Sunday Observance Discussed at Synod By The Archbishop

The Radio and the Automobile Driving People Away From Church

Sunday Losing Its Proper Sanctity

The Divorce Evil Was Also Discussed—Re-marriage of Divorced Persons Forbidden

MONCTON, May 19—In his annual charge to his clergy and laity delivered today before the Diocesan Synod of the Anglican Church assembled here, His Grace Archbishop Richardson dealt among other things with the matter of a lax regard of the marriage vows and the divorce evil and also to the tendency on the part of the people including his own denomination to get away from the proper observance of Sunday. He said that especially during the summer months more and more people were finding the radio an easy substitute for their duty of going to church and more and more people were neglecting the church services and spending the day on the road or in the country. He urged upon the people who have country homes to identify themselves with the churches in the parishes where those country homes are situated. He urged a better regard for the rules of the church in regard to the matter of baptism and marriage.

The Archbishop's address contained many matters of practical and vital interest to the people and contained many points which might be considered by other denominations than his own. He pointed out the duty of the clergy in regard to marriage and to the church law which prevents the remarriage of divorced persons so long as one of the parties to the marriage agreement was still living.

Speaking to the clergy and laity at the synod assembled Archbishop Richardson expressed his appreciation of the courtesy extended to the delegates of the city of Moncton. He referred to the death of two well known and beloved clergymen, Rev. Canon Sisam and Rev. C. F. Wiggins who had passed away in recent months and paid a hearty tribute to these gentlemen and their work for the diocese. The Archbishop also referred to the retirement and the active work of C. W. Nichols who

KING AND QUEEN LUNCHEON GUESTS TODAY

(Special to The Daily Mail) LONDON, May 19—The King and Queen were luncheon guests today at Guild Hall. The host and hostess were the Lord Mayor and Mayoress of London. On account of heavy rain the state drive to the function had to be cancelled. The ancient custom of the Lord Mayor presenting the city sword to the King was also postponed. There were many spectators trying to get a view of the King and Queen who drove in a closed car. Following luncheon the royal guests proceeded to Portsmouth where they will dine on the Royal Victoria and Albert yacht. They will then travel on to Spithead tomorrow where they will attend a naval review, which it is expected will be the grandest naval array ever staged.

Archbishop's Practical Address

IN his annual address to the clergy and laity delivered today at Moncton by His Grace Archbishop Richardson of this city the Archbishop referred to many matters of a practical interest which might well be considered by people of other denominations as well as his own.

The Archbishop spoke plainly in regard to the growing disregard of the proper observance of Sunday. He said that this was the cause of much misgivings. He said that Sunday was losing its proper sanctity as a day of worship and was being transformed into a day of rest and recreation beyond reasonable limits. This tendency he stated was principally manifest in the cities and towns and the Sunday is more disregarded in the summer months. People were inclined to get out in the country and to use the automobile as a vehicle of pleasure. Both the automobile and the radio are factors that are becoming increasingly adverse to the practice of worship. More and more is the habit becoming of the people getting out on the road on the Sabbath day.

Speaking of divorce the Archbishop said that never was it more needful to surround marriage with more sanctions than it is today when the clamor for easy divorce was heard on every side and when too many marriages are little more than temporary contracts to be dissolved at the whim of either party.

In view of the fact that at the present session of the divorce court now being held in this city 22 divorce cases are being heard Archbishop Richardson's remarks in this regard should contain much food for thought.

The Archbishop's remarks in regard to Sunday observance are well worth reading. The Archbishop does not take the extreme, narrow view which is not practical at the present day. His remarks seem most reasonable and should receive the proper consideration of all who would like to see proper observance of the Lord's Day.

CLERGY FAVOR RETIRING MOVE

TORONTO, May 19—A bishop knows his men. Therefore, said Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers last night, it would be the best thing that could happen if the resolution requiring Anglican clergy to resign at the age of 70 years were approved by the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario which convenes in Kingston this week.

Such resignations, under the proposal, would be effective only on acceptance by the Bishop.

"I doubt if it will pass, though," Canon Sawers added. "Age really hasn't anything to do with retirement. Some men are young at 75. Others are old at 50. But the Bishop knows his men, and if the final say rests with him, it will be a good move."

