Modern Morning Glories Revive Wide Popularity

Morning Glories have assumed new prominence in American gardens in the last few years and their prestige is made even greater by the victory of Ipomoea Scarlett O'Hara, gold medal winner in the 1939 All America trials.

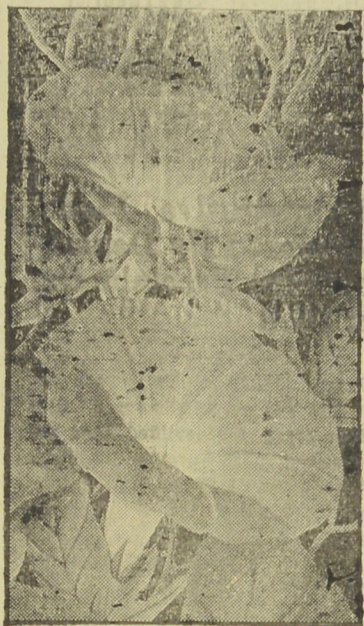

Previously morning glory popularity had been revived by Ipomoea Heavenly Blue, which had become one of the most widely grown of all flowers, and one of the most spectacular. It has covered walls with a blanket of true blue so lovely it gave a pleasurable shock to the beholder. Scarlett O'Hara is a first cousin, as large as Heavenly Blue when well grown, of a deep carmine self-color; and almost as freely flowering.

Morning glories are of two flower families, the convolvulus, to which belongs the bindweed which many farmers know as a serious pest; and the ipomoeas, which include both morning glories opening with the sun and moonflowers, opening at night. Ipomoea means "like a convolvulus."

Both Scarlett O'Hara and Heavenly Blue have rather large hard seeds, and if you have had trouble growing ipomoeas, it is a good plan to make a nick in the outer coat of each seed with a sharp knife. Be careful to cut only the outer covering, as any injury to the cotyledon or interior portion may destroy the seed.

Sow these seeds outdoors only after the ground has warmed up as they are tropical plants and will not germinate or grow in cold soil. If you wish to start them indoors it is necessary to give bottom heat for best results; such heat as is obtained in a hot bed, or in a box set above a radiator, so that the soil is well warmed.

But a practical and easy way to grow these morning glories is in a "flat" filled with fine loamy soil right cut in the sun and rain, after the weather warms up. Sown in such a flat, with or without nicking or soaking, and given the standard treatment for seeds in outdoor flats, they will germinate quickly and grow rapidly. The seeds are large enough to place accurately about two inches apart each way and this gives enough room for the plants to grow without transplanting. When a few inches tall they can be moved to the garden location where desired and transplanted without appreciable check.

But put them in the sun. Morning glories need the sun and an ample fence or wall to climb upon.

Hitler Made Popular For Birthday Celebration by Human Picturization

BERLIN, April 19. — The human touch is the ambition of Adolf Hitler in his picturization of himself for the 50th anniversary of the first Nazi Fuehrer.

A striking change has been observed in him in this respect as all of Germany prepared for a gigantic celebration, including an impressive display of military might, Thursday in honor of his anniversary.

Few Germans out of the millions who will cheer him have ever heard of the "Eagle's Nest," carved from the rocky top of Obersalzberg, in Bavaria, where the Fuehrer works out in solitude his schemes for re-making the map of Europe.

The Fuehrer's past avoidance and hatred of society is fading away. His visits to the theatre are no longer rare. He moves easily and freely among guests at the hugh new Chancellery. He has taken a personal interest in arranging entertainments for the parties such as those featured by the performances of two American dancers recently.

THEATRE ENJOYED

He has developed an increasing liking for vaudeville shows and recently took his personal retinue to one of Berlin's best music halls.

After launching the new battleship, Admiral von Tirpitz, the Fuehrer went on a two day sea trip on the "strength through joy" organization's new steamship Robert Ley. He walked around the decks with the tourists, and gave every indication of enjoying himself.

