unemployment insurance, I wish to repeat that every concrete proposal should be given the most careful study. We may act in haste and repent at leisure. A change that looks good today may appear in quite a different light tomorrow. Once jurisdiction over any particular subject-matter is transferred, we can be fairly sure that this Legislature will never again recover it.

I shall not pursue this matter further; but I do wish to refer to two matters which are connected with some things I have already discussed and give cause for considerable misgiving.

The Privy Council

I refer to the agitation that is on foot to abolish appeals to the Privy Council and the proposals being advanced in some quarters for a change of flag.

The idea of abolishing appeals to the Privy Council is not new. During the past year, however, it has been revived and pushed forward with renewed force.

The present agitation had its origin in the disappointment that developed in certain quarters over the decisions handed down by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the series of constitutional cases from Canada that was before them in November, 1936, and which largely arose out of the Bennett reform legislation to which I referred a moment ago.

No doubt it was natural that the author and promoters of that legislation should suffer in their pride when the major portion of their program crumbled and that they should give some vent to their disappointment. It is noteworthy, however, that an army of college professors have rushed into the fray and have poured forth their wrath against the Board which dealt with those cases.

There are not wanting in this country many who would treat a great constitutional charter with the same degree of sanctity as they would a municipal dog law.

For all practical purposes the judgments of the Privy Council in the cases referred to corresponded closely with the decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada. To be logical, those critics should propose that appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada should be abolished.

The matter in question was recently brought up in the House of Commons at Ottawa. What action may be taken by Parliament we do not know. But in any event there is some consolation for the people of this Province in the knowledge that their old prerogative right to carry their grievances to the foot of the Throne may be impaired by the Federal Parliament, but cannot be completely destroyed.

What I like so little about the whole situation is the fact that certain currents of thought are developing in this country which, if allowed to gain sufficient momentum and force, will ultimately sweep away all ties between Canada and Great Britain.

Our Flag

This brings me to the other matter mentioned, the proposal to change our flag. This too is becoming a perennial question.

I realize that in these troubled days many people are looking through anxious eyes towards Europe and debating what should be done to keep Canada out of the conflict which seems inevitable. In my view we will be involved at some stage whether we wish it or not, and even if we do not send a single Canadian soldier out of Canada.

Let us not forget that we have much that others covet. We possess a territory of great potential wealth capable of supporting a population tenfold our present number.

Does anyone here think that we can avoid all risk by separating from Great Britain? Where would we turn for support? To the United States? If this should become our policy we may be sure that if the aggressor nations of Europe and Asia succeed in their present apparent plans, some day we will become the Spain of the North American continent.

It seems to me that there are two policies which Canada should follow, one a long range, the other a short range policy. Under the former we would proceed without delay to the task of peopling our vast territory in a peaceful manner with a selected citizenry; under the second we would lose no time to provide protection for ourselves, our institutions and our homes the risks that seem bound to come.

Why should we continue longer at the approach of danger to bury our heads in the sand? Why, again, should we refuse to acknowledge that our permanent security is bound up with the fortunes of the other members of the British Commonwealth of Nations? Why, too, should we in these days of Empire anxiety, attempt even to discuss the merits of the flag question? The Union Jack has proved a mighty symbol for us in the past. That it may long continue to float over us should be our fervent wish!

some length. The only hope of satisfactory control seems to be in parasites, he said. Since 1931, nearly 70,000 parasites have been liberated. The assistance of the N. B. Department of Lands and Mines will probably result in the release of 40,000,000 in New Brunswick in the present year. Results so far have been satisfactory, he said, but the operation takes time.

