

BEAVERS TAKE GAME AND CUP

HAND 7 TO 2 TRIMMING TO HUB SEXTET

5 Goals In Third Stanza Swamps Maroons

SAINT JOHN, Nov. 30.—With the best defensive display witnessed by Saint John fans in the pre-season series between the Saint John Beavers and Moncton Maroons the Beavers rode roughshod over their old opponents last night at The Forum for a 7-2 victory to lift the series and the H. L. Marcus trophy.

Although the Beavers and Maroons battled on fairly even terms in the first and second it was in the third period that the Beavers carried attack after attack into the Moncton zone to break down the resistance of the Maroon rearguard and bat five markers into the cage behind youthful George Harris.

Beavers took the lead from the start on Olsen's sweet goal in the first when he rifled Innes' pass high into the Moncton net. They were never headed in their battle for the deciding game and although Moncton cut a goal off in the second the Maroons could not stand up to the power plays of the Beavers in the third and the locals notched their fourth victory of the nine-game series.

Proceedings were livened before the opening goal was fired in the third when Livingston and White took up where they left off last Wednesday night. Both carried their sticks high but White forced the fight by starting to throw punches at Livingston, which the latter returned willingly. White got a major for his endeavors and Livingston the customary two minutes.

More than 2,000 fans watched the deciding game of the series and saw the Beavers swarm over their opponents in the final real workout before the season opens here on Friday when Saint John and Saint Stephen tangle in one of the openers. Maroons will be at home to Fredericton Capitals on the same night.

Schmeling Once Forestry Student

Once upon a time before Max Schmeling took up boxing, he was a student for forestry. He liked it, but realized there wasn't much money in such a calling.

However, he went into the ring and became rich and famous, and now he is the owner of a fine forest of 6,000 acres in Germany. It is the famous estate once owned by Field Marshal Blucher, and next to another large one owned by the Bismarcks.

There is enough clear ground for 100 cows, 25 horses, 200 pigs, and a few hundred chickens and sheep. In Germany you don't own a farm unless you are a farmer, and Max had to pass the government tests to get his okay. Now he is registered as a farmer in his native land.

And when his fighting days are over, that's where he will be found, with his beautiful wife, the Anna Ondra of the German films.

Italy Becoming Polo Conscious

Italy is pictured as a land of rugged mountains and lagoons. The horse hasn't figured prominently in sports since the days of the chariot races.

But Italy has gone wild about polo all of a sudden. The game was taken up by army officers only recently and has met with great popularity. Plans already are being made for an international polo championship in 1942, the year of Italy's world fair.

But before then Italy expects to develop a top-notch team to enter in the 1940 Olympic games.

The climate in Rome permits year-around playing. The greatest difficulty encountered to date is inability to keep a turf.

SPORT SHORTS

Carl and Frank Ripley, 20 year old twins, are regulars on the Baltimore Orioles ice hockey team.

War Admiral is not a small horse, contrary to popular opinion. He is half an inch taller than Sea Biscuit. Younger brothers of Gus Mancuso and Carl Hubbell will form a Jersey City battery next spring.

Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, recently voted the most valuable player in the American league, is a badminton star good enough to be featured in vaudeville.

In both the National and American leagues last year there were 140 shutouts pitched.

After finishing second in the U.S. national championship run, Pat Dengis won three marathons in a row, one of them the Pan-American title event at Dallas.

BABE DIDRIKSON COMING WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPION

Great Improvement Is Noted In Girl Ath- lete's Game

If she is not already the greatest woman golfer in all the bunkered universe, it won't be long before Mildred (Babe) Didrikson has that unusual distinction bestowed upon her athletic shoulders.

The volatile Texas girl who turned her remarkable talents to golf as a career after she had become the most amazing female athlete of her day and generation has gone a long way upon the fairways in a short time.

From a raw recruit who had only a meagre knowledge of the game's finesse and who insisted on beating the daylight out of every ball she teed up she had miraculously transformed herself into a golfer with an excellent idea of what it was all about.

