As Hitler Sees It

ONE WAY to get somewhere in an argument is to understand the other fellow's point of view, even if you strongly disagree with it. Consider Hitler, for example, and his place in the row over patrolling Spanish waters in a four-power effort to keep the war confined to Spain.

Hitler and Mussolini withdrew their ships. That was the second time they expressed indignation over Spanish loyalist attacks upon the neutral patrol. Here is how Hitler looks at it. He spoke on the subject at a Nazi party rally at Würzburg.

As Hitler sees the picture, two Spanish loyalist airplanes in May bombed the battleship Deutschland, killing 31 sailors and wounded almost three times as many. At that time Germany took instant retaliation by bombarding the Spanish town of Almeria.

Italy agreed with what Hitler did. Great Britain and France objected. An agreement among the four was reached whereby if a similar incident arose, none of the four would take retaliatory action except after consultation with the other nations of the non-intervention group.

Several days ago Germany reported that a Spanish government submarine had shot a torpedo at the German cruiser Leipzig. Germany said the four nations—Great Britain, France, Italy and herself, should forthwith stage a naval demonstration of strength before the eyes of the Spanish loyalists. Each nation would parade its ships with national flags flying before a loyalist port.

Italy was willing but Great Britain and France demurred. So Germany and then Italy withdrew their ships from the patrol.

"Every man can make a mistake once," now says Hitler, "but only fools make it a second time. Neither I nor the German nation has any desire to enter upon such a danger a second time."

"From now on," Hitler says, "Germany will take such matters into our own hands and protect ourselves alone."

That argument must sound very reasonable to German ears. Its weaknesses, however, are several. The agreement was that no nation should take retaliatory action except by mutual consent. In this instance Hitler designed the action and tried to force his plan upon the others.

It may be said it was a harmless retaliation. Was it? These harmless demonstrations can bring many complications. Further, Great Britain had serious doubts the torpedo attempt was ever made. Great Britain further wished to discuss the presence in Spain of heavy aid from Germany and Italy.

Finally, however, the cat leaped right out of the Nazi bag of tricks. Hitler, in an impassioned speech, blurted out (aside from the written copy) that Germany much prefers to play a lone hand in the Spanish war; that Germany wants Franco to win because Germany needs Spanish ores for German munitions.

So we see Herr Hitler's self-justification torpedoed by his own words which at last exposed the truth of things.

The "Night Mail" Arrives

TUESDAY when the two great flying-boats of British Imperial and Pan American Airways dropped into harbor at Botwood, Newfoundland, and Foynes, Ireland, the dreams and ambitions of scores of men—technicians, scientists, designers, engineers, ordinary lay enthusiasts, and one poet—were realized. Undramatically, without fanfare or ceremony, Kipling's "Night Mail" became reality, sixty years ahead of its inventor's schedule. The last link in the commercial skyway around the world was opened.

Officially that is not so. Safety decrees that there shall be months of exploratory flights similar to those just concluded before passengers and mail will be carried. Those of us on the "outside" cannot begin to appreciate the complexities of the problems. A score or more Atlantic flights have given the clue to some of them. The location of the Botwood and Foynes harbors are expected to take care of others. The meteorologists have pointed out weather hazards. Many have been eliminated on the drafting boards and in the laboratories as the test flights will prove. But proof there must be—proof and knowledge.

The tragedy in the South Pacific—if it is not too early to give up hope for Amelia Earhart Putnam and her navigator—gives an idea of the "uncertainties" which must be eliminated. There can be fairly accurate assumption as to why she was forced down; but why, since she can communicate with the search parties, has she not been able to give them even approximate information on her position? If radio makes it possible for her to keep in touch what is it that makes it impossible to more than guess where she is?

Scheduled point-to-point flights on direct commercial services do not involve the same risks as casual long-distance "hops" such as Miss Earhart was making. Yet every precaution that could be taken, all the mechanical facilities, a navigator who is rated among the best in the flying business, could not overcome the uncertainties, and have not made rescue any more easy.

