

N. B. RINKS AGAIN TOP SCOTTISH CURLERS

TAKE 4 OF YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S 5 FRIENDLY MATCHES FROM SCOTS, PLAYING AT SAINT JOHN CURLING RINK

Archie Howie Skips Only Winning Rink For Visitors in Last Day of Matches for Possession of Famed Strathcona Curling Trophy

SAINT JOHN, Jan. 8.—New Brunswick rinks ushered out the touring Scottish curlers with a decisive triumph as they downed the broom wielders from the land of the heather in four of five friendly matches at St. Andrew's curling rink yesterday afternoon. Archie Howie skipped the only winning rink for the Scots as he took the measure of a picked rink piloted by G. G. Murdock, 12-8. Skips McGlashen, Findley, Dykes and MacKay made their exit with losses to rinks from Bathurst, St. Stephen and Carleton.

Trailing at the seventh end Howie bettered his morning performance, a 12-all draw with Moncton, by running up eight points in the next four ends. A 12th end rally by the Murdock skipped rink was cut off at a single shot to give Archie the lone win in closing matches.

A pair of three and a two-end in the last four heads provided the winning edge for a Bathurst rink, skippered by J. E. Connolly, after the former provincial president had given the McGlashen rink a 9-4 lead in the opening ends. The North Shore quartet held the Scots to a lone shot in the 12th to make the match 12-10.

The Carleton rink headed by G. W. J. Scott came through with five successive singleton ends in the closing heads to nose out Hugh MacKay 12-10 in another tough battle. Scotland jumped into a lead with a two and four in the first and third ends and tallied three more in the sixth and seventh. The homesters took over the leadership for a brief spell with a four end in the second and evened the count in the sixth.

Taking a commanding margin with five shots in the first two ends and shutting out Skip Dykes in all but three heads W. B. Buchanan skipped the St. Stephen rink to a one-sided 14-4 win. E. P. MacKay gave Bathurst a double triumph as he led his rink to an 11-8 victory over W. Findley, skipping for the first time on local ice. Findley, regular second man on the Grieron rink, replaced the latter who had dropped his last two matches to provincial rinks.

FARR'S SHOWING AGAINST BRADDOCK WILL DETERMINE RANK IN BOXING

Tommy Anxious to Get Another Shot At Louis' Crown; Confidently Predicts Can K.O. Schmeling Quicker Than Brown Bomber Can; Only Drawback Is Lack of Knockout Punch

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Tommy Farr, the Tonypandy Terror who was good enough to stick it out for 15 rounds with Joe Louis, now training in this country, is determined not to return to his native Wales until he is the undisputed heavyweight champion of the world. Farr reported on his arrival here that he was only four pounds over the mark he made for Joe Louis when they met in the ball park here a few months ago.

TOMMY FARR

The Briton is matched to fight Jim Braddock, the man from whom Louis took the title. Jim and Tommy meet in Madison Square Garden next month and Farr's deportment in that engagement will be observed with great interest. It may be the key to the future ownership of the heavyweight title.

There is no question about the merit of Tommy's performance when he fought Louis. There were times in that fight when Farr looked like a winner. Were it not for bad cuts under both eyes, long horizontal slits incurred by Joe's rasping left hooks, he might have done better in the eyes of the judges and the referee.

Lacks Knockout Punch
The one disadvantage suffered by Farr, and it will ever be if and when he meets Louis again, is his lack of a convincing punch. He simply can't match wallops with him.

For one thing—and strange it is to hear him boast about it, Farr positively is sure that he can thrash Max Schmeling. It has become an obsession with him. They were matched, you know, before Tommy got his crack at Joe in New York.

Schmeling, seeking to break up a plan to bring Louis to London to fight Farr, sought a match with the Wales miner and actually they were signed. Max wanted to beat Louis to Farr. General Critchley, the London promoter, also on a little joust to double-cross his American partner, Mike Jacobs, signed the men. Jacobs beat all of them to it by sending his barrister, Sol Strauss, to London to dicker with Farr.

Mike Wins Decision
"Uncle Mike" triumphed when Sol Strauss slipped Farr out of England and onto a French liner, landing the Briton in New York with no strings on him for the moment, at least.

Schmeling often in the game of "smarting," outsmarted himself. He was left holding the bag just as he had held it in the Louis and Braddock episode.

After Louis had won the decision from Farr there was no good reason for further keeping Schmeling out of the picture. He was matched to fight Louis in June and he went back to Germany in a happy frame of mind, determined that he would return to America and again knock out the Brown Bomber. In that Max has a leg up on the title so far as Farr is concerned.

Farr, like Schmeling in the first instance, wants to do a little idol smashing on his own hook. He is begging Mike Jacobs to give him the chance to eliminate Louis before the German gets his whirl at Louis. Of course, that could scarcely be done unless Schmeling agreed to take on Farr in the third and last warm-up bout for Louis.

Max knocked out the tough Harry Thomas as a warm-up start-off. He is now in Germany training for his return bout with Walter Neusel in Hamburg, which will be tune-up man No. 2.

Farr Wants Revenge
Nobody knows much about Schmeling's feelings in the matter. As soon as sports writers climbed up the ladder from the revenue cutter to the big gangway in the side of the S.S. Normandie, at quarantine, they were met by Farr. Almost his first words were:

"I want to fight Max Schmeling. I'm burned up at him. I'll teach him manners. When someone asked him what he thought of me, Max replied: 'Chust two hundred und eight pounds.' 'I'll get Schmeling for that. I'll knock him out quicker than Louis ever will do it. Pl-eeze, Uncle Mike, get me that match, will you mon?' pleaded Farr.

