

From Away Back

The Daily Mail is publishing this series of articles in story form, giving a picture of rural life in New Brunswick. The articles are from the pen of a very bright woman, who lives on a farm in York County. They contain much that is worth consideration.

(No. 11)

Mary, as usual when in the house, answered the telephone. This must be a special call. Her usually calm voice suddenly became charged with excitement. "Certainly, Betty, I would love it. If Mom raises any decided objection I'll call you back within ten minutes. It would be scads of fun. Surely—Bye-bye."

An excited Mary now faced me. "Well, young lady," I enquired, "just what is this that Mom may object to?" "Oh, Mom, you couldn't be heartless enough to object."

"Perhaps not, then again perhaps yes. What is it all about anyway?" "Betty is having a party Friday night and one of the boys in her set wants to come out for me. His name is Jerry McDonald. I met him the last time I visited Betty. Betty invited me to stay over the week end and Jerry will bring me home Sunday. You know Monday is my birthday and Betty told me she is getting me a party dress and slippers for a birthday gift. It's O. K. isn't it, Mom? Please hurry and say yes. Jerry is waiting at Betty's for a reply. If you have objections I must call within ten minutes."

"It seems that you have matters fixed so that I haven't time to consider carefully. I am going to take a chance on your ability to take care of yourself. You know as well as I do the irresponsible group of young people Betty favors. At the same time I appreciate Betty's many good qualities. There is just one point I want to emphasize. Learn to look beneath the surface veneer and polish. If you find character and good principle—well and good. If not—shun intimacy. That's all. Go and have a good time."

"Mom, you are so funny with all your serious ideas. Don't worry, I'll be good. Honest, I will."

Smiling mischievously she disappeared up the stairway to make preparations for her first real party. Girls in our little world know nothing about debuts and all attendant formalities. As soon as a girl can obtain parental permission she accepts party invitations. Too well I knew the sophisticated atmosphere of Betty's home and the glamour of her parties. Would Mary retain a proper sense of values? Time would tell.

he was ordained to the holy order of priesthood in 1901.

The brilliant student completed a six-year course at Rome and at the Sorbonne in Paris in four years before coming back to Canada to be pastor of Bathurst in 1907. Meanwhile he had travelled extensively in Europe and the Holy Land.

He was consecrated Bishop of Charlottetown in 1913, where he rebuilt the cathedral and bishop's residence, destroyed by fire before his consecration, and developed St. Dunstan's College into a university and extended the work of the Church before Pope Benedict XV in 1920 appointed him Archbishop of the Ecclesiastical Province of Edmonton.

When he celebrated his silver jubilee in the priesthood in 1926 he was made an assistant at the pontifical throne with the title of Count of the Apostolic Palace. Death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital at 9.45 p.m., Saturday, from a heart attack.

Rest in Honolulu

The archbishop returned three weeks ago from Honolulu where he had gone for a rest, and since then had been taking further rest in St. Joseph's for a heart condition. Yesterday he went driving and after dinner visited friends in the hospital.

His body lay in state at the hospital today until 1 p.m. Mass, attended by the Sisters of St. Ann, was sung by Bishop J. C. Cody of Victoria.

The body was escorted by priests and nursing sisters to the afternoon boat leaving for Vancouver. From there it will be entrained for Edmonton where the funeral will be held Friday.

The body was escorted from Victoria by Rev. Andrew Macdonnell of Edmonton and he will be joined at Vancouver by Archbishop W. M. Duke of that diocese. Most Rev. J. H. MacDonald, co-adjutor bishop of Edmonton, will meet the body at Jasper tomorrow.

A brother, Louis, who also became bishop of Charlottetown, died in 1930. Another brother, Richard, a lumber merchant at Richibucto, N. B., died in 1932. Their parents were Henry and Mary O'Leary.

Archbishop O'Leary is survived by one brother, Fred O'Leary of Campbellton, N. B.; one half-brother Arthur O'Leary of Richibucto and several nephews, nieces and cousins.

The nephews are Fred O'Leary, jr., of Campbellton, Harry and Laurence of Richibucto, Ralph G. McInerney and Judge H. O. McInerney of Saint John. The nieces are: Mrs. Harold Groom, Montreal; Mrs. Sam Gregory, Richibucto; Mrs. Herbert O'Neill, Moncton; Mrs. J. O'Brien, St. Stephen and the Misses Elise, Kathleen and Eleanor O'Leary, Richibucto, John McDonald, jr. and W. P. McDonald, sr., Saint John are cousins and their children, Rev. Dr. Roy M. McDonald, Rexton, N. B., Dr. W. O. McDonald, Mrs. Bruce Holder and Miss Marion Mc-

Miss Gertrude Chapman was hostess at a delightful tea on Saturday afternoon at her apartment at 658 Queen Street. The guests were the girls of the staff of the Department of Lands and Mines. Miss Helen Macredie presided over the tea cups and the hostess was assisted by Miss Vina Targett and Miss Patricia Costigan.

