citizens. From one end of Germany to the other, members of the Jewish race—even though possessing by inheritance the barest modicum of Jewish blood—are defamed and subjected to ceaseless insult, for no other reason than that they are Jews.

But more than moral grounds are involved, for as the Bishop of Durham points out with much force, it is impossible for the Christian Church to exclude from its mind and memory "the vastness of the obligation" under which it stands to the Jewish people. As Christians we can never allow ourselves to forget that the Christ, whom we worship, and to whom we look for our salvation, was by direct descent a Jew, "made of the seed of David according to the flesh" (Rom. 1:3). The Apostles were all Jews, and the Scriptures, which we accept as the inspired Word of God, are in reality all Jewish Scriptures.

In view of all the facts, for the Church to remain silent in the face of such an outrage would be to stultify itself. I submit for your consideration, therefore, and, as I hope, for your unanimous adoption, a resolution similar to that passed last November by the Church Assembly in England.

"That this Church desires to express its sympathy with the Jewish people, and those of Jewish origin, in the sufferings which are being endured by many of their number in Germany, and trusts that Christian people in this and other countries will exert their influence to make it plain to the rulers of Germany that the continuance of their present policy will arouse widespread indignation, and prove a grave obstacle to the promotion of confidence and goodwill between Germany and other nations."

Revision of the Book of Common Praise

The proposed revision of the Hymn Book, calls, in my judgement, for some comment of a critical character at this time. For a number of years a Committee of the General Synod has had under consideration the question of a possible revision, and the history of its proceedings are on record in the General Synod Journal, and other publications of that body. In 1927 the Committee reported to the General Synod that it "did not consider it wise that a revision of the Book of Common Praise should be proceeded with" at that time. A joint committee of both Houses was appointed, however, to "compile a supplementary collection of hymns and tunes," on the express condition that the General Synod should not be involved in any financial responsibility beyond the sum of $200.00 for clerical expenses, and the like. The Bishop traced the history of the matter and continuing, said I am opposed to the proposed. It will put the Church to an expense for which I can find no justification in the immediate future. In saying this, I do not forget that the approval of the project by General Synod was given upon the express condition that "in the contract with the publishers the Synod is not to become responsible for the cost of publication." Nor do I forget the assurance given us by the Revision Committee that in the contract, which we shall be asked to approve, provision is made for larger royalties to the General Synod than in the case of the last revision, which is the present time.

I am opposed to the proposed revision for another, and more practical, reason. It will put the Church to an expense for which I can find no justification in the immediate future.

Church Finances

Continuing at some length the Archbishop dealt with the financial aspects of Church matters and the restoration fund.

The Archbishop said: "The adverse business conditions to which reference has been made have something to do, no doubt, with the failure of the Diocese in the matter of the Budget, but it is easily possible to make too much of that factor. If you will take the trouble to examine the statistical returns, you will be impressed with the fact that a certain number of parishes have once more paid their respective apportionments in full, while other parishes came close to their objective. In this connection, mention may fittingly be made of Campbellton, Dalhousie, Ludlow and Blissfield, Hampton, Rothesay, Waterford and St. Mark's, Hillsboro, Salisbury and Havelock, Coldbrook and Renforth, East St. John, all of which sent in 100 per cent. or more. The following parishes failed to "go over the top," but paid more than 75 per cent. of their respective totals—New Bandon, Richibucto and Buctouche, Kingston, Norton, St. James (St. John), St. Jude's (West St. John), Drummond and Grand Falls, Gordon and Lorne. All honour to these parishes.

Comparisons are said to be odious, but it is legitimate to wonder why some parishes succeed in this matter, while so many others fail so dismally. I do not think that the failures can be explained in terms of the depression, and the like. One can only suspect that a stronger and more systematic effort is made in some parishes than in others.

PEEPING CHICKS UNSETTLE ROOSTER HATCHING EGGS

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 25—Bill McBain's rooster at Rock Lake was no quitter and was apparently determined to finish the hen off she started when he pushed a hen off a nest of eggs and began to sit on them himself.

Bill reported through Roy Alkenbrack of Rock Lake today that the rooster stuck to the nest until the chicks began to peep before breaking through the shells. Then the rooster got restless, moving and shifting about the nest, yet never leaving it. Probably he was anxious to see the result of his labors.

However, his spur-clad feet were too much for the first chick to pop out of an egg. It was trodden to death. Bill removed the rooster from the nest.

The hen, which had sat placidly by, waiting for her lord and master to get tired, took over the job and brought out the remaining twelve chicks.

Bill is planning to give the rooster another setting of eggs to see if he'll do it again.

FOUND NOBODY WANTED TO BE PUT ON PAGE 13

"Hey", bawled the job printer to the three youths who were departing from his shop, "there's something wrong here. The programme for your club dance was supposed to have sixteen pages and here you've got a page marked '17.'"

"That's right", smiled one of the youths.

"How come, right?" demanded the printer.

You fellows must be crazy", fumed the printer. "You can't have an odd page like that. It can't be done."

"Sure it can, mister", the third youth interrupted. "You see, when we were selling advertising for the programme, it seems that nobody wanted to take space on page 13—so we just dropped out page 13. See?"

"But it just isn't being done", the printer protested.