Other speakers were Dr. A. B. Baird, superintendent of the parasite laboratory at Belleville, Ont.; L. S. Webb, Campbellton, representative of of the Opposition especially in regard to the matter of the strike situation on the Miramichi and at Minto and charged that he was practically instrumental in stirring up agitation which led to the strikes. The Leader of the Opposition appeared in the disturbed industrial areas at a critical stage in the situation. It seems this was done in order to embarrass the Government and to bring into disrepute the machinery that had been set up under our laws and he openly lent his efforts to encourage the strike. Mr. McNair reviewed at length the record of the Baxter-Richards-Tilley Administration which was hurled from power by the people in 1935 and which had through the years of their regime the active support of the present leader of the Opposition, Hon. Mr. Squires. Hon. Mr. McNair's speech will be found in full in this issue of The Daily Mail and it contains many items of interest and of interest to the general public.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

It favored reorganization of old age pensions on a contributory, all-in basis, to be uniform throughout Canada, and advocated provincial administration.

Premier Pattullo suggested per capita grants by the Dominion should be adjusted for all the provinces every five years.

For debt control and reduction, he said his government held a general refunding scheme would be advisable.

Basis of Adjustment

The question of determining the basis of financial adjustment, whether according to population or fiscal need was "one of the major questions for the determination of this commission."

No one or two factors were sufficient. All had to be correlated including the incidence of tariff and freight rates, and income tax.

Premier Pattullo did not think annual Dominion-provincial conferences were necessary, as suggested by Premier Angus Macdonald of Nova Scotia, but "if other provinces prefer to have it, we have no objection."

A measure of economy could be effected by joint arrangement with Dominion and provincial authorities in connection with income tax returns but the bases of Dominion and provincial taxation "as at present are of such different character that collection by one authority would not be possible." If, subsequently, both taxes were levied on the same basis, he saw no reason why they should not be collected by one agency.

"We believe the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and province should remain as at present," he said regarding insurance.

LABOR LEGISLATION

be referred to the Board of Arbitration. If there be any agreement between employers and employees regarding the settling by arbitration of disputes the terms of such agreement shall prevail. Nothing in the act will prevent the suspension or discontinuance of any industry under circumstances which do not constitute a walk out or a strike. Any employer who contributes to a lock out shall be liable to one hundred dollars' fine, and any employee who goes on strike contrary to the provisions of the Act will be liable to twenty dollars' fine and any one who continues such lock out or strike or aids it shall be liable to from five hundred to one thousand dollars' fine or to from three to six months in prison.

The bill introduced by Mr. McNair yesterday provides for forward movement in regard to labor legislation in this province and is one which seems to be absolutely fair both as regards the employer and the employee. In the words of Hon. Mr. McNair who introduced the bill, "It is based upon principles of co-operation and conciliation and contemplates the application of that degree of regulation needed to insure fair dealings between the partners in industry." It will not, as Mr. McNair suggested yesterday, be the final word is labor legislation, but it is a distinct advance and is founded upon sound principles. This legislation will stabilize industrial conditions in this province and give to employers and employees alike the sense of security which is essential if this province is to become the strong factor in the development of our Dominion that we would hope. The proposed legislation is based upon principles of co-operation and conciliation and it shows that the present Government is anxious to play the game fairly and squarely for the protection of both employer and employee.

Natural Healing Arts

Save Your Feet and You Save Your Head

Abused feet cause brain fog in addition to fatigued and hurting muscles and joints. Following a morning's shopping or the routine duties of the day, standing or walking on weakened or cramped feet not only the aching muscles complain, the brain too, is tired. Constructive mental work becomes a forced task and even one's capacity for enjoyment or recreation is impaired. IT IS HAZARDOUS TO IGNORE THE CAUSES CONTRIBUTING TO THE DEFORMITY.

REMEMBER rigid props worn under the inner arch are apt to intensify the distress caused by the body weight pressing the loosely held arch bones down into the muscles, arteries, nerves, resulting in general irritability, rheumatism, arthritis, headaches, backaches, gastro-intestinal disorder and so on.

Painless, natural foot corrective adjustments is most effective in correcting all conditions whether contributory to, or resulting from misalignment of the arch structure.