In the very short life of commercial aviation tremendous strides toward safety have been made. The records of the existing airlines are the proof. But ocean flying is not land flying, and the precautions, the tests and research that have made Continental air travel practicable must be duplicated on the Atlantic route. The service itself has been planned for years. Those others over the Pacific, to India, South Africa and Australia, have all contributed to yesterday's flights. The rest must be learned in the air between Botwood and Foynes, Montreal and Southampton, New York and the Azores, Bermuda and Baltimore.

SNAPSHOTS

It pays when making a public statement that can be checked up to put the matter straight and square.

The present County Council meeting seems to be the hottest one yet. Some very important matters cropped up this session.

After all the Municipal and City Councils should come nearer to the people than any other legislative body.

Advice given to the Historical Society by one of the York County Councilors: If you enjoy collecting old documents and don't mind the cost, try endorsing notes for your friends.

"The baby looks like its father, but you need not worry as long as it is healthy," said a woman to a fond wife and mother about her first born.

If the girls on King Street are not open for business they had better pull in the signs. Their outside work is getting on the nerves of the neighbours and should merit the attention of the police.

The magnificent Temple of Humanity in Osaka, Japan, has been sold by auction to furnish scrap iron for warships. Isn't it the truth figuratively, too?

German magicians have been forbidden to use eggs or milk in their performances. If they are deprived of their rabbits they will have to go out of business.

Men aren't perfect, women aren't perfect, love isn't perfect and marriage is full of pitfalls and disillusionments; but if you hope to dodge all the hazards, why not just give up living and save yourself the effort?

California osteopaths were told that the best dancers are knock-kneed. This doesn't mean that everybody who is knock-kneed will turn into a superlative dancer overnight, but it will remove thousands of inferiority complexes.

GOD TO LEAD

tures of the Tribes of Israel and the ancient Greeks, the greatest historical merger of all times.

Ten boats and 90 busses will be used to transport the Divine followers, and there was much speculation in Harlem tonight on whether "Moses" Divine would smite the Hudson River with his staff, causing the waters to part and allowing the busses to drive up a dry river-bed, thereby avoiding traffic lights.

The mathematical problem of how 100,000 persons could be put on ten boats and 90 busses failed to dismay Father.

"Peace, it's wonderful," was his answer to all questions as to whether some one had not become a little liberal with the zeroes when it came to making the estimate of 100,000.

The "Promised Land Olympic Games" will contain features hitherto not associated with athletic contests. The outstanding event will be a potato-peeling contest, which will take place an hour before meal-time. There will be a succession of relay races, but instead of passing batons to one another the runners will use photographs of Father Divine.

The climax of the games will be the 100-yard dash, and for a time that event threatened to be a knotty problem for the Promised Land Olympic Games Committee. There were too many entrants; too many winged angels who wanted to prove their speed. The problem was solved by throwing the 100-yard dash open to every one. Tonight, just before the entry lists closed, there were almost 1,000 starters who will run in one heat, making that event a sort of pedestrian Charge of the Light Brigade.

SEARCH GOES

planes and ships spread fanwise through the Phoenix Island region yesterday in a determined search for Amelia Earhart, now missing for six full days with her navigator, Fred Noonan.

Three planes catapulted into the air from the battleship Colorado for their second sweep over Windward reef southeast of Howland Island, land dot in the Pacific which Miss Earhart missed on her attempted world flight.

The Coast Guard cutter Itasca searched islets, reefs and shoals south of Howland and westward of the Phoenix group. The Navy minesweeper Swan searched east of Howland.

Although the navy reported no developments in the day's search at 5 p.m., ADT, hopes of friends and relatives persisted despite that Miss Earhart and her navigator have been lost since last Friday.

Nearing Honolulu, the $400,000 aircraft carrier Lexington prepared for a quick refueling at Lahaina roads and a 1,500-mile run to the Howland region to reinforce the search with a great air fleet.

The Colorado's planes first sought a sand band supposedly lying 45 miles north of Windward reef.

In a two-hour, 20-minute fight yesterday the Colorado's planes failed to find the sand bank, listed as a "doubtful position."

The Colorado did not report its own progress but was believed to be about 150 miles south of the equator.

