Babs, with Woolworth 5 and 10 Millions Fights Her Prince

While Woolworth Shop
Girls Work For Starvation Wages Babs Hutton Has $45,000,000 for Squandering.

Paris, France, April 8 — Friends of Princess Barbara Hutton Midvanti, who have been in position to know the inside story of the brief and bumpy marital career of the American five-and-ten-cent store heiress and her Georgian prince are predicting that before Princess Babs gets her Reno divorce Prince Alexis will have opened a fight for half of her own fortune, and possibly additional balm from her family for alienation of his bride's affections.

Ever since the first reported rift last Fall, when Princess Babs denied that any adverse winds were troubling the placid waters of romance, and explained wistfully that she was "only a polo widow", it has been whispered that her Georgian Prince was far from feeling that the marriage settlement on him represented the true worth of the glamour he had contributed to the union.

Prince Values Self at Millions

With Barbara's fortune estimated at $42,000,000.00, it was gossiped discreetly that the scion of a once-proud Georgian royalty, with his empty title, considered a million dollar settlement a $50,000.00 a year income, a string of polo ponies, a yacht and a set of pearl shirtstuds, wedding gifts, as only the beginnings of his proper share of Princess Barbara's one-third of the Woolworth millions amassed by her grandfather.

Wiseacres close to the estranged couple, therefore, are finding support for their predictions of legal battles not only in what they know of the Georgian Prince and his feelings, but in the silence which Princess Barbara's legal advisors have imposed on her, and the secrecy behind which her movements and her plans have been guarded.

French Law Gives Him Half

It is being recalled that before the two ceremonies which united the girlish Barbara Hutton and her Prince were performed in Paris, the father of the bride, at first outspoken in his opposition to the match, but later reconciled to it, had drawn a contract which gave his daughter complete control of her fortune and the disposition of her property.

A Reno divorce has no standing in France, and under the French laws, a husband is entitled to half the property of his wife. If, as is rumored, Princess Barbara, as well as other members of her family, have invested heavily in France, the stake that Alexis is reported to preparing to play for through settlement and alienation suits, may well run into millions of good American dollars.

Electricity On Nashwaak

It is good to learn that the residents of that important country-side which embraces the valley of the Nashwaak, including the thriving village of Stanley, are going to have a rural electric service if they will get together and "sign up" for it. Delegates from Stanley, Cross Creek and other places who met the Premier and the members of the Hydro Commission on Saturday were practically promised this service if they would obtain two hundred signatures of those who want the power extended into their territory. This is the minimum number of names required in order to have the hydro power.

As this paper stated on Friday last, the district is one of the largest and most important in York County. The Cross Creek section contains the largest polling district in the County outside of Fredericton.

This extension may mean not only better lighting facilities. It may mean increased power and cheap power which might well be used for the development of the forest and other resources in this part of York County.

The old Stanley and Nashwaak pioneers and their descendants have been noted for their progressive spirit. They have in common with people of other places been having a hard time in recent years but they have weathered the gale much better than many other sections of the province. This new power extension if it becomes a fact, as it no doubt will, will put new life and power into a very fine class of people, who deserve all that is coming to them.

They are the first to apply for the extension to be given under the bill which went through the Legislature a few days ago.

The Daily Mail has for some time been advocating this extension to the Nashwaak country. This paper wishes the promoters every success in their efforts to secure better lighting and we hope better power facilities.

We hope that, if possible, the country around Fredericton Junction may be able to get on a Commission hook-up also.

CANADA MAY HAVE CENTRAL EXECUTIONS

OTTAWA, April 7—Changes in method of carrying out capital punishment are being contemplated by the government, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, told the House of Commons. He would not commit himself on a charge from the rope to the electric chair but he favored a central place for executions in each province in preference to the present system of hanging in country jails.

"I don't know that I favor the electric or some other method in preference to hanging", said the minister. "There are arguments both pro and con, and whether another method is more humane than hanging is hard to say."

The question was raised at the end of a long penitentiary discussion by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, who referred to the recent decapitation of a woman in an execution. He said the electric chair would be preferable to hanging which was "a relic of the old days".