"Why not", inquired the first youth. Lots of skyscrapers in New York have more than thirteen floors, but many of them simply skip the thirteenth in numbering the floors. If they can do it", he concluded with finality, "we can".

GENERAL MOTORS BUYS N. S. COAL

OSHAWA, May 25—Illustrating the company's definite buy-in-Canada policy, an order estimated at 20,000 tons of Nova Scotia steam coal has been placed by General Motors of Canada Ltd., with the Dominion Coal Co., Ltd.

For the first time the big local motor plant will operate without dependence on imported fuel. The company was one of the first in Ontario to co-operate with the Maritime Provinces under terms of a Federal Government bonus, and last year used a big percentage of Nova Scotia coal. The new policy, however, means that the whole supply for the forthcoming year will be purchased in Eastern Canada.

General Motors Oshawa plant is one of the first commercial organizations to go 100 per cent. Canadian in its coal purchases. The Ontario Government and the Toronto City Council are among the public organizations planning to purchase future requirements of coal from Nova Scotia.

According to Harry J. Carmichael, General Motors Vice-President and General Manager, it is simply an extension of the policy of the company which calls for purchase of materials, not only from the Maritimes, but wherever and whenever possible throughout Canada, thereby increasing the Canadian content of their products.

EXPERT CONDEMNS LIGHTING FOR HALF ONTARIO STUDENTS

WINDSOR, May 25—Using records of the Toronto Meteorological Office over a period of forty years, George G. Cousins, engineer in charge of the Illuminating Laboratory of Ontario, told the annual convention of the Urban School Trustees' Association that 50 per cent. of Ontario's students have to work under subnormal lighting conditions.

The concluding session of the three-day convention was informed today that it has been definitely proved, over a three-year test, that good lighting reduced the number of failures by one-third, in comparison with those who fall in poorly lighted rooms.

"At the present time an insignificant percentage of school-operating costs is spent on lighting," continued Mr. Cousins. "In many cases the expenditure is vitally wasted, as the lighting is too low to be of any appreciable benefit. Good lighting can be provided for a very small additional cost."

To overcome any possible oversight on the part of the teacher in turning on artificial lights, Mr. Cousins said an automatic system has been devised, by the use of photo-electric cells, which turn on the lights when daylight exceeds predetermined intensities.

APPOINTMENTS

ST. STEPHEN, May 23 — Elmer Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Scott, has been appointed to the janitorship of the post office, replacing B. J. ## GALE BATTERS NEW PEACHES FROM TREES

Frost Ruins Crops Over Wide Area of Ontario

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, May 25—Niagara Falls escaped the hailstorm last week, but wind swept across a mile and a half strip in Niagara Township, causing damage, estimated at thousands of dollars, it was learned.

W. J. Cooper, Stamford, reported that tender green stems had been snapped off grape vines. Small peaches were battered from trees and leaves of strawberry plants were torn. Pear and plum trees were not seriously damaged.

Asparagus and rhubarb in the Virgil area were pounded into the ground, farm workers picking up handfuls of hailstones nearly an inch in diameter.

CHATHAM, Ontario, May 25—Heavy damage to the onion crops in the marsh lands at Erieau, Jeanette's Creek and Dover, resulted from frost and wind last week. In some sections seed was blown from the ground. At Erieau, where the plants had a slight growth, the ground was blown away to expose the roots to the frost. Many growers were planning to start replanting today.

Strawberry Crop Damaged

PETERBORO, May 25—Two-thirds of the early strawberry bloom and half of the later bloom has been destroyed by late frosts, C. Frank Kiley, Past President of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, reported to the Department of Agriculture.

"Millions of small plants such as adish, beets, etc., have simply disappeared. Late cauliflower and cabbage beds, are destroyed, although there is a possibility that early cabbage will recover", Mr. Kiley states. But the problem facing the gardener is not that of dead plants, but of securing sufficient seed and new plants for late crops. They have no plants themselves, and there is a great scarcity both of plants and seed in the stores and warehouses, as the season's sale is now past.

THINKS A. O. C. TOO ACADEMIC

OTTAWA, Ont., May 26—"I think is a good idea that graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College should return to the farm—even as hired men—if they cannot get something better", said Miss Agnes MacPhail, member of Parliament for Grey-Bruce commenting on the speech of Hon. Juncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, at the annual convocation of the Ontario Agricultural College at Oshawa.

Not Practical Enough

"The Ontario Agricultural College has been too academic", added Miss MacPhail, "and too far removed from practical farming for the good of the students, and the welfare of agriculture. There is a maxim that the graduate of an agricultural college would starve to death on a farm."

"Practical and successful farmers are dubious about the value of training at the Ontario Agricultural College, with this reservation: They think the scientific training is good. They are convinced that very few graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College could make a farm pay or even 'break even'. On the other hand, because of that attitude on the part of the farmer, the latter doesn't take advantage of the scientific knowledge which the college and the college graduate can make available to him. "The agricultural college graduate as not sufficient respect for the practical farmer who is able to make living from the farm. It would do both the farmer and the college man a lot of good to spend a summer together.

Not Amateur's Job

"People think any fool can farm", continued Miss MacPhail. "They think all a farmer has to do is to scratch the earth and sow some seed. Actually, a successful farmer must be a good administrator, a good executive. He has to know everything; he must be a horticulturist, a cerealist, a stock breeder. Running a farm is no job for an amateur".
