Hear Lecture by J. L. Howatt. The fourth regular meeting of the year was held in the Memorial Hall last night. After the opening prayer conducted by Rev. Dean Moorhead and a short practice in singing familiar songs with Oscar Harris as leader, the speaker of the evening was introduced. J. L. Howatt, acting officer in charge of the Dominion Pathological Laboratory at the Experimental Station. Mr. Howatt told the members of the club about the work being done at the station in connection with the improvement of the potato for the farms of the Maritime Provinces and for all Canada. The speaker briefly reviewed the history of the potato as a cultivated crop and spoke of the disastrous effects which failure of the crop because of disease had occasioned in the past. He then told of the new forms of potato diseases which had become known within recent years and of the steps which are being taken to offset the losses they cause through the breeding of resistant strains of the potato plant.

The speaker mentioned that as at present grown the potato is subject to some 32 different diseases caused by fungi, bacteria and what are known as viruses. The production of strains which are resistant to some of these diseases is now being given attention by the governments of many nations, with the problem being studied along many lines of scientific research. The principle of one of these is the cross breeding of other species of the genus solanum found in the home of the plant, South America, with the species now in cultivation with the object of introducing resistant characteristics. At the Fredericton Experimental Station, this work is being carried on using our common variety Green Mountain, as one parent and a South American species which has special characteristics as the other parent, with the object of developing new varieties which will be resistant to late blight, mosaic and scab. The methods used in the work were described and some of the many difficulties encountered. To date, some 40,000 seedlings, the result of such cross breeding, have been grown here and tested for disease resistance, this testing involving the use of mechanical measures, the application of disease spores in sprays and inoculation by hand and through the agency of insects, the entomological laboratory co-operating in rearing and identifying the latter.

The talk on a field of scientific research involving genetics, botany, chemistry, bacteriology and mathematics as well as practical knowledge of agriculture was made very clear and interesting, and in the vote of thanks tendered the speaker, mention was made, that in presenting so technical a subject in a way that all could understand, he had shown not only a splendid grasp of the subject but excellent teaching technique.

Play was then resumed in the progressive card tournament. The results showing Tom Styran leading in bridge and Ernest Ryan in forty-fives. Supper and a few more songs closed another pleasant session of the club.

CANADIAN PLAY THE IDEAL CHOICE, SAYS ADJUDICATOR

Author of Winning Play
Congratulated on
His Work

Revived Interest

French Classic Expected
From Sacred Heart
College

In the final adjudicating of the various entries in the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island annual festival in Saint John last night the award was given to "Nocturne," presented by the Charlottetown Guild.

The winning play "Nocturne," which is anti-war propaganda with a church doorway setting was written by Harry Foster, a Prince Edward Island school teacher as his first attempt at play writing and the author ably took the part of the sacristan in his own play. Other members of the cast were Miss Ruth Simpson, whose performance as the sacristan's demented granddaughter, was awarded the New Brunswick Lieutenant Governor's medal for the best lady's performance in the festival; Ivan Y. Reddin, who took the part of the priest; A. M. Douglas, the patriot; George Hatt as Philip the young man opposed to war, and Miss Esther Rattenburg as the wife of the young man and daughter of the patriot.

George de Warfaz, regional festival adjudicator, in his comments on the three plays presented last evening remarked that those taking part had evidently profited by his remarks of the evening before as the lighting was adequate and nearly all of the performers could be heard. He considered the "Maker of Dreams" a charming fantasy but now too hackneyed. He suggested that festival entries might with advantage be scenes from a three-act play or that "the works of such 'new' authors as Shakespeare" might be used. He recommended Sheridan's plays, those of the Restoration period or translations from the German or French urging the groups to avoid plays that everybody knew. The ideal, he pointed out was the new Canadian play, the home made article.

Speaking of Nocturne, the adjudicator congratulated Mr. Foster on a well written play evidencing an artistic appreciation and a mind above the average. When Mr. Foster had mastered the tricks of the trade in play writing, great things might be expected of him, Mr. de Warfaz believed. He warned the author, however to avoid repetition that is tedious. Repetition was remarked in "Nocturne." The final play, "The Jewel Merchant," the adjudicator described as out of fashion though delightfully constructed by a man who knew his business.

