GOD SAVE OUR BELOVED KING GEORGE

Streets Of London Crowded for Jubilee

Delighted With Glimpse of Queen Driving Out on Private Visit—Red- faced Guardsman Sen- try Drops Bayonet.

LONDON, May 4—London today was like the fair scene in Faust a thousand times magnified, but without music, of course, and without visible signs of Mephistopheles, says a press cable.

Since noon-day from Hyde Park corner to the Bank of England and from the Marble Arch to Cheapside the multitude has shuffled its eager way along, gazing at the garlands and festoons, flags and banners streaming from one sidewalk to its opposite neighbor and covering well-nigh every flanking foot of stone or stucco.

The weather was bright and fine on Friday as well as on Thursday. Women venturing out in summer wear added a gracious contribution to the riot of street adornment. The throng which persistently haunts Buckingham Palace was delighted to catch a glimpse of the Queen driving out on a private visit. Her Majesty gave a smile and a wave of the hand in response to the acclamations.

But the crowd was too dumbfounded to laugh at one catastrophe. A huge Guardsman sentry brought his rifle so smartly to the present that the bayonet dropped out. The onlookers merely stared when the valiant but unfortunate soldier, redhued as his tunic, solemnly recovered it.

Nearly All Walk

Londoners this week are inclined to regret that transport authorities have been so solicitous of their patrons' comfort in rainy weather as to have scrapped all omnibuses with uncovered top decks. A bus with a roofed top is of little use for sight-seeing. For this reason and because the buses' rate of progress at present is reduced nearly at a snail's pace, nearly everyone walked today.

Regarded critically, London's exterior decoration, while profuse and colorful to the last degree, can hardly be deemed as a whole to have escaped from convention. It has known venetian masts and paper rosettes since childhood, and certainly they make a brave show.

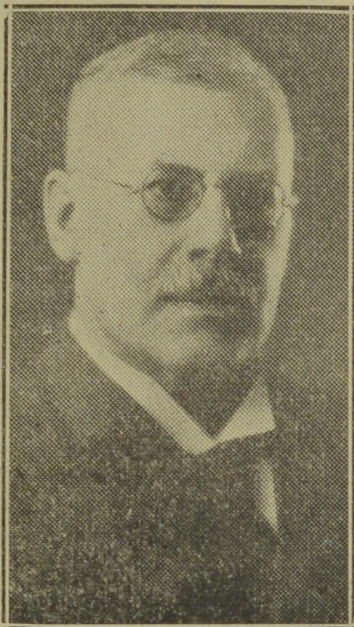

The City and Westminster have done well in instituting a general scheme of blue and gold. Canada House and certain buildings on Trafalgar Square put out large streamers in three colors. They are very effective. The royal purple also enters into the Canadian scheme of adornment.

Regulations Ignored

If that august personage called the Garter King of Arms, who is also the Inspector of Flags and Regimental Colors, has made an inspection of the route of Monday's royal procession to St. Paul's Cathedral he must be a little disturbed. The only flags the public is entitled to fly are the Union Jack and St. Andrew's Cross. But billowing out to the breeze one constantly happens upon the Royal Standard, the White Ensign and other forbidden colors.

Doubtless if he exercised his full powers, the Garter King of Arms could clap the presumptuous fliers into the tower. But the Garter King of Arms and his retinue are for the nonce like sailors—they don't care. Doubtless they are more occupied preparing for the Cathedral procession, when they will appear in tabards and other mysterious raiment, rendering

TAXI PARKING

In the course of discussion on parking arrangements for automobiles for the King's Silver Jubilee celebration on Monday, it was pointed out by the city council last night that parking space at the back of the Post Office had been secured. In this connection it was suggested that better arrangements be made for taxi parking in the future.

Ald. David McCaughey and Ald. F. S. Mundle held adverse views. "Don't bother them," said Ald. McCaughey. "They have a hard enough time to make a living as it is," agreed Ald. Mundle. Ald. G. Willard Kitchen and Ald. Maxwell expressed the opinion that the taxi drivers were very careless at that corner.

them curiously like the court cards of a pack.

Their appearances, even at state functions, are rare nowadays and they will probably arouse more interest Monday even than the imposing corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms.

To Meet Tuesday

LONDON, May 3—The prime ministers of Great Britain and the dominions will meet here Tuesday, to discuss the Empire's foreign policy, it was learned today.

Long May He Reign

On Monday next, citizens of our Empire will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the Throne of Our Gracious Majesty King George V. Loyal subjects throughout the Empire will join in celebrating the anniversary and in returning thanks to Divine Providence for his restoration to and continued good health.

In no place throughout our far-flung Empire will the expressions of loyalty and good will be more sincere than in this Capital City of New Brunswick. All our citizens will join in the celebration on Monday next.

