Mid-Summer Garden

The gravelled path is rimmed with phlox.
The rose lies dreaming in the sun;
Tall cosmos nod across the hedge
Like folks who chat when work is done.
The bird-bath mirrors robins' breasts
In waters, crystal-clear and cool;
A long-legged pelican salutes
The short, fat gnome beside the pool.
And like a blowing, glowing flame,
A lace-like red maple tree
Stands bright against the pine trees' green,
Lovely in sheer fragility.
Oh, buds have praised in song and rime
The part that moonlit fountains play,
But charm a-plenty clings around
A garden on a summer day.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Pretty Wedding Today
At University

Bride, Daughter of President Dr., and Mrs. C. C. Jones

Fragrant with a profusion of garden flowers including white phlox, white gladioli and white sweet peas, the home of Dr. C. C. Jones, President of the University of New Brunswick and Mrs. Jones was the scene of an event of deep interest to many in Canada and the United States today when their daughter Catherine Cecilia was united in marriage to Ralph Herman Daughney, of Newcastle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daughney of Charlottetown. The ceremony was performed at 12 o'clock noon. Rev. Donald MacLean, Minister, brother-in-law of the bride, officiated.

Miss Elizabeth S. Jones, sister of the bride was her only attendant, while Miss D. Margaret Jones, sister of the bride, Miss Dorothy M. Hughes, Mrs. K. B. Brown, and Miss Flora H. Loudon acted as ribbon bearers. Maxwell T. MacLagan of Plaster Rock was best man.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was beautifully gowned in a wedding dress fashioned of white angel skin lace over ivory satin made on princess lines and touching the floor. She wore a short circular veil which was held in place with a Juliet cap of matching lace and she carried white roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of orchid organza made with blue velvet trimmings and her hat was a matching turban. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pastel shade sweet peas.

The bride's mother was in a gown of flowered chiffon with black hat. The bridegroom's mother wore a black lace dress with a black velvet hat. Miss Gertrude Davis at the piano played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's Wedding March and during the signing of the register also rendered "Canzone Amorosa" by Nevin.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, guests numbering about sixty and including relatives and college classmates of the bride and groom. The bride's table was centred with a tiered bride's cake which was ornamented with roses and orange blossoms. Tall white tapers were at each end of the table which had a mosaic-embroidered which linen cover. The ribbon bearers and other friends of the bride assisted.

Mr. and Mrs. Daughney later left on a short motoring tour following which they will reside at Newcastle where the bridegroom is connected with the Forestry Department of the Fraser Company.

For travelling the bride chose a costume of French rust boucle with dark brown accessories.

Out-of-town guests included the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Frank Daughney, and son John Daughney of Charlottetown; Rev. and Mrs. M. D. Sinclair of Sydney, C.B.; Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McNally, Maplewood, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell MacLagan of Plaster Rock; Mr. and Mrs. T. W.

ALBERTA BUSINESS

The disallowance was called the "quickest and best way to end it," by Mr. Bowlen. He declared hundreds of thousands of dollars were being tied up waiting to see what the Government was going to do, and as much more ready to come into the province as soon as Government policies were known.

"We have stood too much fooling now," said Mr. Bowlen. "Premier Aberhart was advised the legislation was ultra vires, yet he went ahead. They have fooled too much with the situation."

Asked if the Federal decision will mean an election—that Premier Aberhart will go to the people strengthened because he could argue the Federal Government had tried to interfere with the Province—Mr. Bowlen said: "Why, an election would not prove anything."

Mr. Bowlen conceded, however, that there would be a "good chance" to defeat Premier Aberhart if he went to the country now.

"There was no common sense to the legislation," he said. "It was not his idea. The legislation was written by those two emissaries from England. There is no doubt was 'just praying for an excuse to go to the people, and now he has got his chance,' an election is the 'only thing he can do now.'"

The whole Act was meant as a build-up to an election, he declared, adding that hands of lawyers were being tied, that "we can't do anything toward collecting debts, and no money is coming into the province."

A business man who is in constant touch with all classes of trade and professions, said the taking away of civil rights caused more "bitter resentment than anything else."

"He would outlaw the bank clerk who didn't get a license, prevent him from going to the courts. He may do it with me. Our forefathers fought harder than anything else for our civil liberties. If he does it for one class it is natural to suspect he may do it for all."

"It is for the courts to determine what is just and what is unjust. We have judges who are honest and competent, and Canadians pride themselves on their courts."