The winning play, he considered, had a perfect setting in its half open church door, reached by a flight of steps. He credited to priest and sacristan perfection in performance and attitude and said the sacristan had had the best diction. The patriot father had been too exaggerated and too fierce in his denunciations. The grouping in this play, Mr. de Warfaz also considered, ranked as perfect. The demented girl he criticized for faulty pronunciation and the young man, he thought, had lost a fine opportunity of ringing declamation in his somewhat weak assertion, "Blow out your bugles." Then again the crash of the bomb had lacked the characteristics of the bomb crashes of actual experience.

The final play of last evening, "The Jewel Merchant," had had very good setting and lighting but had been a mistaken choice. The elegance, refinement and charm of the Medici's was hard to present and had not been in evidence.

While congratulating the three actors very warmly and describing the performance of the young girl as excellent, Mr. de Warfaz offered criticism of the postures used, but commended the fight as one of the best scenes of its kind he has ever witnessed.

In reviewing the Regional Drama Festival committee activity of the past year, Major Simon as chairman noted that there had been one more group from the 1934 Club of St. Andrew's Church, among the competitors and though Mount Allison was not represented because of examinations now in progress, the number of entries had been brought to six by two groups from the St. John Theatre Guild competing.

Throughout the province, fairly good progress had been made in stimulating interest in the drama. Bathurst had organized a Little Theatre and its first three-act play recently produced had been enthusiastically received. The Sacred Heart College had also entered into the spirit of the thing and proposed to enter a French classic in the 1938 regional festival. The Moncton Little Theatre, which celebrated its first birthday recently, had successfully produced four three-act plays and had so comprehensive a membership that even elaborate modern dresses were made by the members and four gowns had cost but $3.50.

Mrs. McKinnon of Moncton, had done yeoman service and through her

CANADIANA

The handsome silver cup presented by the Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward Island for annual award to the winning play in the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Regional Drama Festival was presented last night to the Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild entry in this year's festival, which will represent the region in the Dominion Festival at Ottawa.

The winning play "Nocturne," which is anti-war propaganda with a church doorway setting was written by Harry Foster, a Prince Edward Island school teacher as his first attempt at play writing and the author ably took the part of the sacristan in his own play. Other members of the cast were Miss Ruth Simpson, whose performance as the sacristan's demented granddaughter, was awarded the New Brunswick Lieutenant Governor's medal for the best lady's performance in the festival; Ivan Y. efforts largely a Little Theatre had been established in Sussex and would present its first three-act play Feb. 4. Mrs. McKinnon was also responsible for the steps being taken to form a Little Theatre group for Albert County.

In Saint John Major Simon noted the entry of the 1934 club into the Drama Festival. In St. Andrew's there was another lady doing a tremendous amount of work in fostering the drama—Miss G. Helen Mowat, he said. He referred to Miss Mowat as the author of several plays produced in St. Andrews and in Charlotte county. He noted also that rural communities in Charlotte county had also become interested in the presentation of plays. In Woodstock he hoped for a drama festival entry next year. The Edmundston group, up to the present, was not very active.

MARRIAGE OF DUKE OF NORFOLK AND HON. LAVINIA STRUTT

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Showered with more than 1,000 gifts from royalty and society, the 28-year-old Duke of Norfolk and his fiancée, the Hon. Lavinia Strutt, were married this afternoon.

The duke, generally considered one of the most eligible bachelors in the British Empire, married the daughter of Lord Belper at 2.30 p.m., at Brompton Oratory. Some 3,000 guests attended.

Nearly every member of the royal family sent presents. King George and Queen Elizabeth joined a group of friends in giving the couple an oil portrait of the duke in his hunting clothes.

Norfolk, among his titles is that of Premier Duke of the Realm, is to be in charge, by traditional privilege, of arrangements for the coronation of King George VI in May. He directed the ceremonial arrangements for the funeral of the King's father, George V, last January.

The Duke's family is Roman Catholic but Miss Strutt is a member of the Church of England and she will in the near future embrace the Roman Catholic Faith.

No Happiness In the Home When the Mother Is Sick

The tired, worn out mother cannot make a happy home if she is sick and worried by the never ending household duties. She gets run down and becomes nervous and irritable, downhearted and discouraged, can't rest at night, and gets up in the morning as tired as when she went to bed.

Women suffering in this way will find in Milburn's H. & N. Pills a remedy with which to recuperate their health, build up the run down system, and bring back their bodily vigor.

Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warm cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion. While the little patient relaxes into comfortable sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets
This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Now White—Stainless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.
