

YANKEES TROUNCE DETROIT TIGERS 10-6

DETROIT HURLERS GIVE UP EIGHT WALKS TO CHAMPS IN SIX FRAMES

Athletics, Red Sox, Senators Win; Giants, Phils, Take National Games

NEW YORK, May 4.—Three pitchers for Detroit Tigers mixed themselves a lot of trouble by giving New York Yankees eight walks in six innings yesterday and the American League leaders made the most of it by winning their second straight baseball game 10-6 although out.

George Caster, Philadelphia Athletics' knuckle-baller, held Chicago White Sox to three hits, two of them a homer and a single by Joe Kuhel, to give the A's a 3-1 triumph and snap Chicago's winning streak at five.

Eldon Auker, whose right-handed submarine ball offerings always are discouraging to Cleveland Indians, twirled five-hit ball to give Boston

Red Sox a 5-1 victory in the only game of the scheduled series.

Seven errors contributed to the heavy scoring as Washington Senators outslug St. Louis Browns to win 11-10.

Giants Down Reds Again
NEW YORK, May 4.—The revived New York Giants dropped Cincinnati Reds into third place in the National League with their second straight triumph 6-4 to a weird baseball display.

At Philadelphia, Hugh Mulcahy held Chicago to five hits, one a home run by Hank Leiber, while the Phils pounded Whitehill and Root for a 4-1 triumph.

DAHLGREN MAY REPLACE GEHRIG

DETROIT, May 4.—The fortunes of baseball have not treated Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren any too kindly but the new first baseman of New York Yankees has no regrets at having played second fiddle to Jimmie Foxx and Lou Gehrig.

Dahlgren got his first opportunity as a Yankee regular yesterday when Gehrig called it quits on a consecutive game string of 2,130.

"I have always figured that a fellow is lucky even to be in the majors, particularly with a club like the Yankees," Dahlgren said today. "Naturally, I would rather play than sit on the bench and it felt great to be out on the field yesterday."

He must have felt pretty good at the plate, too, for he hit a double and a home run in his first two times at bat.

Only 26, Dahlgren is in line to become New York's regular first sacker if the 35-year-old Gehrig decides to retire for good.

U.S. Davis Cup People To Chase "Tennis Bums"

The United States Davis Cup people have announced a selection of seven capable juniors for grooming as international team prospects and at the same time they declared they are bound and determined to stamp out the "tennis bum" whom they claim has been cluttering up their game.

Maybe the U. S. Cup Committee have suddenly snapped out of their trance and realized they have become the prepping ground for development of bright professional prospects, and when the amateurs jump the Davis Cup committee find themselves with chits to pay and holding several large, roomy, empty bags.

The seven juniors selected are collegians, who apparently have not the leaning toward necessarily turning pro should they reach a peak that would place them in the world's number one ranking spot. No matter how good they become, they'll more than likely continue to play for the love of the game only and not for the dividends.

"Return to high ideals of American tennis," Roland Mallory, chairman of the selection committee says, prompted the nominations.

"The days of tennis bums are over," Samuel Hardy, former Davis Cup captain and a member of the junior selection committee, added to Mallory's uplift declaration.

TO PREVENT THIS
Apart from the moral merit of the choices of seven up and coming college tennis players, the United States is apparently providing plenty of insurance against the embarrassing position they will likely find themselves in, come this summer when they have to defend the Davis Cup without the help of their one-man team, Donald Budge. General opinion is that Australia will take the silverware without too much trouble.

With a constant flow of junior material on the way up, the United States is building surely for the future.

Charles Rider, of North Carolina, who won the North and South championship, Charles Mattman of Miami, a superior doubles performer, William Gillespie, of Miami, and William McGhee have been put together as a possible doubles combination. Philip Moore and Henry Van Rensselaer, of Princeton and William Umstaedter of Louisiana State are the others of the group of seven.

Unlike players who slipped into the category of tennis bums by playing anywhere and as long as the room and board held out, these seven will be brought along carefully without the danger of them burning out. They will go through a fairly stiff campaign and will benefit by the coaching of George Agutter and others at Forest Hills. All seven are near the six-foot mark and pack so much potential talent they have been rated by the experts as the strongest young tennis group to ever gather in the east.

Predicts Bright Era In Canadian Golf

MONTREAL, May 4. — A good many years have passed since a home-bred golfer has won the Canadian open golf crown, but youthful Stanley Horne, one of the Dominion's shining links lights predicts a break in that outside rule "within" five years if Canadians obtain the proper competition.