Another indication that his new "accessibility" is genuine will be given during the birthday celebration starting tomorrow night. His entire personal staff, down to the charwoman, his personal tailor and his barber, will be invited to the Chancellery and will hand him small gifts.

The Fuehrer's close associates say he knows all these people and chats with them when he meets them in the Chancellery corridors, asking about their personal affairs and the health of their children. He is sometimes seen chatting in the garden with the two Chancellery gardeners, both of whom are former S. S. bodyguards whom he knows well.

BABIES ENCOURAGED

Hitler has had special apartments made for many members of his bodyguards in a new building being erected in Hermann Goering Strasse.

These apartments contain special "baby carriage garages" and the Fuehrer knows most of the children, frequently remembering their birthdays with gifts.

Occasionally, he speaks to his close friends of death. But, despite frequent rumors, those who know him well say his health is good.

In appearance he is rather pallid but his face becomes scarlet during the heated passages of his speeches or when he is angry. His hair is more carefully brushed now than in his earlier years, and his famous forelock falls over his forehead only when he shakes his head excitedly.

HAIR GREYING

His hair is still only slightly gray but his mustache is shot through with white.

That is the changed Hitler, who Thursday views Germany's military might, massed in the capital in honor of his birthday.

Forty thousand grey-clad, steel-helmeted troops goose-stepping past Hitler will be one of the most spectacular demonstrations of armed might in celebration of the Fuehrer's birthday.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Thursday, the parade will climax a two-day celebration of the anniversary of a man who began life as a plasterer and became the master of 85,000,000 Germans and ruler of the greatest military power on the European continent with the possible exception of Soviet Russia.

"ISMS" PROBE SOUGHT BY TORONTO

TORONTO, April 20.—The Toronto City Council voted unanimously Monday night to ask the Federal Government to conduct a public inquiry into the operations, activities, propaganda, property, means and source of income of Communist, Fascist and Nazi organizations operating in Canada. The decision was reached after two hours' discussion.

"Public debt is paying for a dead horse. Private debt is buying a live one."

MINERAL MAP OF ANTARCTIC PLANNED

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Lincoln Ellsworth, explorer, here to talk over United States Government plans for a possible map-making expedition to Antarctica, said today the Polar continent might be a new source of oil, copper, nickel and tin.

The last two metals are produced with difficulty in the United States; but Ellsworth said the Indian Ocean side of the Antarctica has rich deposits.

The State Department may, ask Ellsworth or Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd to lead an expedition to map more than 500,000 square miles of land claimed for the United States by explorers during the last 100 years. Ellsworth said today he would "love" to go.

KING ZOG WILL LEAVE SOON FOR UNITED STATES

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 19 — Andreas Baghy, brother-in-law of Queen Geraldine, telephoned King Zog today and was informed the exiled Albanian monarch would leave Greece for Turkey this week-end.

Zog said he planned later to go to the United States for a lecture tour. He told the Queen's brother-in-law that his wife and son were both doing well.

PLAN FOR SHOW AND SALE

Plans are well advanced for a sale of Pure Bred Jersey cattle to be held in conjunction with the Annual Parish Show in Manners Sutton Parish on May 16.

Some 40 head of females, about two-thirds of which are milk producing, the rest young heifers, will be offered by Jersey breeders in the district. The stock is all Pure Bred.

The annual show consists of exhibits by various breeders in the community, and replaces the field days which were held in the district since 1927. This year's show will be the fourth or fifth since the field days were discontinued.

A few special awards will be offered, but generally the show is in the nature of a community competition for honors.

POLISH BRIDES TO SACRIFICE TROUSSEAU

WARSAW, April 19. — A housemaid has launched a campaign for all Polish brides to be married in dresses they already have and donate the cost of new gowns to the national defence fund. Newspapers have lent support.

Rings, bracelets, pins and other family jewelry already are coming in showers to government coffers. Tomorrow street musicians in Krakow will donate their receipts.
