its frightfulness. Down the line went their Reverend Captain A. L. Skerry, of New Ross, Nova Scotia, to comfort them. "We may stand now on the threshold of eternity. Therefore let us hold what may be our last communion. Let all who will join with us in this service."

Then the silver chalice, which once served a parish in Stanley, near Fredericton, N.B., was passed from man to man, many of them young boys. The little religious ceremony stayed panic and while the cup was being passed, the surgeon was showing the men how to tie wet handkerchiefs across their faces. The gas, happily, was of a type effectively filtered by the wet cloth, and no serious damage ensued.

Reverend Captain Skerry taught English at the University of Indiana, and still later organized several states in the American Legion drive for endowment funds. He died three years ago from the effect of gas suffered in another attack on the front. The chalice came to his sister, Mrs. W. B. Robertson, who for safe-keeping placed it in the little museum of her husband, a doctor here. (Capt. the Rev. A. L. Skerry will be remembered as a former popular rector of Stanley parish).

time to advertise to the world any cleavage in the British Empire.

One of the T. L. Church (Cons., Toronto-Broadview), suggested the people of Canada vote on the question of a new flag. For himself, he believed the Union Jack was good enough and should not be changed.

Mr. Church talked until the 11 o'clock adjournment hour, making it impossible to take a vote on the motion. It will be considered on another private members' day.

resignation in the morning. That would be an apology from both Mr. Fair and Mr. Johnston. Or, if not an actual apology, at least an understanding that the Whip's authority should not again be violated.

Mr. Mitchell has been placed in the embarrassing position of having the remainder of the House doubt his authority as Whip, and doubt that he enjoys the confidence of his Social Credit followers.

TO ATTEND FUNERAL

H. E. D. Golding, Moncton, is in Fredericton to attend the funeral this afternoon of the late Major F. H. Rowe.

Social Happenings

Golden Rule Circle Meeting

The Golden Rule Circle of the King's Daughters held their monthly meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. R. B. VanDine with the president Mrs. E. King in the chair. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Ernest Bell. Committees were named for the year's work and reports read from the delegates attending the 19th biennial convention held in this city in January. A social time was much enjoyed when Miss Hicks gave two readings and Mrs. John Webster sang a solo. A large basket of provisions was donated to a needy family and the meeting closed with the prayer of the Order.

Guests of Son

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Chase, Fredericton, were guests of their son, J. Royden Chase, and Mrs. Chase, 239 Germain Street, Saint John, over the week-end and returned home last evening.

Supper Bridge

Last evening Mrs. K. R. McAdam entertained charmingly at a four-table supper bridge at her home on King Street. The floral decorations were in keeping with the festive season and the prize winners were Mrs. W. J. Lawson, Mrs. K. M. Cameron and Mrs. John Parker. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Earl Smith and Mrs. A. McF. Limerick.

On Mediterranean Cruise

Miss Hazen Allen left on Saturday for Montreal where she spent the week-end with her cousin Mrs. Hugh MacKay. Miss Allen last evening left for New York from where she sails today on a six weeks Mediterranean cruise.

Celestial Temple Pythian Sisters

Celestial Temple No. 19 of the Pythian Sisters held their regular meeting last evening at Castle Hall with Mrs. Frank VanStone, President in the chair. There was a good attendance of members present and many items of interest in connection with the work of the Temple were discussed. The charter was draped in memory of the late Mrs. Augustus Fowler a member of the order who has passed to the Temple beyond. During the draping Miss Vera Jonah sang "When the World Forgets," Mrs. Walter Howell was presented a Past Chief's pin, the presentation being made by Mrs. Gordon Todd with an appropriate address. Mrs. Howell in a feeding manner thanked the Temple for their gift and Mrs. Todd for her kind words. The mystery box donated by the presiding officer was won by Mrs. Lloyd Tait. The social hour was curtailed on account of the passing of Mrs. Fowler.