Although only 27, Horne has held the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association title for the past three years and many believe he is the man to stop the steady run of successes piled up by golfers from the United States in the Open. The last time a Canadian won the crown — which will be played for this year at Saint John, N. B. — was in pre-war days.

"We have the golfers," said the English-born Horne. "But they need more competition, tougher competition, to turn the trick. Fellows like Bobby Gray (of Toronto) and Jules Hout (of Quebec) are just as good shortmakers as the Americans. All they'd need would be winter play for several seasons down South and we could bring that title back."

Returned only recently from a month in the southern United States where he played in three tournaments, Horne said he would like to make the complete winter circuit if possible next year and figured he could "clear expenses on the trip."

"And that's something," he added "that only about 15 or so of the top flight American Stars are able to do."

WOULD POOL WINNINGS
Horne said he and Hout often had talked of getting two other professionals and agreeing to touring the winter circuit as a foursome, pooling their winnings on the trip. "I'm certain we could make enough to get by. Even if we lost a bit it would be sport in order to have a strong team established here.

A public meeting will be called within the course of a few days to look into the situation and ascertain if a team can be satisfactorily financed. The Ripley twins and Creighton Lowther, who have been with Baltimore for the past two seasons, have already professed a willingness to remain in Amherst during the coming winter while several other strong players have been approached.

George F. Blanche, manager of the Amherst arena, will put the arena into the best possible condition for hockey provided an Amherst entry in the league is assured. With full co-operation in the community it is believed on the street that Amherst will be able to organize a team capable of holding its own in fast company.

LIFFORD GETS TECHNICAL K. O. OVER NOLAN

Nolan Took First 3 Heats, Drew on Next Two - Experience Told

GRAND FALLS, N. B., May 4. — Johnny Lifford of Saint John, Maritime lightweight champion, retained his crown here last night with a technical knockout over "Irish" Nolan of Perth in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round main go at the Grand Falls auditorium.

Nolan took the edge in the first three rounds and held his own in the fourth and fifth but from then on experience told as Lifford forced the pace, tossing lefts and rights that reached their marks on the tiring Nolan who went down for the count of eight early in the ninth. When he was floored a second time, less than a minute later, the fight was stopped and Lifford's arm raised in victory.

The main bout opened with Nolan and Lifford coming out fast, feeling each other out and awaiting an opening. Nolan got over a hard left and right, but Lifford was content to box him off and the Irishman took the edge. Nolan got frequent rights through Lifford's guard in the second and towards the end of the round had Lifford bleeding at the nose. Although Lifford was still bleeding as he came out for the third he gave Nolan all the younger battler could handle, but Nolan was given the margin for his aggressiveness.

Champion Opens Up

In the fourth Lifford opened up and carried the fight for a time to Nolan, but the Perth lightweight came back and earned an even draw for the round. The fifth was another even round despite the fact that Lifford was aggressive, forcing Nolan to the ropes.

Lifford sent over a couple of tough hooks that had Nolan bleeding badly at the nose in the sixth. The veteran ringman seemed to get stronger as the bout progressed and he had Nolan on the run.

Nolan started to slip in the seventh gradually getting weaker from Lifford's blows and he was covering up considerably.

In the eighth Nolan tried to rally but he failed. He stood up to the champion and was game to mix frequently, but Lifford forced him to slow up with several stiff punches.

Nolan went down from a hard right. He again gamely tried to mix with Lifford but the latter sent over another right hand smash and the bout was halted to save Nolan from further punishment.

SOCCER CLUB ORGANIZED FOR FREDERICTON

Efforts to organize a Fredericton City Soccer Club got under way here last night with a meeting of nearly a dozen interested. First practice session was called for next Monday at Queens Square with the possibility that College Field may be used instead.

A suggestion that the team open the 1939 season on May 24 with a game here with either a Minto or Saint John eleven was advanced by Frank Ayres, prime mover of the club. The meeting was a result of an appeal from the executive of the old New Brunswick Soccer Football League at Saint John calling for efforts to build up a new province-wide league such as, existed five years ago. Officers of the Fredericton Club will be elected at a subsequent meeting.

Me. was third man in the ring. Judges were Thomas Massey, of Hamlin, Me., and John Johnson of Fort Fairfield.
