FREDERICTON, JULY 28, 1937

Looking Beyond Mr. Bennett

THE Montreal Gazette believes the conference Right Hon. R. B. Bennett is to have with his followers in the Commons "can serve a useful purpose in preparing the way for a thoroughly representative gathering of Conservatives." This carries the subject beyond the question of Mr. Bennett's physical ability to continue as Leader, and undoubtedly the point is raised by the Montreal paper because of its interest in the party's welfare. It is especially pertinent if Mr. Bennett contemplates retiring, for his leadership can be said to have constituted the party and its policies during the last several years. His withdrawal would mean that a newly chosen personality would have to be strengthened by a well-defined program.

The term of the present Federal Government has two years or more to run, but, in the opinion of the Gazette, it would be of little help to have Mr. Bennett remain only through this period. "Settlement of the question of leadership for, say, one more session," it reasons, "would be wholly unsatisfactory, in that it would mean that, should a change then become unavoidable, the party would have less time and insufficient time in which to organize under a new head and prepare itself for an effective part in a contest which would then be very near at hand."

It is not a light decision that confronts the present Opposition party if it desires to go to the mat in earnest with the administration. Without serious Governmental failures to criticize, it will need a positive policy to command attention. The traditional line of demarcation between the parties is almost wiped out. It is doubtful, at any rate, that promises of higher tariffs would strike a popular responsive chord at this time. Providing it found a new Leader to thrill the audience, where would it seek an inspiring platform?

"What the Conservative Party needs, and needs very urgently," declares the Gazette, "is a thorough, honest and earnest overhauling. A caucus of elected members, the majority of them afflicted with an inferiority complex, cannot do it, probably would not be allowed to do it. The circumstances are such that only a general party convention, which ought to be held not later than the fall of this year, can deal with them constructively."

When chosen Leader at the Winnipeg convention Mr. Bennett captured the imagination of the gathering with a vivid promise to dedicate everything to the cause of the party. He meant what he said, and no man could have done more to implement a pledge. He has fulfilled it so completely with expenditure of energy, time and, probably, means that he overshadowed his colleagues. The 1930 election was followed promptly by the special tariff session to relieve the unemployment situation, and unemployment grew worse. Mr. Bennett's notable radio appeal on social legislation failed for other reasons. He was not responsible in either case, but the two failures together constituted a blow to policy which, it would seem, can be overcome only by a new and intriguing programme.

As the Gazette views it, the party foundations, which have been uprooted, must be relaid by the rank and file, and this can be done only at a general convention. "Briefly," it summarizes, "it will be the business of the convention, if held, to decide whether or not the party is going back to first principles, is to act as a collective expression of political thought, harmonizing with the party's past services, with the conception of public responsibility which actuated the great Conservative leaders of the past, or whether it is to compete with radicalism, is to exchange all its old lamps for new, and is, in short, to cease being a Conservative Party."

Apparently the Montreal paper believes it would be well for Mr. Bennett to relinquish his post, so party can get a new start without delay. Orthodox Conservative papers have not gone as far as this in discussing the situation, but the Gazette may be revealing an undercurrent of thought which demands articulation.

Scots Welcome Their Queen

ONLY those who understand the Scot, who sense his talent for keeping in restraint the most stirring emotions, will realize the depth and the sincerity of celebrations marking the recent visit of the King and Queen to Scotland. For the first time in history a Scottish girl takes her place on the British throne, and Scots were welcoming her home.

It is a long time since James VI, Mary Stuart's son, took the road to London—since followed by so many of his countrymen—to become James I of England. That also was a proud day for Scotland. But "Jamie" had a great deal of trouble at home. So had his son, Charles I, when the covenanters harried his supporters and Scotland saw the bitter struggle between followers of Montrose and Argyle.

But all that is history, though not forgotten history as few people know their own national story as do the Scots. This time it was a Scots lassie that returned as a Queen to stay a while with the home folk. There was no warring among the clans. She found her people busy with the arts of peace. The kilts, the tam-o'-shanters and the turbans were got out for the occasion, and there was a great blowing on the pipes. Edinburgh Castle thundered its friendly and Royal salute of twenty-one guns. Historic Holyrood was made ready for the Queen and her Royal husband—and never doubt that would be the order of precedence in the Scottish mind on this occasion. After all, why shouldn't it be? Scotland had given England Kings, but never before a Queen.

No wonder that during the great procession down Princes Street there was thunderous cheering, but there was more in the reserve of countless Scots than the cheering indicated. The Queen of Great Britain and all her vast dominions is a Scot. That is a subject for deep and heartfelt thankfulness rather than hurrahs.

SNAPSHOTS

Now is the time for all big girls and little girls to learn to swim.

Stephen Leacock retired McGill professor, is now raising chickens. Here is a hint for Burton Kierstead and Byron Priestman who are not coming back to U.N.B. this year.

The man who gives the nightly concerts on the bagpipes should borrow Fred Mundle's kiltie uniform and tam.

Fred Blair had his Wolf Cubs and Boy Scouts in good trim this year.

The Mounties showed the result of good training yesterday afternoon in the York Street gun incident. They behaved according to the old traditions of the "Riders of the Plains."