Friends will regret to hear that Mrs. S. L. Morrison had the misfortune to fall on the icy sidewalk about two weeks ago breaking her wrist. Mrs. Morrison is still suffering some pain.

Judges Named for Essay Contest for C.W.P.C.

Mrs. Elizabeth Munro and Miss Alice R. Fairweather were named judges of the annual prizes essay contest for girls in the province under 21 conducted by the New Brunswick branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club, Saturday night in Saint John. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. H. C. L. Sweet, branch secretary, who presided.

Several entries were recorded for this contest on "If you were given $1,000 to be spent within the next 12 months, how would you spend it?" Entries are being sent to Mrs. Sweet at 51 Dock Street and will close on March 21. They must not be more than 500 words in length.

Plans for the annual meeting, to be held April 30 at the home of Mrs. B. B. McCafferty, were discussed. A resolution was passed, though not unanimously, "vigorously" protesting the Quebec padlock law. Other discussion dealt with the memorial award contest for press clippings of women authors in Canada, with prizes of $25 and a gold medal on the most outstanding and distinctive press publication for the 12 months ending March 1, 1938. Each member discussed a recent book. Miss Beryl Mullin was welcomed as a new member. At the close of the evening refreshments were served.

Sir James was born June 30, 1878, at Myrtle, Ont., of Irish parentage. He is survived by his widow, three sons and three daughters. His first wife, Nell Louise Ross, died in 1922.

Brig.-General J. H. MacBrien's 12th Brigade played a leading part in the heavy fighting that began the great attack on Cambrai, Sept. 27, 1918. Progress of the battle was marked by the stubborn qualities of the Canadians in holding consolidated ground, and the five-day struggle before Cambrai was won produced the hardest continuous fighting in which Canadian Corps had ever engaged.

Of the desperate fighting and the part played by the 12th Brigade's commanding officer, the history of those operations, "Canada's Hundred Days" records.

At a critical point in the day's fighting Brig.-General J. H. MacBrien made a personal reconnaissance on horseback during the course of which he was slightly wounded in the leg, but carried on until he had obtained the information required to continue the attack.

"Every battalion of the 12th Brigade was engaged during this day of exceeding stiff fighting, the 78th Battalion, of Winnipeg, coming up in support and equally distinguished itself in beating off the overwhelming forces launched by the enemy in his efforts to prevent our securing footing on the plateau. This battalion pushed far out on the plateau and for a time was almost cut off. Most of its officers were casualties and Brig.-General MacBrien sent up two of his intelligence officers in support.

U. S. EXPERT

Cost Too High

If deposit money in banks was made available to small loan companies, to loan to the public, there might be a reduction in cost to the borrower. But even if the companies obtained their capital for nothing, they could not loan money in small personal loans as cheaply as banks were lending money. The cost of making and collecting loans was too high.

The lowest operating rate in the States which had adopted uniform regulations was 2 1-2 per cent, he said.

CITY CHURCHES LARGELY ATTENDED YESTERDAY

Services Appropriate to Lenten Season Took Place; Interesting Sermons

The city churches were well attended yesterday, and many interesting sermons were heard by the various congregations. The first Sunday in Lent was celebrated in the churches with fitting services. Lieutenant-Governor MacLaren and Miss MacLaren attended services at St. Andrew's Church. Dr. J. W. Bartlett, conducting the evening service at Wilmot United Church, spoke on "Another Martin Luther" telling the story of Martin Niemoller, the German U-boat daredevil, who is now a prisoner in a concentration camp as a result of defying the Hitler regime.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated at St. Paul's United church in the morning. Rev. George Telford, who preached morning and evening, spoke in the evening on "When silence is not golden," maintaining that the world needs a strong and clear witness for the principles of Christ.

The theme of Lent was discussed by Rev. John Linton at the morning service at the George Street Baptist Church. He outlined the history of the Lenten season and suggested that Evangelical Churches are thinking more of the Lenten Season than a few years ago. Lenten season has a message of hope in being a harbinger of spring, bringing a message of Faith. The Cross was central in Lenten season. In the evening Rev. Mr. Linton spoke of "The tragedies of silence."

