

OBSERVER RETURNS TO THE JOB AND MAKES SOME MORE COMMENTS

A Rat-Proof Hospital; Y. M. C. A.; The Art Club, and Sandwiches

Observer whose interesting articles with a punch formed a readable feature of this paper, has returned home and wants old column back. We have given it to him provided that he will not say anything that will get us landed in jail as we do not like the bread and water menu of that institution.

After a long rest, and with the approach of Spring, Observer feels that he might summon enough vitality to resume his articles in The Daily Mail. As it seems that ye editor wants comments on local affairs, Observer will try to oblige.

Editor will be the editor's blue pencil. Taking a survey of events of local interest at the present time, one or two things seem of special interest. There is the Hospital Bill, which bids fair to become contentious. It is surely a strange method that the hospital authorities have taken to advance their cause. Here is a project, which, if carried out will call for considerable extra expenditure on the part of municipal authorities.

It is claimed by the hospital authorities that their action in placing the bill before the legislature is only to enable the machinery to be established whereby the municipalities may take advantage of the scheme if they wish. This sounds like a brand of particularly high class baloney.

The local Y.M.C.A. is to be congratulated upon obtaining such a high percentage of the total set. This organization does work of inestimable value to any community. It deserves the support of all citizens who wish to see young people brought under the influence of properly supervised sports and activities.

The past winter has been an active one. Besides the bridge parties and the Art Club there have also been many worthwhile activities. The advent of the spring season will put a slight crimp in the bridge parties, but whether it will affect the Art Club is uncertain.

Strictly on the Q.T., here's hoping that if an addition to the hospital is built it will be rat-proof.

Coolidge, Winnipeg took place last evening at eight o'clock in the Canadian Memorial Chapel, Vancouver, Rev. G. Harrison Vile officiating, assisted by Rev. Francis H. Stevens, brother of the bride. The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white matalasse crepe, on princess lines, having a short bolero jacket with wide lapels and long tapering sleeves, and a train. Mrs. Stevens, the bride's mother, was in a gown of black velvet, and her corsage bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses. A reception was held at the home of the brides' parents, where spring flowers were used to decorate. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge left later on a motor trip to the South.

FINANCIAL

The different services introduced into the province have each added work and other duties such as the care of the estates of the inmates of the lunatic asylum have been added to the charge of the Comptroller General and take up a great deal of his time. E. J. Cormier, the present Comptroller General is busily engaged as Comptroller General of the province. The duties of the financial expert from Montreal are to reorganize the department. His services are worth many times his salary to the province. The Opposition in criticizing this was continuing in their policy of wanting to tear down the credit of the province and to detract from any favorable impression on the public, which might accrue as the result of the progress of the present Administration.

The members of the Opposition were given a special invitation to walk into any of the provincial departments at any time that they wished any information. If they did so they would find that all details were available and they would also find that all officials were busily engaged with their various duties.

CANADA

also the doctrine that when the League of Nations decreed sanctions Canada should automatically act. Public opinion would decide future issues as they arose. Governments might proclaim policies and dogmas, but the ultimate issues would be decided by the will of the people. Plans had been worked out for the defence of the two coasts against the type of aggression experts believe most likely. On neither coast was any major invasion to be anticipated. On the east, the British fleet in the North Atlantic was a protection against a large attack by a European power. On the west friendly fleets were a similar buffer against the trans-Pacific movement of a large force.

Sporadic raids by combined land, sea and air forces, for the purpose of destroying some strategic object or establishing an advance for other operations, however, might be anticipated. So also there might be hit and run attacks on ports and shipping by fast cruisers and submarines. Against this type of warfare the department was directing its most serious thought, he said. Combating it required naval and air forces capable of locating and destroying any hostile craft which might near Canadian shores.

Mr. McNair in his speech Wednesday struck out at those who would remove the charter of New Brunswick from the custody of Westminster. Mr. Foster, in his statement today, made plain his stand that the charter should be taken from Westminster, and that the provinces and Dominion, acting through the Dominion, should have power to amend the British North America Act. His declaration brought no comment from the government benches. He stated:

"I desire to clarify a record of the proceedings of the House on a certain matter which must have occurred due to a misunderstanding. It is sometimes difficult to hear in this corner of the House and at the time I did not catch just what was said. The day before yesterday, on March 23 to be exact, in the course of his remarks the honorable the attorney-general made the following statement in relation to the 1935 Dominion-provincial conference—I quote from the press report as follows: 'At the 1935 session of this Legislature all members of this House, including our friends opposite, approved of the course we had taken.'"

Mr. Foster continued: "I desire to say, Mr. Speaker, that I was not present in the House when the vote on the matter in question was taken, and accordingly it cannot be said that I approved of the course of action taken. During the session of 1937, I expressed myself quite clearly on the point, my remarks being fully reported on page 80, column 1, of the Synoptic Report 1937. I simply desire to have the matter straight on the records."

Natural Healing Arts Is Chiropractic Good For Children?

The children of today will be the men and women of tomorrow, and the start we give them will determine their future success or failure. Let us not underestimate our duty to our children and their future. Well being is no less dependent upon good healthy bodies than upon education and finances. In fact, a healthy body is everyone's greatest asset. Good health is the foundation upon which success and happiness are built.

Many are the little fellows whose first inheritance is a life time of suffering, all of which could easily be avoided if the parents would have a good Chiropractor straighten their little spines. Do not make the mistake of depending upon your examination of the spine. Remember that the little bones are so small that only the hands of a skilled Chiropractor can detect the misalignments, if your baby suffers with colic, constipation, vomiting, sleeplessness, or if it fails to grow or cries unduly, you can be sure that there is something wrong which should be corrected without delay. The normal baby is of little or no trouble to its mother.