APOSTOLI-STEELE SCRAP AT GARDEN LAST NIGHT STOPPED IN MIDDLE OF NINTH; LATTER ALMOST OUT ON FEET

Fans Pay Tribute to Memory of Late Eddie Neill, Spanish War Correspondent, in Impressive Ceremony; Apostoli Has Little Difficulty

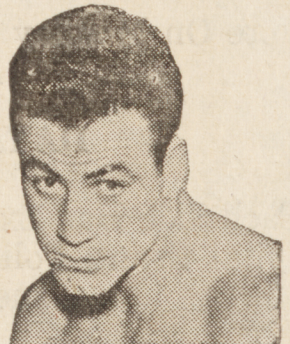

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Lights were dimmed tonight in Madison Square Garden, while a fight crowd of 11,000 spectators stood silently and a spotlight shone on a laurel wreath, decorating the ringside press seat occupied for years by Edward J. Neill Jr., war correspondent and sports writer who died at the 'ringside' of the Spanish civil war.

The crowd of nearly 8,000 fans was treated to one of the most savage battles Garden customers have looked at in years. Leather was flung from all directions.

It was fairly even until the seventh round turning point. Apostoli dug in with a rushing attack to the head and body and had the champion virtually out on his feet late in the seventh and again in the eighth. At the end of this round, Steele was so groggy he attempted to go to Apostoli's corner.

In the ninth it became clear that it attendance at 40,000,000. Now multiply that figure by the cost of tickets, transportation, incidentals, etc., and you will begin to get a hazy idea of what staggering sums we lay out to gratify our love of sports.

Some 10,000,000 saw major league baseball games last summer, to say nothing of those who laid it on the line for minor league games.

Many Other Sports
Now multiply—but wait—we forgot about polo, tennis, hockey, golf, and everything from all from archery to track and field, horse racing, bike racing, bowling, yacht racing (ah, there's a honey for getting rid of money), tennis, basketball, auto racing and whatnot.

Phew, it gives you a headache to try to imagine the sums spent on these sports without taking into account the many millions spent on huge stadia and tracks, the cost of equipment, travel, coaches, training, etc., etc.

was only a matter of time Twice before Donovan stepped between them and waved Steele to his corner, the San Franciscan backed the helpless champion into the ropes as he fired away with rights. Steele was credited with four rounds and Apostoli with five, including the unfinished ninth. Steele was badly whipped and virtually out on his feet when Donovan called a halt, 54 seconds, after the start of the ninth round.

Game Postponed Last Night; Local Team Bogged In Slush

The Fredericton Capitals-St. Croix Maple Leafs puck fray scheduled for the border town last night was unavoidably postponed when the heavy bus carrying the local squad bogged down in the rain softened ice the other side of Harvey.

The vehicle finally came to a full stop at about 5.30 yesterday afternoon as the slush nearly reached the hub caps of the wheels. The 16 occupants pushed for an hour in the driving rain before getting the bus back on the road to this city. Ten non-scheduled stops were made, the team arriving back shortly before eight.

The game, a regular Southern N.B. Hockey League fixture will be played at the border tonight. The same lineup will be used tonight, said Coach Bill Gill, unless some of the players suffer serious consequences from the drenching they received.

TORONTO SKATERS FACE BUSY WEEK

Toughest Contest vs. Rangers On Lat- ters' Home Ice

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—Conny Smythe's divisional leaders, the Maple Leafs of Toronto, at full strength again and going in top form have a nice chance to click for three games this week.

Charlie Conacher's return to form following his shoulder injury has spurred his team-mates on to their best brand of hockey and there's no getting away from the fact that they're a classy lot of puck-chasers when they're clicking.

Their toughest game of the three-game schedule will likely be in New York on Sunday night when they take on Lester Patrick's Rangers for a return tilt following the Saturday night engagement in Toronto. There's little to choose between these two teams of youngsters. Naturally the home team will be favorites, but the hockey choices have been knocked off with almost methodical regularity lately, and this is one game where the Leafs may upset the dope. At that it may be an even money wager at Madison Square Gardens.

Tonight the team will entertain the visiting Black Hawks from Chicago. While the Stewart-coached six from the Windy City is always dangerous, the have been overshadowed this year by the Toronto club, and the cold dope says they'll be on the short end of the score tonight.

Canadiens Busy
Canadiens of Montreal have a three game schedule and will be hard pressed to keep pace with the Leafs, who are leading them in the divisional race.

Sunday night they'll be at Detroit. Jack Adams has his Motor City hockeyists out of the doldrums and at their present clip they figure to take the Habitants on home ice. Tuesday night they are home for a game with their intra-city rivals, the Maroons. Maybe they'll win and maybe they won't. Maroons won't lose all of their home games, and this is one that they'll likely cop. The Flying Frenchmen remain at home, and on Thursday will entertain the Chicago Black Hawks. They should win this one.

The complete schedule for the week, with selections in large type as follows:

Sunday, Jan. 9—Montreal at CHICAGO. Canadiens at DETROIT. TORONTO at RANGERS.

Tuesday, Jan. 11—Canadiens at MONTREAL. Chicago at AMERICAN. Detroit at BOSTON.

Thursday, Jan. 13—Montreal at TORONTO. Chicago at CANADIENS. Detroit at RANGERS.

Saturday, Jan. 15—DETROIT at Montreal. Chicago at TORONTO.