The first Sunday of Lent was celebrated at Christchurch Cathedral with fitting services. Very Rev. Dean W. H. Moorehead preached morning and evening. Holy Communion was taken at Christchurch Parish Church in the morning, with Ven. Archdeacon S. C. Gray conducting the service. Rev. K. H. Fairweather conducted the evening service.

Rev. W. A. Burge, who conducted the services at Kingsley, Nashwaak, and at the Gibson Memorial Church, Devon, used as his theme "And they compelled one Simon of Cyrenian to bear the Cross." He stated that God and His sovereignty control even the minor acts of our lives. This mean act of the old Angeroun Law was the means of the greatest of blessings. "Blessed are they that are persecuted for My namesake." The law of suffering for others which existed long before Simon, is still with us through the despotic influence of a financial world.

Rev. Dr. Bartlett delivered his morning sermon from Leslie Weatherhead's book "A Shepherd Remembers." In the evening he quoted from Martin Niemoller's story of his life, pointing out that the courage he showed during the war in sinking 55,000 tons of allied shipping is now manifest in his church work. He also quoted a resolution of the Montreal Presbytery of the United Church of Canada in which they protested against efforts in Quebec to stifle freedom.

Prevention of Disease Is A Distinct Triumph Over Superstition.

STRANGE BUT TRUE.

ENERGY IS THE PRIME NERVE FORCE OF YOUR BODY.

Every factor in the process of life depends entirely upon the vital force or energy which is supplied by the intelligence that rules the world.

Disease

In Any Form

Is Misdivided Energy

Without this energy you cannot think, walk, talk, see, hear, feel, or judge, without it your body would be as lifeless clay.

When you are ailing and wish to get well the thing that is important to you is results, not the method. Of course you prefer the easiest way, the quickest way, but regardless of these factors you want your health back. It is possible to recover health without an operation, without drugs, through CHIROPRACTIC.

CANADA'S CHARTERED BANKS VALUE YOUR GOODWILL

WHETHER you deal with a bank or whether you don't, some time soon—say the very next time you are passing the bank's door—why not drop in and get acquainted? You're sure of a welcome, because the bank manager wants to know you. So find out for yourself what kind of fellow he is. And before you leave, take a good look at his staff.

The head offices are manned and managed by just that sort of man! Every general manager in Canada started in the banking business as a junior in some small branch, and rose from the ranks.

{ This is your introduction to a series of chats in the course of which you will be surprised at how little of mystery and how much of service there is in the business of banking in Canada. }

Canada's chartered banks want your goodwill.

It is only by goodwill that banks make a living—and bankers are your fellow-citizens, the same sort of people as you are.

Of course bankers have heard all the old, threadbare jokes about the banker's glass eye, his delight in humiliating worthy souls who ask for loans—even that grand old chestnut about lending the umbrella when the sun is shining and taking it back when it rains.

So if you think you have a new joke, drop in and spring it on your local bank manager—he'll appreciate it. And if it turns out he's heard it before, he'll still have his sense of humour handy enough to get a chuckle, should you chance to tell him that the banks are being held responsible for the latest storms, or for the loss of the hockey game, or for his own neglect to summon prosperity from just around the corner.

Which should prove to you that your banker is, after all, a very human person. He likes people. All bankers like people. And they want people to like them.

Banks want to be helpful. They realize that they succeed only as the people of the community succeed. Enlightened self-interest? Well yes—but not altogether.

Your local manager will tell you that banks are not stiff-necked; that they do not enjoy refusing loans.

They'd be foolish if they did, for goodwill is the whole core and pith and substance of successful banking.

Use your bank! Get to know the manager. If you know him already, he'd like to know you better.

Talk things over with him. Consult him. He'll be glad to advise you on anything within the scope of his banking knowledge and authority.

He is a part of his community. More than that, he is a good citizen, because he is anxious to be helpful to his fellow-citizens in every permissible way.

You have all sorts of interests in common. Because of the town taxes you both pay, you are really business partners in the community.

Then why shouldn't you know each other, understand each other, better?

He knows that his success as a bank manager depends first upon making himself useful to people, and then upon his ability to get along with them. His whole future is wrapped up largely in those two things—and well he knows it!

A bank is in business to sell banking service where such service is needed, and where it will do the community most good. So the banker of popular jest, the cold-eyed being who can only say "No," is a man of fiction only.

As we've said before, banks want and need your goodwill. No bank can get along without it. Telling the facts is probably the best method of winning it.

Intelligent people like plain talk. So in the talks to follow we shall be frank in giving you the facts about banks, bank ownership, bank operations, cash, currency, loans and interest. We would like you to read them all.

THE CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience. The next article in this series will appear in this newspaper. Watch for it.