Birthday Party

On Saturday evening Master John Lounsbury, son of Col. and Mrs. E. J. Lounsbury entertained a number of his young friends at a skating party, the occasion being his tenth birthday. Later in the evening refreshments were served at the home of the young host who received a number of lovely gifts.

On Looking for a Job

A touch of rouge upon the lips, The eyebrows drawn out fine, And raise the chin a trifle. It gives a youthful line.

Are you tired? Don't let it show, Smile and be vivacious, You can be really charming, Dignified and gracious.

Tip your hat a trifle more.

It hides the streak that's gray And makes your eyes look brighter. It looks more young that way.

Just act your part. You'll get the job. You're all it needs, and more.

You'd really pass for twenty-seven Instead of thirty-four.

tion of the sentences imposed upon the two Social Credit men who were convicted in the courts of Alberta, and whose appeal from conviction was dismissed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the Province.

In his wire to Prime Minister King he asked if the Federal Cabinet had refused consideration of his appeal. Mr. King replied that Mr. Lapointe's colleagues were in full accord with the decision of the Justice Minister. Mr. Lapointe's reply, declared Mr. King, had not precluded the consideration of clemency, and Mr. King added:

"The usual investigation which is absolute necessary in all such instances will be conducted by the remission service of the Department of Justice with all possible expedition in order that a decision may be reached with the least possible delay."

WALKING PLASTER

ies, which so often resulted in days gone by.

Any day in the Out-Patients' Department of the Toronto General Hospital, you will see three or four people with fractured ankles walking about. Yesterday, two women were noticed going about quite comfortably without so much as a trace of a limp, and without resort to canes or crutches or other exterior aid. One had suffered a fracture of the ankle joint. The other a fracture of the tibia. Both were wearing walking plasters.

The walking plaster, devised for the treatment of Pott's fracture, a doctor explained, is the most important advancement in the treatment of fractures made in our generation. It enables the patient to walk within a week of the time he has sustained the broken ankle, and unless his occupation requires long periods of standing, to return to work. Previously, he stayed in bed for something like eight weeks or resorted to the use of crutches to get about.

The fracture dislocation of the ankle, which is known in medical terminology as 'Pott's fracture,' is so called because of the fracture of an ankle sustained by a man by the name of Percival Potts way back in 1756. He got a sort of precedent by refusing to allow any one to touch the ankle until surgeons would arrive. However, it was not until very many years later that an Austrian, struggling with the cost of treating traumatic injuries, devised the walking plaster.

A further leading advancement in the treatment of fractures was in connection with broken hip joints, the doctors pointed out. Up in one of the wards there was a woman of 84 who had fractured the neck of the femur, as old people frequently do. A few years ago she would probably

SEA TO SEA B'DCAST THIS EVENING AT ELEVEN O'CLOCK

(Special to The Daily Mail)

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 15—In tonight's sea-to-sea broadcast over the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation commencing at 11 o'clock AST, the Greater Antilles will be linked with the Antipodes, when Captain H. S. Hilton of the Canadian National Steamships, West Indies Lines, Lady Rodney, now at this port carries on an interview with Chief Officer Herbert on the bridge of the Canadian-Australian liner Aorangi in Vancouver.

Capt. Hilton was formerly Marine Superintendent for his company at Vancouver and who represented the company, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine in Australia and New Zealand. On one occasion he was a passenger on the Aorangi from Australia to Vancouver. Capt. Hilton will compare his voyage with the Lady Rodney to Bermuda, the Bahamas and Jamaica with the Canada-Australia-New Zealand run, and the interesting contrast of each.

have been placed in a plaster cast extending from the arm pits to the tip of her toes. If she had survived, she would have stayed in the cast for a dozen weeks. The chances would have been six to twelve that the fracture would have mended, and in any case she would have been left with stiff, weak knees.

But now she will walk soon and in the meantime is able to roll the leg affected and to lift it from the bed. The broken fragments were 'nailed' together, and as a result have united.