Great Britain has seen many kingdoms and empires of the earth pass away and since the war she has witnessed disturbances in many lands. Germany, Russia, Italy and others are examples. She has seen the beginning of all the present governmental systems of Europe, and she may be destined to see the end of them.

Much of the secret of our Empire success is due to the kindly feeling which the people have had for their sovereigns. This feeling is in no small measure due to the character of the rulers whom it has pleased God to place on the throne of England. Victoria the Good, Edward the Peacemaker, and our present Gracious Majesty King George V. have all been sovereigns of whom any nation might be proud. Their private family life has been ideal.

Our present sovereigns have passed through what was probably the worst years in the Empire's history. It was and still is a time to try men's souls. But during twenty-five years of hardship and bitter trial the British people have found on their throne a modest, patient, steadfast man whose reliability and stoutness of character proved a pillar of strength through the long tribulation of the war. They have found in him those qualities that must be the foundation of the new era which is upon us. New and severe tests have come to the people of the new age, in which the extraordinarily rapid development of electrical and other devices started by the Victorians, followed by new discoveries and inventions, have brought volatile and changeable qualities to human character. But amid the change and uncertainty, the simple steadfastness of Britain's King and Queen has proved a strength and a comfort not only to the British people, but also to millions of friends in America and other parts of the world, who now unite in offering to their Majesties their felicitations and wishes for a long-continued reign.

King George and Queen Mary do not possess, nor have they sought to possess, the halo of almost legendary romance that surrounded Queen Victoria. Nor does the sovereign's popularity rest on political achievement but upon the fact that he has been a father to his people.

LONG MAY HE REIGN.

Samuel T. McNutt Died Here Today

Samuel I. McNutt, aged 70, passed away early this morning at the home of his brother-in-law, Wesley R. Tait, 345 Northumberland street. Deceased had been a lifelong resident of Tay Settlement, where he was well known and highly respected by the residents there. He had been ill for a period of nine months. At Tay Settlement the late Mr. McNutt had carried on a general store and milling business and earned the respect of everybody for his honesty and integrity. Surviving is one son, Harold A. McNutt of Moncton; two daughters, Mrs. L. Lyons, of Hartford, Conn.; and Mrs. Howard Tomlinson, of Tay Settlement; also two grandchildren. The funeral will take place with prayers at the late home tomorrow at one o'clock and services at the Sterling United church at Tay Settlement at 3.45 o'clock. Interment will be made in the cemetery there.

Science Club Heard Address On Med. Entomology

Over thirty members of the Science Club and guests met at the home of Mrs. Eleanor E. King, 784 George St., and heard a most interesting paper on Medical Entomology by the Vice-President of the club, R. E. Balch, illustrated with many interesting lantern slides. It was the 115th regular meeting.

The President introduced Mr. Balch as speaker of the evening, who delivered an interesting and well prepared address.

On conclusion of the address R. P. Gorham recalled the fact that the Large Funeral Today For Late Silas Perry

The funeral of the late Silas A. Perry, C.N.R. detective, took place this afternoon at three o'clock from the South Devon Baptist church with a large number attending. Rev. D. L. Kennedy conducted a most impressive ceremony and interment was made in the Sunnybank cemetery. The pallbearers were Wesley Bishop, Joseph Wedge, Austin Steeves, Roy Dunphy, Henry Bishop, and James Sproul. The chief mourners were Hazen A. Perry, Kenneth Perry, James and Wesley Sproul, Charles Barton, Thomas Stillwell, Arthur Jewett, Austin Grant, Stanley Delong, Ernest Doherty, Jas. Manchip, Wesley Myles, Burt Dunham, Everett Little, Kenneth Corbett, employees of the C.N.R. in a body, John Whalen, Fred Ellwell, Burt Endall, George Haining, Robert Scott, Ernest Blizard, Arthur Caes, Charles Titus, Frank Titus, Harry Cook, Fred Jones, Stanley Horncastle, Roy Rankine, Percy Mann, the Brotherhood of the Devon Baptist church. The body of the late Mr. Perry had rested at McAdams' Funeral home until five o'clock yesterday when it was taken to the South Devon Baptist church.

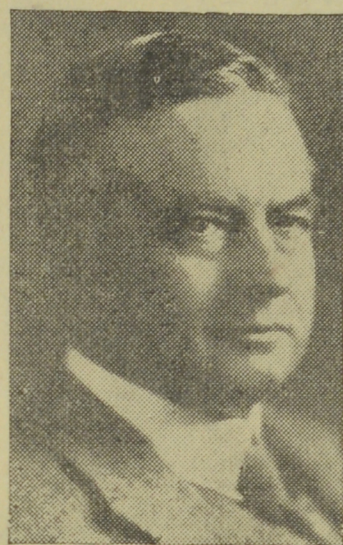

club had been organized as the outcome of the irregular meeting of a group of students interested in entomology in the Dominion Entomology Laboratory and that the second or third paper had been on this very subject.