Bishop R. J. Renison commented with a chuckle: "Many of us ought

CANADA TO BE LEADER IN AIR, ELLIOTT SAYS

HAMILTON, May 19—Tracing the development of the postal service as a vital link in the growth of the Dominion, Hon. J. C. Elliott, Postmaster-General of Canada, speaking at the opening of Burlington's new post-office yesterday afternoon, said that the postal authorities had become air-minded and were extending air mail routes not alone to speed delivery, but to encourage young Canadians to fly. Air mail contracts created a demand for pilots and more young men would turn to flying if jobs were offered.

"Canada eventually will be the outstanding country of the world in flying, and no nation has better qualified men to train in aviation than we have in this Dominion," said Mr. Elliott. The air mail had contributed to the development of remote mining areas and now linked up posts once isolated. With gold production increased one hundred million dollars from 1926 to 1936, Canada was really making great progress, he said.

Job Seekers Boost Revenue The Postmaster-General said the general impression was that he had more jobs to offer than any other Cabinet Minister, but such was not the case.

"The letters are wasted, but we appreciate the postage and it all helps to keep the postal revenue buoyant as possible," remarked the speaker in referring to the countless appeals for employment which come to him from all parts of the country. The department was intimately connected with the life of the community, Mr. Elliott said, and he paid tribute to those in the service. Responsibilities were treated with the same sanctity as a good lawyer treated the secrets of his client. It was of prime necessity for employees to be efficient and courteous. Surplus of the department reduced the deficit of the country and the Postoffice was the business of the people.

Sees Deficits Reduced Mr. Elliott said he did not come to discuss politics, but made reference

200 RARE VIOLINS ARE INSURED FOR $2,000,000

Will Celebrate Anniversary of Stradivari's Death

CREMONA, Italy, May 19—More than 200 rare violins covered by insurance exceeding $2,000,000 were displayed here today at opening of an exposition commemorating the 200th anniversary of the death of Antonio Stradivari, master violin-maker.

The exposition will last five months; tourists from many nations were present, and Cremona, Stradivari's birthplace, got its greatest thrill since King Victorio Emanuel's visit 14 years ago.

Among instruments shown was Nicolò Paganini's violin, which the Italian virtuoso bequeathed to the City of Genoa.

OTTAWA, May 19—Plans for reviving the old basic industry of fisheries have been announced in the capital. Rehabilitation of the Maritime Provinces' fishing industry is the objective of a campaign being mapped out by the Dominion government, for which votes totalling $1,000,000 were adopted at the last session of Parliament.

Hon. J. E. Michaud, fisheries minister, and his departmental advisers are at work on a plan designed to re-establish the dried and pickled branches of the industry and to rehabilitate fishermen generally.

Once a rich source of wealth in the Maritimes, the fishing industry has been struck successive blows through tariff action, the economic policies of foreign countries once good customers, use of the beam trawler and the general depression. For three centuries fishing has been a basic industry in the Maritimes, carried on largely by individual effort with each man his own producer, processor and distributor. Now an attempt will be made to co-ordinate and centralize the business of scientific lines, coupled with marketing efforts to which the government will give leadership.

May Benefit This Year Details of the government's new campaign have not yet been made public but the minister indicated preparations were well advanced. Some benefit to the fishermen is expected this year.

Particular efforts will be made to centralize the fresh and semi-fresh or frozen fish distribution so wider and enlarged markets may be found within the Dominion. At the same time the intention is to develop a scientific means of processing the surplus to bring it within the means of foreign countries anxious to buy

BLOSSOMLAND JAMMED BY VISITING MOTORISTS

Traffic Passes Point on No. 8 Highway at Rate of 2,000 Cars an Hour, Heaviest in Eight Years.

GRIMSBY, May 19—Returning prosperity was apparently reflected in the great throng of motorists who visited Blossomland today, and the amount of money left with highway business places.

At its peak, late this afternoon, traffic was passing a given point on No. 8 Highway at the rate of over 2,000 cars an hour. This included both east and westbound cars. On Highway No. 20, a few miles south, there was also an almost endless line-up of cars. A count showed the traffic to be the heaviest through Niagara Peninsula in the past eight years.

The day was marred for many by a series of accidents, the most serious being near Stoney Creek, from where six injured persons were taken to hospital. Many minor bumps held up traffic badly. At one time early this evening, there was a line of westbound cars, almost bumper to bumper, for over six miles, while the eastbound line was jammed for nearly three miles. In Grimsby, there was a continuous line of passing cars
