COMEDY WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY FREDERICTON BOY

Scores Success Last Evening at Wilmot Church Vestry

Selecting talent from among its own membership, the Dramatic Committee of the Wilmot Young People's Society presented successfully last evening to a capacity house, the comedy hit, "Here Comes Susan," written and directed by Herbert Dayton. This is the first effort of the young playwright and it proved a creditable success. It is hoped by many that Herbert Dayton will present in the future many more of his enjoyable comedies. "Here Comes Susan" provided an evening of fine entertainment and hilarity.

Excellent performances were given by the members of the cast, who proved fully their successful stage ability. The star performance of the evening was the portrayal of a rich and gay old uncle from abroad, delightfully provided by Burns Branch who gave a clever and humorous characterization. By a committee of judges, Mrs. J. B. Taylor, Miss Marjorie Ems and Charles McKordick, the honors of the evening were presented to Burns Branch in the gift of a man's toilet set. Special mention was made of the remainder of the cast.

Centering mainly upon the rather jumbled affairs of Jerry Green (Les Harper), and his wife Susan (Phyllis Gregory), the play proved a humorous and instant success. Despite the wishes of his Uncle Elmer (Burns Branch), Jerry has married Susan Lang in preference to his childhood sweetheart, Susan Weatherby (Dorothy Hickson), who is engaged to marry a New York business man, Carl Van Dell (Lloyd McNutt). His uncle having threatened the loss of Jerry's inheritance if his wishes are not carried out, Jerry is startled to learn of the unexpected visit of his uncle who knows nothing of his marriage. Susan Weatherby offers to pretend that she is Jerry's wife for the few hours that Uncle Elmer will be in town, but Jerry being over-enthusiastic in his welcome, Elmer decides to prolong his visit for a few days. To add to Jerry's and S. Weatherby's discomfort, Carl and his manhandling aunt (Phyllis Stewart) arrive upon the scene. Through a misunderstanding made possible by a gossiping neighbor, Mrs. Brown (Thelma Marr), Uncle Elmer comes to the belief that Jerry is trying to gain control of his money. To further complicate matters, Carl overhearing a conversation, comes to the wrong conclusion that his fiancée is in love with Jerry. Mix-up after mix-up occurs and finally Jerry and his wife Susan are at the verge of parting, but through Carl's aunt matters are easily mended and everyone made happy. To add to the comedy's hilarity, the cast includes Jenny, the ailing housemaid (Muriel Arnold); Susan, Jenny's comical younger sister (Mary Dow); Dolly, a pretty band-aid girl (Zoe Cooper); and Miss Snodgrass, an experienced nurse, with men (Wona McKay). Special credit goes to a number of the members of the cast, who assumed within the last few days or more, the character roles taken by players who through illness of the 'flu and other difficulties were unable to appear.

Specialties of the evening included a mirthful surprise number, Monte Chappelle and his talking doll, and the delightful piano duets of Miss Hazel and Reginald Caldwell. The Wilmot Young People's Society have the privilege of being the first in recent years to produce a play written by one of its own talent. Thanks were extended to Herbert Dayton for his kindness in providing and directing the play. The evening was brought to a close by the cheerful singing of Auld Lang Syne. In the absence of the president, Averil Ross presided over the meeting. Guests of the evening included Miss Anne Marie Doucet, Frank Richard, M.P.P., Kent County, and R. J. Harrington, clerk-assistant of the Legislature.

Hard-Surfaced

road is hardly ever away from a sight of water. What greater charm can be provided for the tourist than that of this trip along the river side upon comfortable highways? Incidentally this lower river road runs through a section which has been proposed for a national park, and where there is a more inviting district? Tourists seek spots which are part of their tour plans and the Saint John valley park site fits into those plans as is done by no other proposed section. But in any case the announcement of the completion of the Saint John River highway is good news.

Cotton Mill to Operate 'Night Shift'

Starting on Monday night, the Canadian Cotton Company's mills at Marysville will put on "night crews" and will be operating under a double schedule for an indefinite period. For the past few months this mill has been running full time during the day. This is a decided contrast to conditions which existed a couple of years ago when many of the employees were working part time and others were unemployed for weeks at a time.

During the federal election of 1935 the residents of Marysville were advised by Conservative campaigners that if the Liberal party were returned to power the cotton mill would be forced to "close down." Not many months after the return of the King government conditions at Marysville commenced to show much improvement, until today the plant provides employment for the majority of the workers in that town.