Miss Annie Sypher rendered a song appropriate to the Jubilee season, accompanied by Mrs. F. L. Lister.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lister and Mrs. Balch.

Premier of New Brunswick Who Will Speak at the Provincial Celebration on Monday Next.

JUBILEE STREET

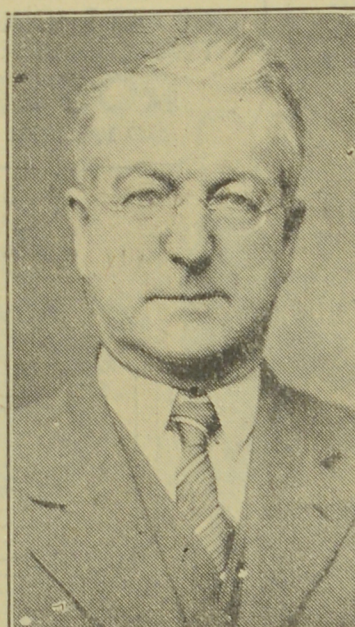

Fredericton is adding honor to honor in its tribute to King George V. on the occasion of his Silver Jubilee.

At the May committee meeting last night in the mayor's office of the city hall a Fredericton street was named "Jubilee." The newly-christened street is one that is contemplated being finished this summer, and is the lower street from Beaverbrook street to Albert street and the continuation thereof.

STILL ALARMS

Firemen answered to two still alarms, one last night and the other this morning. Last night's was to the residence of W. E. Vaughan, George street, where a hot pipe started the blaze. Another fire occurred this morning at the residence of Dugald Tozer on York street, also an overheated pipe.

OUR MAYOR

HIS WORSHIP W. G. CLARK
Is To Be One of The Speakers On Monday Next.

Any citizen of Fredericton who is not at the present moment a member of the Fredericton Community Concert Association and who joins this organization before Monday evening next, will be a guest of the Association for the Frederick Jodel concert on the holiday. All interested should phone Robyn Bayley 130-21 or Mrs. A. P. Crockett, phone 562. The annual campaign week is to be held from May 7 to 12th inclusive.

Providing Weather Con- ditions Are Favorable Monday, Should Prove An Epic Day in History of Fredericton—Capital Garishly Decorated To- day for Occasion—The Program.

Final detailed arrangements have been completed for New Brunswick's share of the King's Silver Jubilee celebration, with only one more wish—that Monday proves to be a warm sunny day.

The agitation of preparation is over, no more programmes are to be outlined, and all that awaits is the sounding of bells and the blowing of whistles at 10 o'clock on Monday morning to put the celebration, honoring the twenty-fifth anniversary of King George Fifth's accession to the British Throne, in full swing.

Today public buildings in the city, stores of the merchants, and private homes were gaily decked in flags and banners, anticipating the glorious event.

The Capital will swarm with visitors from all parts of the province on Monday, some of the throng having already arrived by motor and by train. Providing weather conditions are favorable Jubilee Day should witness the greatest celebration the capital has ever held. The parade promises to be the longest and most spectacular ever witnessed here. Some of the floats are as long as 35 feet and with the towns of Stanley, Marysville and Devon taking an active part the celebration will develop into huge proportions. Special services commemorating the event will be held Sunday in all the churches.

Alderman F. S. Mundle, chairman of the float committee, and Colonel E. J. Lounsbury, chairman of the parade committee, have arranged the final details in connection with the placing and arranging of the floats, which if not properly handled may get beyond control.

The fireworks promises to be a good display, according to Vice-Chairman F. B. Osborne, and will take place at the A. & B. Clubhouse of which this Club will be open and decorated for the occasion.

The Ball committee headed by Bryce M. Love, have left no stone unturned and, according to Mr. Love, everything is in readiness for the finale of a glorious day. The dancing hall at the Parliament Buildings is being beautifully decorated with palms and flowers, the compliments of Bebbington's Gardens and Ada M. Schleyer, Limited.

All organizations, floats, bands, etc., taking part in the parade are requested to assemble on Smythe street, south of Brunswick, not later than 1.30 p.m. on Monday, May 6th, where representatives should report to Regimental Sergt-Major Endall, D. C. M. M. M., Marshal of Parade, to be allotted their places in the parade.

To avoid confusion a number of floats should come up George street, Charlotte street, Saunders street, and the City Fire Department up Aberdeen street.