Masters Fundamentals

Her natural athletic ability had given her grace, rhythm and timing, the three fundamental assets of a much misunderstood game. She had shortened her swing. She stood at the ball correctly, with a stance slightly closed and she hit with a beautiful freedom but without that extra pressure she used to love to employ.

"I don't play away recklessly anymore," Miss Didrikson said. "I know now that that doesn't get you any place but in the bunkers and in other troublesome places. I used to stand up at the ball and let go with everything I had."

"But no more. Tommy Armour has taught me many, many things, but probably the best of his teachings was not to kill the ball. In fact, Tommy changed me around almost entirely, new grip, new stance and new frame of mind."

"I've stood on the tee with him five hours at a time. He has been very patient. But I hope some day to reward his faith in me by going somewhere in this game."

Long Hitter

"I've made it my career and of course it has become very important to me. And I work at it. Oh, how I work at it! I've practiced as many as six hours sometimes. But hard work has its rewards. I have improved."

Miss Didrikson has improved so much that today she is a better golfer than 90 per cent. of the golfers in the country, men and women, amateurs and pros.

"In all my thirty years I have seen them all," said Paddy Doyle, veteran professional, the day she practiced for the Montague match at Fresh Meadow, "but never anybody who could hit a golf ball as she does. I can hardly believe my eyes."

Some of her drives, when conditions are favorable, have gone as far as 275 yards. At Fresh Meadow that day she hit three that were well over 250. Asked about her ability to swat the pill so hard she said:

"I played a round in Alabama where all my drives average 248 yards. Later on I average 252. That was the best I've done so far. But I'm really not so interested in distance as I am in keeping the ball on line. That's the secret of good golf."

SPORT DUST

Saint John won the toss and took the pre-season series with the 7-2 victory last night. Everyone now will agree that the Saint John crew has a little more push than James can get out of his men. The power play in the last session should show that, Gibbs needed a few goals and sent them up to get them—they snaked in five counters to make the thing decisive.

If fans will remember, this is the same type of push that made the Moncton team the top-notchers last season. When they needed scores they could get them from any team in the league. Saint John seems to be the ones who have that wallop this season.

The Fredericton Hockey club is slated for two practice sessions a day starting on Wednesday on the Hub ice and will wind up the practice on Friday, the league opening Friday night. About 14 men will be going to Moncton tomorrow and among them will be Bun McLennahan. Where Bun is going to be when the league opens, no one knows. First the rumor says St. Stephen, then Fredericton. Bun himself says that he won't know until this week-end.

Just at the time they were saying Nels Stewart, veteran campaigner of the N.H.L. was slipping, he sneaks up and rattles in three tallies to give his Amerks a 3-3 tie with the Bruins. At the same time he breaks the record set by Ken Doraty in '34 by pushing the three past Tiny Thompson in seven minutes and 16 seconds.

Jack Adams thinks it's about time to shake up his lines and try to make something more out of his once proud Red Wings than targets for every team they have met this season. He plans on bringing in a couple of faces from the farm and sending Pete Kelly and Johnny Sorrell down to the Hornets. Both men aren't living up to expectations. The biggest gamble he is taking is breaking up the Lewis, Barry, Aurie line, the greatest attacking line in the past two seasons. It's a pretty long jump in the dark, but far be it from this pots to question the wisdom of a man who teamed a hockey machine to two Stanley Cup championships in two successive years.

The baseball moguls are gathered in Milwaukee for the regular swapping bee of baseball players. Rumor says that both Dizzy Dean and Van Lingle Mungo, two of baseball's bad boys, will be for sale. Who wants them? No one seems to know.

SARRON SAYS CAN TRIM ARMSTRONG IF MATCHED AGAIN

Wants To Fight Colored Boy As Lightweight

Pete Sarron, the Singular Syrian believes that he can whip Henry Armstrong, the little Negro who relieved him of the burden of toting the featherweight crown around the world. Sarron says it with reservations and weight is the crux of his argument.

Sarron was the fellow who had real difficulty making the weight. Though Armstrong may have been pressed, the fact remains that Hank fought right on to the end without changing his pace which is always a tireless, down-hill trot after his man. If it was down-hill with Henry, it certainly was up-grade for Pete. His legs went rubber under him and he lost his punch. He was the fellow who got fooled and who fooled the writers.

