The Old Editor

I have a memory that travels back for forty years—in unaccustomed shoes
And gingham dress, my brown hair tied with red,
A checkered sunbonnet upon my head
I saw him often by the railroad track,
Meeting the trains, his keen eye seeking news.

His paper then, as now, was kind and true,
Never did gossip trail its evil there.
Newsy and bright, it was the counterpart
Of his own understanding, honest heart.

It came to us as kindly neighbors do,
Its printed pages accurate and fair.

For fifty years he has been editor,
His life as open as the paper's trend
That bears his imprint of integrity,
He illustrates how kind a life can be,
And makes us proud of him! We wish him more
Good years to be our neighbor and our friend!

—Anne Campbell.

Mystery of Missing Road Plow Explained

An old road plow which was owned by the Provincial Government back in the days of the late Hon. Peter Veniot was minister of public works was discovered a few days ago in the rear of the Long property at Lincoln.

There were many wild stories connected with the discovery, one of these was to the effect that it was one of the road plows used during the days of the Tilley government was in power and that it had disappeared after the road supervisor who had been in the employ of the Tilley government had been let out when the Dysart government came into power. The facts of the case are however that this plow became useless way back in the days of Peter Veniot. Mr. Veniot instructed the then road supervisor Ernest Hayward that, as the plow was absolutely useless, it had better be disposed of. Mr. Hayward had the plow hauled to the rear of the Long property and laid tenderly to rest in the woods. Here it remained forgotten until it was recently discovered one day last week. The plow is good for nothing except for junk.

eration in putting the policies of the department into practice throughout the province.

"I believe there is a great future for agriculture in New Brunswick," he said, as he placed the facilities of his department at the service of the farmers of the province.

About 70 delegates and guests were present at the luncheon of the Council today, at which the government members spoke.

The council, composed of 58 delegates, one from each of the herd improvement associations in the province, met for the first business session in the afternoon.

The business of the afternoon session included addresses by the following: H. N. Flewelling, supervisor of the N. B. department of agriculture, who will speak on "Variation of the Butterfat Content in Milk"; Dr. L. A. Donovan, veterinary surgeon of Saint John, whose topic will be "Some Non-contagious Diseases found in Dairy Cattle"; Dr. J. P. Akins, provincial veterinarian on the subject "Some Contagious Diseases found in Dairy Cattle"; Thomas G. Hetherington, director of agriculture extension, N. B. department of agriculture, who will speak on "Farm Planning and Farm Management"; and J. K. King, deputy minister of agriculture for New Brunswick.

Following the addresses there was discussion on technical subjects in relation to the improvement of dairy herds in New Brunswick.

President Earle E. Lister, Harvey Station, occupied the chair. Other officers of the council are: Vice-president, W. H. Huggard, Norton; secretary, H. N. Flewelling; directors, Isidore Melanson, St. Paul; Lloyd Sloat, Keswick; and James Douglas, Petitcodiac.

AMERICAN LAUDS FISHING IN N. B.

Charles Dauchy, Troy, N. Y., wanted to go fishing. So Cliff Davis, key member of the advertising department of the Boston Post and long-time friend of New Brunswick, decided to take him. They went to Rocky Brook, a tributary of the Southwest Miramichi, with Allen and Wade.

Mr. Dauchy caught Atlantic silver salmon and grilse.

Arrangements for the trip had been largely conducted through D. W. Griffiths, director of the New Brunswick Government Bureau of Information and Tourist Travel. After returning home young Dauchy wrote Mr. Griffiths as follows:

"This is just a futile attempt to thank you for what you did to show me one of the finest times I have ever experienced. I have never in my life seen or had the privilege of such fishing as Cliff and I had up there on Rocky Brook and I am only looking forward to the time when I can make another such trip, however far that may be in the future. I am surely obliged to you for starting me off and then for enabling me to prove my story by shipping the fish which arrived here in excellent shape and were greatly enjoyed. Everyone I have told about the trip has made more or less of a resolution to try New Brunswick for himself sometime."

IMPROVING

It was stated today that Audrey Davidson, who has been a patient of Victoria Public Hospital for the past few weeks is improving but will have to remain in the institution for some time yet. She will undergo an operation on Friday morning for the removal of parts of two fingers which were injured when her hand became entangled in an electric meat grinder in a local store.