Although favoring abolition of capital punishment, Hon. W. D. Euler (Liberal, Waterloo North), said the method should at least be changed. Hanging was a "degradation of the human body repulsive to all instincts of humanity".

Fine Address By Rev. Dr. Wightman, Wilnot Brotherhood

Yesterday's meeting of the Wilnot Brotherhood featured a programme of great interest. Rev. Doctor F. A. Wightman addressed the group on the subject "Evolution of the Hymn Book." Dr. Wightman covered this broad topic briefly but comprehensively, telling how the hymn originated with the singing of the psalms of David in the temples and synagogues of Israel. The speaker then followed the developments of the hymn through different periods of church history. Dr. Wightman concluded his address by relating several hymns from the Hymnary and explaining points of interest about them. These hymns were then sung by the Brotherhood. The address was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience and a vote of thanks, moved by Raymond Crewdson, and seconded by Vernon Box, was carried unanimously.

LIKELY TO APPROVE QUODDY POWER PROJECT

$30,000,000 Tidal Power
Development Rests
With Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7—Approval by President Roosevelt of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal power project in Maine under the $4,000,000,000 public works program was predicted tonight in authoritative circles.

The original application for a $47,000,000 PWA allotment was rejected last year, but the project was revived at the suggestion of the president. A special PWA investigating commission recommended allotment of $30,000,000 to Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, who said he had transmitted it without comment.

The project is designed to generate power from tides in the Bay of Fundy, near the Roosevelt summer home at Campobello, N. B.

Secrecy has surrounded the progress of plans for harnessing the rushing 27-foot tides which originate in the Bay of Fundy in order to supply more power for Maine, New England, and perhaps for New York.

The project involves not only harnessing of the tides but also construction of an aluminum and stainless-steel plant to provide a commercial outlet for a portion of the power which will be generated.

MILITARY MEASURE?

AUGUSTA, Maine, April 8—Governor Louis J. Brann last night disclaimed knowledge of a reported move by Maine supporters of the Quoddy plan to ask President Roosevelt to approve the project as a military defence measure.

Milwaukee Church Head Declares Kidnap Plot Was Planned Before Estate was Built--Grey- haired Cleric Breaks Long Silence

(Special to The Daily Mail)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 8—Declaring that his sense of "moral duty" prompted him to break a long silence, Rev. Michael J. Kallok, pastor of St. Joseph's church in suburban Cudahy, yesterday made the dramatic statement that "the Lindbergh kidnapping was planned long before the flier's estate at Hopewell was erected." The grey-haired Catholic priest today awaited the arrival of federal authorities to whom he will tell the whole story. The cleric's story will strike at the very root of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's alibi in the famous kidnapping case.

The story told by the Rev. Michael J. Kallok, pastor of St. Joseph's church in suburban Cudahy, and in 1930 a cleric in Trenton, N. J., was given to department of justice agents who were to confer with New Jersey state police before proceeding further.

Father Kallok, asserting the Lindbergh kidnapping was planned long before the flier's estate at Hopewell was erected, said he felt "I have a moral duty to bring to light details that for three years were kept secret because of the fear that someone might kill me for revealing what I know."

The former pastor of St. Michael's Church on the outskirts of Trenton, said Hauptmann visited a riding stable on the L. C. Thompson farm, several miles from the Lindbergh estate, for several months prior to the kidnapping and that he knew the Bronx carpenter as "Brunor," "Richard" and as "Hauptmann."

At one time, the priest related, he saw Hauptmann, who often rode horseback in the woods near the Lindbergh estate, emerge from the clump where many months later the kidnapped babe's body was found.

Father Kallok said Hauptmann studied plans of an architect, Robt. A. Schumann, of Trenton, who had been seeking contracts for work on the colonel's home. "I saw Hauptmann many times," the priest said. "I saw him sitting on the porch of the (stable) building. I saw him riding in the woods. I talked with him and at one time he saddled a horse for me. I saw him looking over a set of plans for the Lindbergh home and when he noticed I was looking at the plans he covered them up."

Both Schumann and Thompson are now dead, a development the priest said seemed highly suspicious to him. He recognized Hauptmann, the priest said, as the stable hanger-on as soon as he was arrested for the kidnapping.