"I was weak at the weight," said Sarron. "I am a lightweight, I'm now convinced, and in the future I will fight only at that limit. I want to get Armstrong back into the ring at anything under 135 and I promise to redeem myself. I know that I can keep out of his path."

Legs Must Be Strong

"You've got to have legs to do it, and I don't have any pins under me at all when I come in at 126. I realize that he was down to 124 3/4. Maybe he can make the weight much easier than I can. His strength and his pace proved that making it didn't hurt him one-tenth as much as it did me. That's a terrible feeling to have come over you losing your legs, your speed and your punch at one and the same time."

"I want to meet Armstrong again and I'm certain I can reverse matters." What weight should Henry try to attain if and when he meets Lou Ambers for the lightweight title? That is the question which is now going the rounds.

A lot of people think that Ambers will defeat the new featherweight champion when he attempts to annex the lightweight crown as well. He made 131 for a fight in Philadelphia shortly before he stopped Sarron. If Henry could come in at 132 or 133 he'd have a royal chance against Ambers, though this writer is not picking him to beat Lou. Ambers is a far better champion than the public realizes.

Ambers Seal Champion

Lou turned in a fine performance against the much-touted Pedro Montanez and was as safe as a twenty dollar gold piece tucked away in the U. S. vaults. Montanez hit Lou just three times with hard blows and two of these were on the side of the head when Lou got close.

DAVIE KERR IS PET NEMESIS OF DETROIT WINGS

Pulled Shut-Out Twice Over the World Champions

The world's hockey champion Detroit Red Wings have been shut out only twice in 20 games — and both times the rare feat was accomplished by Davie Kerr, slim backstop of the New York Rangers, who fought the Red Wings to a longdrawn final for the Stanley cup which climaxed the National Hockey league race last spring.

In the third of the five-game cup series, Kerr registered a shut-out when Rangers won 1-0. That was on Detroit ice. On Sunday night, Nov. 7, on Detroit ice again, Rangers beat Wings 3-0 in their first league clash of the present season. Kerr again manning the portals and doing a great job after having been hurt early in the play.

Red Wings had gone their last eight league games of the 1936-37 series without being blanked. They added five play-off games in each of which they managed to score against Montreal Canadiens in the league title play-total, thirteen. They went two games against Rangers in the cup finals, scoring in each, until Kerr blanked them, after a run of 15, in the third tilt. There were two more games, and they scored in each. It was in their second league game of the present season that Kerr blanked the champions. He did the same thing once in the league season last year, when on Nov. 19 Rangers won 1-0 in New York.

AL DELANEY LOSES FIGHT TO STRICKLAND

3 Other Canadians Also Fight At London

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Al Delaney of Oshawa, Ont., tonight lost a close decision to Maurice Strickland, the New Zealand heavy-weight, in a 10-round main bout on the Harringay Arena boxing card.

The fight climaxed a night of boxing in which four Canadians showed their wares in two London rings, but only one of them was successful.

Eddie Wenstob, Edmonton's heavy weight, billed here as the "cowboy boxer," emphasized his comeback by punching out an eight-round decision over Robey Leibbrandt, South Africa's heavyweight champion, also at Harringay.

At Earl's Court, Ken Robinson, Toronto, lost on points in a 10-rounder to Ben Valentine of the Fiji Islands; and on the same card Stafford Barton, Jamaican middleweight, knocked out Yorkie Bentley of Calgary in the eighth round of a 10-round bout.

Delaney led in the early rounds of his bout, fighting craftily to pile up points. However, he took plenty of punishment from Strickland while delivering his blows.

The New Zealander dominated the final rounds, rocking Delaney with a fusillade of blows to the head and body in the eighth.

The crowd both cheered and booed the decision. The referee had frequently cautioned both fighters for holding and wrestling. Strickland weighed 187 pounds to Delaney's 181.

Strickland now becomes one of the leading contenders for Tommy Farr's British Empire title. He will shortly qualify for residence in Great Britain to compete for Farr's British title.

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.
2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.