At 4 a. m. Howland time, (12:30 p. m. A.D.T.) the Itasca reported its position as about 90 miles south southwest of Howland and heading westward in partly cloudy weather with visibility about 1,000 yards.

From the positions of the three ships it appeared they had started to diverge somewhere near Howland and deployed until they represented the points of a great triangle.

MUNICIPAL

of the building. The president of the York and Sunbury Historical Society made the statement to Municipal Councilors that the Fredericton City Aldermen were giving the matter of a grant to the society favorable consideration. The President, who must have been mistaken, should have known that the City of Fredericton had decided that they could not give the grant. This and other extravagant statements made to the Municipal Council in regard to the Society resulted in the Municipal giving the application what is generally known in legislative parlance as a "six months hoist."

Public Shy

Whilst it would be a wonderful thing to have a museum the proper proposition would be to have a museum and library combined. If this proposition were submitted to the people, and the committee of the citizens apart from the Historical Society altogether, were at the back of it the public might have more confidence in the proposition. The Historical Society has dwindled from more than a hundred and thirty members at the start, down to less than fifty members at the present time and the exhibits are for the most part loaned to the Society and the most of the articles are owned by Major F. A. Good and his family. While some of these exhibits are more or less valuable others would not be of enough historic value to make it necessary to provide a building for storing these things at the public expense. This is probably the reason or one of the reasons why the public is fighting shy. One of the largest exhibits which had for a couple of years been loaned to the society was recently withdrawn and shipped to another museum.

Library Needed

The general opinion of the citizens seems to be that what is needed is a first class public library in this city, and if the mysterious donor would consider this proposition the public could probably be induced to give it more favorable consideration especially if it were in the hands of a body of representative citizens. The York and Sunbury Historical Society as at present constituted can hardly claim to be composed of representative citizens.

MOSCOW, July 9—Maxim Litvinoff added another instance to his reputation for plain spoken diplomacy when without mincing words he told the Japanese envoy in Moscow that Japan had not kept her agreement to withdraw her troops in the Amur river district, although Russia had done so.

In the words that admitted of no double interpretation he told the Japanese envoy that Japan will have to keep her troops out of Siberia. He warned him that if Japan did not do so Russia would challenge Japan in open warfare.

MISS AUSTRALIA NOW VISITOR AT LAKE LOUISE

BANFF, Alta., July 9—Overshadowing the everyday sports for which this mountain town is known, the search of elaborate trimmings for participation in the big Indian day celebration to be held July 32-25 proved to be the most popular activity of the past week. Ten gallon sombreros, brilliant neckerchiefs, chromium studded chaps and multi-hued shirts were being searched for in stores and Indian camps by anxious guests.

Among the many visitors from Montreal both to Banff Springs and the Chateau Lake Louise for the past few days are Miss Anne Winslow-Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Prato, Miss Rose S. Gregoire, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Unwin, Dr. William Benedict and Mrs. T. R. Enderby.

Visitors from world points include Mr. K. Zenko, Berlin, Germany, Mr. H. F. L. Jellye Manila, Mr. P. Ischler Robart, New Guinea, Capt. D. B. Mitchell, Mr. Baker Carr, HongKong, Miss Fannie A. Leith, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Brown, Mr. George Wylie, of Honolulu.

From England, were Miss V. Cox, Thorpe, Mr. and Mrs. T. Alloway, Birmingham, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Balmer, of Cheshire. Australia guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Poynton, of Perth, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Thomson, Auckland, N. Z., Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Guinness, Mr. and Mrs. Justly Rawlins, Miss T. H. Stoddard, Miss Joy Joynt Smith and Miss Sheila Martin, officially known as "Miss Australia" for 1937, all of Sydney.

WARFARE FEARED

their troops were, standing by in merely "defensive positions."

They flatly rejected, however, a Japanese demand for withdrawal of Chinese troops from both sides of the river.

Eyewitnesses reported the Japanese were entrenching on the west side, setting up heavy artillery in apparent preparation for an attack.

From the first, the gun fire was audible in Peiping.

