

MANY CANADIANS ATTEND BALL AT BUCKINGHAM

LONDON, May 15—Most spectacular of the formal coronation functions, a court ball was held at Buckingham Palace tonight attended by Royalty, nobility, and dignitaries from every part of the Empire.

Dancing took place in the gold and white ball room lit by huge crystal chandeliers that shone on men in gold embroidered court dress and women beautifully gowned in shimmering laces and ivory brocades with dazzling jewelled tiaras and necklaces. Guests from the Indian Empire were particularly striking in their oriental costumes.

The Queen was gowned in ivory lace with floral emblems re-embroidered in silver paillettes. She also wore a high diamond tiara and a diamond necklace with several jewelled orders. The King wore the full dress of an admiral.

Members of the Royal Family present were Queen Mary, the Queen of Norway, the Duke and Duchess of Kent, and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

The Canadians present included: Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, and Mrs. Crerar who wore a gown of rose lace with pearls.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, finance minister, and Mrs. Dunning, who chose a gown of brocade silver lame with a tiara of brilliants and pearls.

Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, justice minister, and Mrs. Lapointe who wore white and gold brocade with a diamond tiara, pearls and a blue feather fan.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, defence minister. Lieutenant Governor Murray MacLaren of New Brunswick and Miss Margaret MacLaren who wore a gown of silver lame with a diamond tiara and pearl necklace.

Lieutenant Governor George DeBlois of Prince Edward Island and Mrs. DeBlois who selected an ivory and gold brocade gown with a diamond tiara, pearls and a blue feather fan.

Lieutenant Governor H. A. Bruce of Ontario and Mrs. Bruce who wore white satin with a pearl belt and tiara.

Lieutenant Governor E. L. Patenaude of Quebec and Mrs. Patenaude, who chose silver lame with maple leaves embroidered in pearls on the shoulder and a pearl necklace.

Lieutenant Governor E. W. Hamber of British Columbia and Mrs. Hamber who was gowned in silver lame with a diamond tiara, necklace and earrings and carried a white feather fan.

Another court ball will be held on May 26. Among Canadians invited to be present are Premier A. A. Dunsart of New Brunswick and Mrs. Dunsart.

At Foreign Office Dinner

The King and Queen tonight attended a formal dinner given at the Foreign Office by Foreign Secretary Eden and Mrs. Eden prior to the court ball at Buckingham Palace.

The King presided at one table at the dinner, the Queen at another and Queen Mary at a third. Presiding at other tables were Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Canada, and prime ministers of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent foreign under-secretary.

Prime Minister Baldwin was at Queen Mary's table.

Their Majesties were cheered vociferously as they drove from the Foreign Office to the palace to attend the ball that began at 11 p.m.

BUS STRIKERS CONSIDERING REPORT

LONDON, May 14—London's bus strikers voted today to decide whether the commission of inquiry's provisional report provided a sufficient basis for resumption of work. In garages throughout the city and in the suburbs 25,000 striking busmen cast their ballots. The result was to be made known at a meeting in Transport House tonight.

Bees do not get honey from flowers. They get nectar, which they transform into honey by adding certain enzymes. These convert the complex sugars of the raw nectar into simple sugar, known to chemists as dextrose and levulose.

100,000 Cheer Outside

LONDON, May 15—The brilliant first court ball of the reign of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth was still in progress early today, while great throngs of coronation celebrants kept up a din of cheering outside Buckingham Palace.

Twice after midnight the newly crowned Sovereigns had to leave their 2,000 Royal, titled and distinguished guests in the ballroom and supper rooms of the palace to appear on a balcony in response to continual calls from outside.

Crowds estimated at 100,000 cheered the King and Queen while hundreds of motorists sounded their horns.

The ball disclosed the fox trot is the favorite dance of King George. He danced five times, but avoided all other forms. He opened the program leading Crown Princess Martha of Norway on to the floor, while Queen Elizabeth danced with Crown Prince Olaf of Norway.

The King and Queen danced once together to the strains of a popular air, "Harbor Lights." The Duchess of Kent, the King's sister-in-law, was another of his partners.

While the Sovereigns and their guests of Royal blood were on the dance floor the other guests stood around the ballroom, according to custom. After his five dances, the King retrieved his sword from the Lord Chamberlain and led his Royal guests to the supper room while those of lesser station took the floor.

classes became so large that they were forced to abandon such procedure. Now the gun is fired but once.

Stories Told

When "old grads" return to their Alma Mater each year to attend the closing ceremony, there are many stories retold of students' capers in the days gone by. One old grad, who was a student in the "gay nineties," recounted a story of how he and two daring companions fired a cannon on the barracks grounds here, the roar of which awakened the entire community. According to the story, he and another chap paddled up the river, beaching their canoe on the river bank immediately facing Barracks Square. At that time, the barracks, now used at a warehouse by the New Brunswick Liquor Control Board, was occupied by officers and men of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

A sentry was on duty when the two college men clambered up the river bank. Protected by the darkness, the pair climbed over the fence of the grounds and crept toward one of the cannons. When the sentry's back was turned they rammed a charge into the muzzle-loader and lit the fuse.

The stillness of the night was broken by a terrific roar which reverberated throughout the district. The men in the barracks piled pell-mell out of their beds and rushed to the parade ground. The two culprits made their escape during the excitement and paddled away from the scene.

Another incident concerning the prank of two students in the late 90's. One of them, an official now prominent in provincial executive affairs, decided to add a little more color to the post-encaenia ceremony by burning a barrel of kerosene. With the aid of a companion, they secured a barrel which they believed to be kerosene. The preparations were well under way for the big event when the pair were arrested by the police while "carting" the kerosene to the campus. The kerosene proved to be "gasoline" and the owner was insistent that the guilty parties be made pay for their prank. They were brought into court but were allowed their freedom after being severely reprimanded by the magistrate.

There are numerous other tales of students escapades and each year when the "old grads" revisit the familiar scenes of by-gone days they are told and re-told many times.

Jersey, passed through the city this week en route after a most successful trip to Fred Fairley's camps on the Miramichi. Mr. Ballantine made a solo trip by car from his New Jersey home and with the exception of a spot north of St. Stephen he found the roads in good condition. He said that he found the fishing ideal and was able to hook a salmon or grilse at almost every cast. He had fished, he said, in many of the states of the Union, but never had he experienced such royal sport as fell to his lot at the Fairley camps. Before leaving for home Mr. Ballantine made arrangements for a return trip next spring with Mr. Fairley. "I have fished landlocked salmon in Maine," Mr. Ballantine said to a friend before leaving the city, "but made up my mind—and I have passed the thought along to my friends—that before starting out it is better to plan for an extra day and go to a place where real salmon of the Atlantic breed can be taken."