But it isn't wicked gambling, of course, when nice people like us put up a little money, just to make the game interesting.

Designer of a waterproof velvet wrap for a bride ought to know better. The "showers" are all over by that time.

We may rest assured virtue will triumph in Spain and vice will totter. There remains the small matter of determining which is which.

No little girl ever asked as many questions in a week as a small boy can ask in half an hour. And if you will glance over the curious crowd around an excavation or a demonstrator's window or a taxicab accident, you will find at least ten men to one woman trying to "see what's going on".

Dentists use new "articulator" machine (mechanical jaw to you) to test false teeth; but it would be useful, too, for studying methods of attacking sandwich juicy with ripe tomato and other dangerous victuals.

TOBACCO HARVEST

are being paid $40 a week and expenses.

Many of the growers do not appear to be greatly alarmed over the reports that agitators are busy. It is believed the situation will adjust itself within a few days, in plenty of time for the beginning of the harvest next week. Meanwhile hundreds of men are congregating in Tilsonburg and Delhi, seeking harvest work. Saturday and Sunday they were arriving in the tobacco town every hour on foot and on bicycles.

It is estimated that at least 20,000 men will be needed when the harvest is in full progress. Flue-cured growers are offering a standard wage of $3 and board for a ten-hour day. A few are said to be paying $3.50 per day. It is reported a number of men are demanding as high as $5 a day.

ribbed on more occasions than one by the professor, not only "vis-a-vis," but even in some of the humorist's books. If the professor doesn't feel complimented at this answer, he must in some cryptic manner wield a power over the grocer that is unknown to the rest of the world.

The professor grows a whole farm of things out there at Brewery Bay, and the next item that'll be up for sale will be the tomatoes, whenever they figure out ripening. And it's a funny thing, the professor has a whole chicken-house full of hens, but every day, he comes to town to buy eggs from the aforementioned grocer. Yes, sir, every day.

who permits us to use a portion of her property, free of charge, the land is about 50 feet above the summer level of water, flat, dry, with a number of shelter trees, and free of rocks. The swimming is good and the drinking water, of which there is a generous supply, has been tested and found to be of the best quality.

There was one salary paid in the camp, that to the cook, the groceries were purchased in Fredericton, the vegetables, meat, fish, etc., were purchased from farmers in the vicinity of the camp.

The food was of good quality, milk at each meal, there being 225 quarts consumed during the period, 100 pounds of meat, 40 pounds of salmon, 2 barrels of potatoes, 240 loaves of bread, etc.

On Sunday, the Roman Catholic boys, left the camp and attended service at their church 1½ miles from the camp. Rev. A. F. Bate gave the remaining boys a service in the marquee, and a number of people living a short ways from the camp, attended. After the service, the boys were permitted to roam about the grounds at leisure, and greet a large number of visitors.

The camp was in every way a success and broke Thursday, July 8th. The Association is grateful to W. G. Clark and E. M. Young Limited for supplying free of charge, transportation of the boys and equipment to and from camp.

TAKE THE HEAT ON HIGH (or Keep In High Gear This Summer)

WHEN the heat comes, some people, like old cars, can't make the grade—they have to slip into "second" or into "low". The heat slows them, saps their "horsepower". Why can't a youngster of almost 80, who, judged by conventional standards, should be on the scrap heap, drive in high through the hottest summer, defying Mr. Sol, just as in winter I scorn Mr. Zero? The answer is foods. People give no thought at all to the foods they ought to eat, only the foods they like. They follow the herd. Herd intelligence is notably no intelligence at all.

If people would really think, they would realize that bodily health depends upon the blood that feeds the body cells. The blood depends upon the kind of foods which build the blood. Therefore the kind of blood that flows through our bodies can make us shrivel and shiver on cold days and wilt and wither on hot days. The cause of both is viscid, ropy, toxic blood, derived from denatured, dead, demineralized, constipating foods.

Here is how to prove me right or wrong. During the hot spell, make your breakfast of Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy or Lishus, all you can enjoy with milk or cream, raisins or chopped dates, not body-heating sugar. Make thick enough to chew thoroughly. If hot cereal is not liked, cook any of them the previous night, allow to cool, place in refrigerator and serve for breakfast, with sliced or canned peaches, ripe bananas, fruit jelly, preserve, or honey with cream or milk. Drink iced Kofy-Sub, sweetened with brown sugar, or preferably honey, added while hot, a very delightful and healthful beverage. For noon meal a salad of fresh fruit or raw vegetables, iced Kofy-Sub. For evening meal, a large fruit or vegetable salad, sprinkled with grated nuts, grated cheese or cottage cheese, or lightly steamed vegetables if salads are not liked, as second choice. Any kind of juicy fruit for dessert. Iced Kofy-Sub or hot Kofy-Sub if hot drink is preferred.

Train the intestines to eliminate after each meal. It is of utmost importance to exercise all groups of muscles briskly, fifteen or twenty minutes daily, to the point of deep breathing, to burn up internal poisonous waste. If you do not know how, send fifty cents for my book "SYSTEMATIZED
