Labor

backward of the provinces as to Labor organizations and Labor and Social legislation, especially as to conditions in pulp and paper mills and woods operations. But it was largely labor's own fault. While Pacific Coast pulp and paper workers get 54-12 cents an hour, those of Edmundston get 26. When Edmundston and Dalhousie workers organized in 1933, each body got 24 cents an hour. Edmundston let its union go down, and its reorganized union now gets 26. Dalhousie kept up its union and gets 38 cents an hour. So much for organization. He knew of very bad conditions still in N. B. lumber camps, but in Western Canada, where he had worked, lumber camps were as clean and tidy as city hotels. Last year on a road construction job near his place, contractors paid only the pulp and paper company's rates. He wondered if the Fair Wage Officer had found this out on his survey. He (Dionne) had sworn affidavits from a hundred pulp and paper workers, where average yearly earnings were not much, if any, over $300. Improved machinery had benefitted only the employers.

Opposite Edmundston, on the Maine side, wages were 40 cents an hour, which he thought could and ought to be paid in N. B. In Ontario pulp and paper minimum was 42 cents an hour. To have a chance, N. B. Labor must organize 100 per cent. Cost of food, etc., has gone up so fast that the workers' net, or real, wages is much less than before. If they don't organize they'll get still less. Almost a year ago Edmundston was about bankrupt. Then labor elected seven of the eight aldermen and at end of 1936 the town had a surplus.

A. E. Skaling

Mr. Skaling urged organization. His union were getting 90 cents an hour for an eight-hour day. Little Japan was putting it over big China merely because of superior organization. As long as 80 per cent. of N. B. was unorganized, there was little hope for workers. Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia had Industrial Standards Acts, by which employees and employer got together and established codes.

J. H. Wallace

Mr. Wallace reviewed labor industry on the North Shore and in England. England, where labor is best organized, stood the depression most quietly and successfully, largely on account of Employment Insurance. Workers' Allowances, etc., won by labor after hard struggles. He represented anyone calling men on relief lazy. Even in 1929 at the peak of prosperity in North America, there were a million without work, which was the fault not of the men but of the system. Old Age Pensions should be paid at 65 and to all, instead of penalizing those who had saved a little.

J. S. Martin

Mr. Martin, a business man, and former M. L. A., declared that business should stand with labor, as prosperity of all depends upon labor being kept busy at good wages. Chatham's condition was a little.

"THE PRINTING PRESS IS THE TONGUE OF CIVILIZATION"

In the year 1437 Johannes Gutenberg, a German printer, invented the printing press and began printing at Mainz.

The civilized nations are now commemorating the five hundredth anniversary of this invention. We believe that the best way to get information to the public is by the general use of "printers' ink"—civilization as a means of conveying to the men of Fredericton and vicinity.

LARGE AUDIENCE GREET THE FTON MALE CHORUS

Programme of Choice Selections Well Rendered

An overflowing audience greeted the Fredericton Male Chorus last evening when they presented a concert that was highly appreciated by all those present. The Chorus was under the direction of J. Harrison Wade. Harold F. Richards acted as pianist and Miss Mary E. Grannen assisted with several splendid readings. F. T. Pridham who was chairman of the evening announced before the rising of the curtain that due to the illness of George Boldon that the following changes in the programme would have to be made: In place of the first number "Bells of the Sea" by Solomon and "Who Knows" by Bell were rendered by Ronald Lawrence. The "Fortune Teller" was also omitted.

All the numbers were enthusiastically received so that it became a difficult task for a critic to single out any special number. However popular comments of a favorable nature concerning the 'Rosary,' 'The Soldiers Chorus' with the Drum as an encore number and also the 'Lost Chord' would indicate that these numbers had drawn special favor with the audience.

Those who are responsible for the great progress and contribution which the Fredericton Male Chorus has during the past few months made to the musical circles of the city are to be congratulated upon results achieved.

Over two hundred were turned away from the Opera House early after the opening of the doors the hall having been filled.

The members of the Chorus are:

Second Tenors: Murray Shanks, Arthur Bailey, Lawrence Dryden, Alden Hay, Gordon R. Foster, Ronald McKay, Harold Tait.

Baritones: Donald Horncastle, E.