"How he could expect to get away with it in a British country, I don't know."

The same observer declared it was beyond his understanding how the Government expected to get away with it, that he had been advised it was unconstitutional. He also came out against the Government for not informing the people of what they actually wanted.

"Why don't they tell the people what is what? He is being advised by people who don't know anything about the business they are attempting to regulate."

"Would Aberhart (the Premier was a school teacher) stand for any one telling him what men and women should teach school if that person didn't know anything about it? It's the same in every case. He says he is not going to interfere, but he must interfere if he is going to outline the policy of a business."

"What the public suspects is that this is all election talk. He takes off the sales tax, but doesn't abolish the act. As a result of the Federal Government's decision he would say 'look what they tried to do.' He would say the Federal Government was interfering and that it would not allow the people of Alberta to control their own affairs."

"I expect he will ignore the Federal Government, but the Constitution is plain, there are certain things a Province can do and certain things it can't do."

"No one knows what to expect. The Government confuses everything with a multitude of words that don't mean anything. Why don't they come out and say what they want the banks to do."

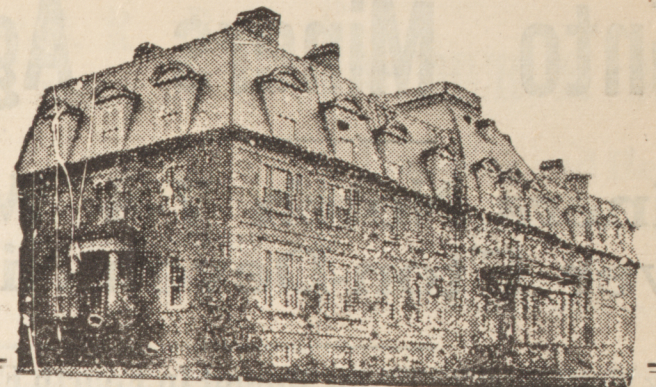

An Edmonton observer says the Government had foreseen some such action on the part of Ottawa and had planned some action to counter it. View was expressed that enough legislation had already been passed for the Government to proceed for some time before calling the Legislature together. It was said in some quarters this was no time to call an election and work must be pushed to achieve the social credit goal.

"Business men however, thought an election was in the offing. With one accord they refused to be quoted, but talked freely off the record."

"So many things have happened here that they couldn't continue to flout the Dominion Government," one prominent business man. "Premier Aberhart might go to the country. Feeling is that he was looking for some way to get out. He suggested certain things and promised certain things which he has been unable to carry out, and now, this is his excuse to go to the country."

A mortgage man says the Aberhart Government was a "dead horse now." He declared people were becoming more and more dissatisfied.

"Two of three of my tenants who are Social Creditors are now dropping out because of dissatisfaction," he said.

of his lot to examine the line markings, and fortunately at the suggestion of his wife had taken his rifle along as a precautionary measure. When he came upon the bears, the head of the family, a large specimen, emitted an ugly snarl and rushed towards him. Being an experienced woodsman and a straight shooter, Mr. Hunter stood his ground and despatched the animal with a single shot. It is seldom now-a-days that one hears of a bear attacking a man, but Mr. Hunter is satisfied that had he been unarmed he would have been in for a troublesome time.

Evidently the surviving members of the bruin family are still lurking in the vicinity, since one evening this week a young son of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter was chased by one of them almost to the door of his home. Several farmers in the neighborhood have suffered the loss of sheep during the present summer and blame bear for it.

CAR CRASH AT LONG'S CREEK

Sandy Yerxa, North Devon, received a fractured breast bone and head injuries last evening when the car which he was driving hurtled over an embankment at Long's Creek, after crashing with another car. He was taken to the Victoria Public Hospital.

The accident occurred at about seven o'clock, as Yerxa, accompanied by John Graham, Devon, were coming toward the city. Both are employees of Phillips and Pringle, Ltd. It is understood that they were driving one of the company cars just below Long's Creek, when a car came out of a driveway and blocked the road. Yerxa swerved his vehicle in trying to avoid the crash, but hit the other car, the force of the crash hurling the car in which they were driving over a steep embankment.

It was stated today by his physician, Dr. G. I. Nugent, that the injured man will have to remain in the hospital for a few days, while Graham is confined to his home after being badly shaken up.

The car, which turned over in the tumble off the road, is damaged considerably.
