QUEBEC DEATH MYSTERY HANGS ON AUTOPSY FINDS

WAKEFIELD, Que., May 3—Solution of how William Bates' 63-year-old retired farmer, met his death, rests upon the result of an autopsy to be performed by Dr. J. M. Roussel, medico-legal experts from Montreal.

A quarter-inch rope, a blood-stained sledge hammer and a blood-smear-ed pocket knife were all considered potential instruments of Bates' death.

He was found hanging from a rafter in his barn in this Catholic district 15 miles north of Ottawa yesterday, but Dr. Josephat Desbelle, district coroner, said there were no signs of strangulation. Over the man's right eye was a deep wound which police considered may have been caused either by the sledge or Jack knife found on the barn floor. Bates' left hand was covered with blood and so was his face.

The rope had been wrapped twice around his neck and knotted, suspending him from a rafter with his toes barely touching a milk stool.

The Bates family could not identify the Jack knife. They said the sledge belonged to the victim but was usually kept in another shed.

Ill for some months, Bates arose as usual Sunday and lit the fire in the kitchen stove. His wife was unable to dissuade him from his announced intention of going to church later in the morning. He went out into the farmyard, and 30 minutes later Mrs. Mary Elder, his sister-in-law, found his body when she entered the barn for chicken feed.

No stranger had been seen around the premises prior to Bates' death, as far as Quebec Provincial Police could learn.

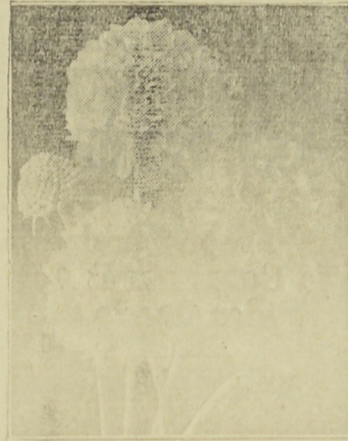

MINER DIGGING HIS OWN GRAVE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 3.—L. F. Wiley, a miner, is still digging despite the shutdown of the bituminous fields, but it's his own grave instead of coal that's occupying his time. The 49-year-old man said he had no fear of immediate death but wanted to be prepared. Wiley obtained State Board of Health approval of his plans a year ago, but didn't find time to dig the grave in a cemetery near his home until the wage deadlock left him without work.

"The sensible thing to do with farm surpluses is to make them available to undernourished people," Henry A. Wallace.

Two Flowers Deserving Much More Attention

Scabiosa Blue, which won honorable mention in 1938. All America trials for new flowers.

Shakespeare was wrong. A rose by any other name would not smell as sweet. Suppose it were christened with the Latin name for "itch," which is scabiosa. It might then be as little known and as seldom grown as the lovely flower which does bear that name.

Mourning Bride is another name for Scabiosa, but is not much better; it is also called "pincushion flower," but the name is not attractive and quite undeserved. The scabiosa, indeed, have been consistently out of luck with names, but that has not kept them from being an ambitious, progressive family.

The blossoms from two to three inches in diameter are double, and borne on long stems, on bushes growing to thirty inches high. Its chief merit is probably found in its exceptionally wide range of color, and the rich hues which it produces. Red, blue and yellow, all are found in the scabiosa in delightful variety. Lovely true pink, pale lavender blue, brilliant scarlet, and a crimson almost black are found in well fixed varieties.

This is one of the choice cut flowers and is grown in variety by many amateurs who find pleasure in arranging flowers for indoor decoration. The plants are easy to grow from seed, and if the flowers are picked off as they fade, flowering will continue until the plants have been killed by frost.

Gardeners are rediscovering the charm of fragrance, and taking care to select for every planting some flowers which can be depended upon to perfume the evening air.

The sweet scented tobacco, nicotiana alba, is surpassed by none in delightful fragrance. Its long tubular flowers, close in midway, but open as evening approaches and give forth their rich perfume. Sweet Rocket, a hardy perennial which grows easily from seed, is a most fragrant flower.

The old-fashioned tuberose which suffered a lapse of popularity for many years because it was too often used as a funeral flower, is returning to favor in gardens, being no longer used in funerals. Its odor, too heavy for the taste of many for indoor use, is delightful when diffused on the evening air. A few bulbs planted along the garden path will be delightfully evident on summer evenings.

One of the most fragrant evening flowers is the night scented stock (matthiola bicornis). A somewhat straggly, lilac-flowered plant, not too attractive in the daylight, it emits in the evening, or after a daylight shower, a cloud of sweetness.

Evening primroses, oenotheras, are native American flowers of notable evening fragrance.

If You Have a Child

ASK YOUR DOCTOR THIS

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.