Both sides immediately rushed up reinforcements, and this morning the battle was renewed.

Later an armistice was arranged between the opposing sides and negotiations were attempted. These quickly broke down, however.

The battle was resumed when the Chinese refused to comply with a Japanese ultimatum demanding withdrawal of Chinese troops.

Chinese casualties were more than 200 killed and wounded.

Japanese casualties were placed at 10, including two officers.

Admitting Chinese troops fired on the Japanese soldiers during the manoeuvres, official Chinese quarters here blamed the clash on Chinese resentment against Japanese military displays.

They said the fighting was the result of a sham Japanese attack on Lukuchiao, a Chinese garrison centre. The Chinese, it was claimed, mistook the sham manoeuvres for a real attack.

Officials added that the Japanese practice of holding Japanese manoeuvres in Chinese defense areas was condemned by Chinese authorities as "most provocative."

The Nanking government instructed Chinese military authorities here to attempt to "localize" the incident. Authorities closed the East City gate at Peiping to prevent entry of 500 Japanese troops from Tungechow. Chinese sources asserted the Japanese troops shelled Wang Ping, a small walled town near the Marco Polo bridge, between here and Lukuchiao.

Several houses were destroyed. A score of Chinese soldiers and 10 civilians were killed and wounded, it was claimed.

HOT WEATHER

Northeastern Saskatchewan still gives promise of fairly good yields but prospects are only fair to poor elsewhere with southern and central districts reporting total failure.

Feed supplies will be exceedingly scarce in all of Southern Saskatchewan and Eastern Alberta as the dry weather has scorched pastures and ruined the prospects for hay crops. Immediate rains in these areas are needed to relieve a critical feed situation.

Reports by Provinces
Following are reports by Provinces:

Manitoba—While the general situation in the Province is still good, hot, dry weather during the past week has resulted in some crops showing signs of drought damage.

Saskatchewan—With rainfall over the Province either lacking entirely or too light to be of any practical value, the boundaries of the drought ravaged area have extended considerably during the past week.

TAKE THE HEAT ON HIGH (or Keep In High Gear This Summer)

WHEN the heat comes, some people, like old cars, can't make the grade—they have to slip into "second" or into "low". The heat slows them, saps their "horsepower". Why can I, a youngster of almost 80, who, judged by conventional standards, should be on the scrap heap, drive in high through the hottest summer, defying Mr. Sol, just as in winter I scorn Mr. Zero? The answer is foods. People give no thought at all to the foods they ought to eat, only the foods they like. They follow the herd. Herd intelligence is notably no intelligence at all.

If people would really think, they would realize that bodily health depends upon the blood that feeds the body cells. The blood depends upon the kind of foods which build the blood. Therefore the kind of blood that flows through our bodies can make us shrivel and shiver on cold days and wilt and wither on hot days. The cause of both is viscid, ropy, toxic blood, derived from denatured, dead, demineralized, constipating foods.

Here is how to prove me right or wrong. During the hot spell, make your breakfast of Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy or Lishus, all you can enjoy with milk or cream, raisins or chopped dates, not body-heating sugar. Make thick cereal to chew thoroughly. If hot cereal is not liked, cook any of them the previous night, allow to cool, place in refrigerator and serve for breakfast, with sliced or canned peaches, ripe bananas, fruit jelly, preserve, or honey with cream or milk. Drink iced Kofy-Sub, sweetened with brown sugar, or preferably honey, added while hot, a very delightful and healthful beverage. For noon meal a salad of fresh fruit or raw vegetables, iced Kofy-Sub. For evening meal, a large fruit or vegetable salad, sprinkled with grated nuts, grated cheese or cottage cheese, or lightly steamed vegetables if salads are not liked, as second choice. Any kind of juicy fruit for dessert. Iced Kofy-Sub or hot Kofy-Sub if hot drink is preferred.

Train the intestines to eliminate after each meal. It is of utmost importance to exercise all groups of muscles briskly, fifteen or twenty minutes daily, to the point of deep breathing, to burn up internal poisonous waste. If you do not know how, send fifty cents for my book "SYSTEMATIZED
